PUZZLE OF THE RUHR DELAYS BRITISH NOTE ON GERMAN PROBLEM

Cabinet Works 2 Hours Over Draft Going to Allies—Resumes Discussion Today.

FRENCH ENVOY CONSULTED

BERLIN SUGGESTS TERMS

Conditions Offered for Ending Passive Resistance, but France Rejected Them.

LONDON, July 18.—The British Cabinet sat for more than two hours today in discussion of the draft note prepared by the British Foreign Office in reply to the German memorandum of June 7 and will meet again tomorrow to continue its work.

With this note is a covering letter which will be sent to the allied powers and "interested" Governments, among which, of course, comes first and foremost the United States, although such nations as Holland, which has been hard hit by the French policy in the Ruhr, are also being advised in friendly fashion of the British proposals. Besides the actual note to Germany and the covering letter to the allied and interested nations, the British documents include a detailed explanatory memorandum.

All three were sent out to members of the Cabinet last night so that Ministers might come fully prepared for discussion of details at the 10 Downing Street meeting today.

It was regarded as an indication that some points still required to be elucidated, that after the Cabinet Council Lord Curzon had a prolonged interview with the Prime Minister and that Sir Eyre Crowe, Head Permanent Official of the Foreign Office, had a long conversation with Comte de Saint-Aulaire, the French Ambassador here.

Hopeful Signs Seen.

As a result of the less intransigeant attitude of the Paris press and reports which have come from Brussels of Belgian doubts as to the wisdom of the "whole hog" policy in the Ruhr, there exists a considerably more optimistic feeling as to the possibility of an understanding being arrived at between the British and French Governments. It is also regarded as a sign of most hopeful augury that Lord Curzon has been in constant commmunication with the French Ambassador while the British note and covering letter have been in preparation.

Although no official information on the subject is forthcoming, it is held that as the French Ambassodor has been consulted at every step and on every point in the framing of the British note and its appendices it is practically assured that the French Government will find on examination that the British proposals will not only demand, but, from the point of view of French interests, merit fullest consideration.

May Not Get Note This Week.

LONDON, July 19 (Associated Press).—Lord Curzon is experiencing more difficulty in the preparation of his note to Germany than had been expected. It is now reported that the note and the covering letter may not be dispatched to the Allies until next week, but whether the trouble has arisen from political friction within the Cabinet, as alleged in some quarters, or simply from the inherent difficulty of framing a reply to Germany which would not offend France is not evident.

It is believed, although nothing is known officially, that Curzon is making the greatest efforts to find a way of compromise on the question of passive resistance in the Ruhr.

He has had conversations with the German Ambassador, the latest of which was yesterday, probably with the idea of finding how far the German Government might be willing to recede from its support of the passive resistance movement, provided France could be induced to revert to merely civil occupation of the Ruhr.

This question is considered to present far greater difficulty than the question of assessing Germany's capacity to pay, as it is a point on which neither the French nor the German Government is disposed to yield, and if some method could be discovered to save the faces of the two Governments it is believed that the financial points could be cleared up with less difficulty.

Benes Tells of Negotiations.

Before his departure Dr. Benes reaffirmed his optimism as to the issue of the matter of the allied negotiation on the reparations question. According to Dr. Benes, there is an agreement between Paris, London and Brussels on the fixing of the indemnity to be paid by Germany. Nevertheless the British Government considers it necessary to satisfy the demand of Germany for an international commission to fix her capacity of payment and the best possible means by which she can pay.

France and Britain are discussing the form such a commission of experts should take, and it seems probable the experts would submit their opinion to

To Colonel Allan Reagan, of the Seventy-first Regiment, the discovery of army beans in a refuse receptacle is prima facie evidence of a Mess Sergeants's wanton waste, for Colonel Reagan, an old-timer in the service, reveres this article of army diet. So when yesterday he discovered some beans headed for the incinerators at the State Camp at Peekskill, he summoned Mess Sergeant Fred Miller, winner of the Distinguished Service Cross, the Croix de Guerre and three wound stripes, and demanded an explanation.

"They are not our beans," said the Sergeant. "No beans have been on the menu since our arrival at the camp." Miller produced the menu, whereupon Colonel Reagan ordered the beans restored.

EXTOLS ALCOHOL TO BRITISH LORDS

DECLARES IT A BALANCER

But He Thinks It Unnecessary for Youth—Finds Temperance Is Gaining Rapidly.

LONDON, July 19.—The House of Lords today gave second reading to Lady Astor's liquor bill.

Viscount Astor, in moving the second reading, said he commended the bill, not because of any pride in its ancestry, but because of the real support he had found for it in all sections of the community.

A feature of the debate was a tribute to the virtues of alcohol from Lord Dawson of Penn, the King's physician. He said no sensible person contended that alcohol was a good and effective food, whatever it might be in illness. His own view was that it was a stimulant for a transient period, and that the chief effect of alcohol was on the nervous system.

To call alcohol a narcotic was a misnomer, he said. If it was taken in moderation, it added to the pleasure, exhilaration, happiness and gayety of life. Under conditions of modern civilization in these days of concentration and the constant endeavor to put twelve hours into six and with our high measure of specialization it was obvious that at the end of such a day the mind of man got into one track. He had no uplift. There alcohol came in very well.

In moderation, he said, it got man out of the track; it lightened his mental touch. A man, for example, who worked seven or eight hours daily in the manufacture of motor cars had been using precisely the same set of muscles and consequently the same cells of the brain all the time. At the end of his day he was uplifted by moderate use of alcohol, and at that time good beer would help him and not harm him.

Lord Dawson said he had attended recently a public dinner where the centre of the table consisted entirely of prohibitionists, many of whom were high ecclesiastics. It was very interesting to watch them. That table was the only gray spot in the whole of the dinner—[laughter]—and if anybody wished to be converted from uncompromising condemnation of alcohol he would have been converted by that scene [laughter].

People were often too tired at the end of a day to digest their food, and a small quantity of alcohol made them feel happy with themselves and happy with the world.

Says Youth Doesn't Need It.

He thought that the argument for this bill was that a youth did not require the addition of alcohol, as experience showed that alcohol was damaging to youthful nerves and the formation of habits. A strong case was made out in favor of the bill from the fact that the effect of alcoholism on youth was different from the effect on adults.

With regard to moderation, Lord Dawson thought it was entirely admitted that prohibition was progressing by leaps and bounds. He made this statement in the light of returns from a big London hospital. He had got figures from a large London hospital for the last ten years, and he took two diseases produced by alcohol and found that in 1900 there were admitted for cirrhosis of the liver 39 cases while in 1920 the number was only 7.

With regard to alcoholic diseases peculiar to women, in 1900 there had been 19 cases admitted to the hospital, as against 1 in 1920. Taking diseases due to alcohol in the same hospital per thousand, in 1900 it was 5; in 1910

BOOTLEGGER KILLED, 2 DETECTIVES SHOT IN PISTOL BATTLE

OCCURS ON BUSY CORNER

In a pistol battle late last night between two detectives and a taxicab full of men suspected of being bootleggers whom they were trailing, one suspect was shot dead and both detectives wounded, one mortally. Policemen who raced from all directions at the sounds of the shots, gathered in four men, three of whom are believed to have been in the taxicab, while the fourth is believed to have been its driver.

The fight in which fifteen or twenty shot were fired occurred at one of Harlem's busiest corners—125th Street and Lenox Avenue—at 11:30 o'clock. It was over in less than two minutes, but in the brief time that bullets were spitting from at least four pistols, an excited crowd of hundreds came tumbling from tenements or rushing from the resorts in the district. The crowd gathered at its peril, for as uniformed policemen ran up drawing their weapons and saw several men speeding from the corner where lay the two wounded detectives and the dead man, they opened fire on the fugitives. There were no casualties from the second fusillade, though one bullet went through the plate glass window of a crowded United cigar store on the northeast corner and others spattered against walls, narrowly missing the curious throng that was gathering.

Question the Suspect.

The whole Police Department was humming with efforts to connect the suspect with the crime, or to arrest the guilty, and high officers who had raced from Manhattan headquarters or from their homes were interrogating the suspects in Harlem Hospital, whither they were taken in the hope that the wounded detectives, who also had been taken there, would be able to identify them.

Early this morning the police announced that they would hold two men on a charge of felonious assault. They were Nicholas Antico, brother of the dead man, who lived with him, and Louis Dingillio, a chauffeur of 2,362 Webster Avenue, the Bronx. Others were questioned but the police said they could not hold them. It is understood that they are searching for two men they believed escaped from the taxicab.

The dead man was identified as Frank Antico, 32 years old, single, of 350 Lenox Avenue. He was shot in the stomach and probably died instantly, although his body was rushed to the hospital in the belief that there might still be a spark of life in it.

The detective who was mortally wounded is Edward Sullivan, 23 years old, of 853 Cauldwell Avenue, the Bronx, attached to the staff of Chief Inspector William J. Lahey. He was shot in the right temple. The other detective, seriously wounded, is Benjamin King, 32 years old, of 658 Sixtieth Street, Brooklyn. He, too, is on Chief Lahey's staff. A bullet penetrated his lung.

Beyond the fact that the men who were being trailed were under suspicion of carrying on a bootleg trade in the heavily populated negro section of Harlem in which the fight occurred, the police, preoccupied with their early investigation, would disclose but little. Indeed, an effort was made by some of them to make it appear that the affray grew out of an ordinary street quarrel.

It was not learned just where one taxicab fell in behind the other, but it was understood that the detectives trailed their quarry for many blocks and that the chauffeur of the leading taxicab, evidently acting under orders from his fares, had dodged and twisted in and out of many streets, trying vainly for hours to shake off the pursuit.

Precisely how the battle was precipitated likewise was somewhat in doubt, excited bystanders giving two versions. From the stories of witnesses, however, the more probable version seemed to be that the detectives, finally satisfied that they were following the right men, determined to end the game of hare and hounds which had been going on all evening. As the front cab slowed up at

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 19.—Jessica Brown, not so long ago the "third from the end in the second row" of "The Follies" chorus, became the eleventh Countess of Northesk at a quarter to eight tonight in the office of her attorney, Frank T. Jordan, 79 West Monroe Street. Judge John R. Caverly performed the ceremony which gave David Ludovic George Hopetoun Carnegie a "Follies" girl wife, and endowed Jessica Brown with a 276-year-old title. The marriage was delayed an hour and four minutes because of the late arrival of the bride's mother, Mrs. A. W. Stark.

At half-past three this afternoon the Earl, accompanied by attorney Jordan, walked into the County Building to get a marriage license.

"Oh, I say, can't this be done with a bit of decent quietness, don't you know," the Scotsman asked County Clerk Robert M. Switzer, who received them in his private office.

Mr. Switzer permitted the Earl to sit in his office while the papers were being prepared. A few minutes before a clock near by struck four, marriage license 993,340 was issued to the Earl of Northesk, 21, and Jessica R. Brown, 23.

The titled visitor stuffed the license in his pocket and returned to the lawyer's office, where he awaited the arrival of his fiancée.

Miss Brown was attired in a gown of crepe in a deep blue shade, a gray chiffon wrap was twisted about her shoulders and a wide brimmed hat of gray crepe adorned her head. After the ceremony the Earl of Northesk and his bride returned to the Drake Hotel.

Report Shore Bathers Get an Ear Affection

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., July 19.—An ear infection, fatal in one case, had appeared among bathers in this locality this Summer. So general is the trouble becoming, especially among those who dive or go under water, that the doctors have advised putting cotton in the ears to keep out the water.

The fatal case occurred at Harbor View, a Summer colony, where William A. Miller, 12 years old, of Brooklyn, was taken first with mastoiditis, which developed into meningitis.

PRESIDENT IS JOVIAL ON WALK IN SEWARD

Commends Old Settler on His Poem, Views Game Trophies and Loses a Bet.

HE MAKES MANY FRIENDS

Talks With Children in Street and Poses While a Little Girl Snaps His Photograph.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SEWARD, Alaska, July 19.—After a quiet day largely devoted to preparation of the speech he will deliver in Seattle July 27, which will deal with Alaska's problems in the light of his observations, President Harding sailed from Seward on the transport Henderson at an early hour this morning for visits to Valdez and Cordova. It is his intention to make a side trip of eighty miles into the interior over the Copper River Railroad before proceeding to Sitka, whence he will sail for Vancouver, British Columbia, where he has an engagement to speak July 26.

President Harding never appeared in a more attractive light than during his walk through the streets of Seward to get a little exercise before starting work on the preparation of his Seattle speech. He talked to everybody with that simplicity and charm of manner which makes friends for him. Those in the presidential party who noted the President on many an occasion have been struck with his ability to please people when he comes in close personal contact with them. He always scores on these occasions. Seward was looking its best during the President's stroll. The town nestles under precipitous green hills with snowy mountains just across the impressive body of water called Resurrection Bay, on which the town is situated. During his walk the President found inspirations for his Seattle address through a chance meeting with S. Lundblad, a Swede, who conducts a fish market.

Old Swede Recites Poem.

Lundblad is more than sixty years old and has been in Alaska for thirty years. He stopped the President when the latter was passing his fish market.

"Let me recite a poem for you," said Lundblad, who was in his shirt sleeves. "Go ahead," the President assented, and Lunblad launched forth into a poem which he recited in a marked foreign accent with considerable dramatic effect. The poem was a boost for Seward whose attractions were described in detail. One verse follows:

The bay is a rapture, our sense enthralling,
The inlet it is a wonderful sea,
The shores in their northerly verdure are calling,
Inviting all men to be free.

The ranges and crags give us pride;
We admire the snow, the purest of white,
The shimmering glaciers the sun set afire,
Enhancing our thrills at the sights.

"That's fine," said President Harding when Lundblad finished, "I should like to use it in my Seattle speech. Have you a copy of it?"

Lundblad had—many copies, in fact, printed on the backs of post-cards.

"This is splendid," remarked the President when he had read the poem from the post-card transcript. "I am going to read it at the end of my Seattle speech on Alaska. Who wrote it?"

Lundblad admitted that he was the author, and was complimented for his poetic ability.

The President appealed to Lundblad to give expert testimony on whether red salmon or king salmon were the better fish commercially. There had been a dispute during the walk between the President and Harvey Sullivan, United States Marshal for this district, on this subject, the President maintaining that red was more valuable for trade purposes. Before meeting Lundblad the President had appealed to another fish dealer, whose shop he entered just after encountering Sullivan on the street. This shopkeeper held that while king salmon was said to have a finer flavor the red variety was the better commercial proposition.

"I win," said the President to Sullivan after Lundblad confirmed the first shopkeeper's decision.

But the President was not so fortunate in a wager with a newspaper man whom he asked to accompany him on the walk. Some members of the Presidential party wanted the services of a manicure, and when the question arose whether Seward boasted a manicure the President offered to bet the newspaper man that it did. The newspaper man took the wager. "We'll make it for a tin of tobacco," said the President.

At the first barber shop the President asked the barber about a manicure and found none in the town. He paid the wager at a tobacconist's a few doors beyond.

There he also bought a plug of chewing tobacco for a member of his party.

"I am doing this in memory of dear old Knute Nelson," he said. "This was his favorite brand."

Strolling around the town the President

DOUBTFUL OF LEGISLATURE

HYLAN SQUELCHES DREEBEN

Bus Owners Not Allowed to Discuss Situation Before the Board of Estimate.

Governor Smith has a plan to keep the municipally supervised bus lines running which he will suggest to a special committee of the Board of Estimate before making a final decision on the board's request that he call a special session of the Legislature to try to get it to authorize the city to operate a bus system.

He discussed this plan, it was learned yesterday, with the members of the Transit Commission at a conference which lasted until early yesterday morning and will propose the same plan to the committee of the board.

The Governor was said to believe that the way to insure the continued operation of the bus lines, many of which admittedly are needed greatly, is to proceed under existing law instead of appealing to the Legislature for relief which probably would not be granted by the Republican Assembly and might not be passed by the Democratic Senate.

The Governor's suggestion, it was said, is for the Board of Estimate to grant franchises, either to the present bus operators individually, or to groups of them organized as corporations, and for the operators then to apply to the Transit Commission for certificates of convenience and necessity.

Mayor Hylan has indicated that he would be strongly opposed to this suggestion and that he would demand the special session of the Legislature and a vote on his bus bill from the same body that defeated the Walker-Donohue transit bill only three months ago. The Mayor would not permit I. Lewis Dreeben, attorney for the bus operators, to speak at a meeting of the Board of Estimate yesterday. He declared that the board would not grant any franchise if he could help it.

Smith Meets Committee Today.

Governor Smith is expected to have a conference with the special committee of the Board of Estimate today. The Mayor, who is Chairman of the committee, will not be present, as he left last night for Ogdensburg to open his campaign for the election of a Democratic Assembly. Before leaving, the Mayor said he knew nothing of Governor Smith's suggestion, and said he had prepared a statement which would explain his position. This statement was an attack upon the certificate of convenience and necessity which the Mayor described as an archaic and oppressive provision of law and "a fortress for the protection of the vested interests just as justice was about to overtake them."

The Governor was reported as saying that, while there might be some chance of getting the Mayor's bus legislation through the Legislature, it was very doubtful and that the probable effect would be the stopping of the buses. While the Governor wishes to avoid a special session, it was believed that he would call one, if his efforts to bring the members of the Board of Estimate to a compromise with the Transit Commission should fail.

The Democratic majority in the Senate is only one, and Senator Salvatore A. Cotillo, a Democrat, is in Italy with little chance of returning in time for a special session, if one should be called. The Democrats, if holding together solidly, would need seven Republican votes in the Assembly to pass the Mayor's bus bill. The five New York City Republican Assemblymen, George N. Jesse, Sol Ullman, Joseph Steinberg, Victor R. Kaufmann and Walter N. Clayton, according to indications and statements made by three of them, would oppose the Mayor's bill and any Republican support needed probably would have to come from up-State.

Cuvillier Attacks Mayor.

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, a Democrat, who already is in a feud with the Hylan Administration in general and Police Commissioner Enright in particular, attacked the Mayor's plan for a special session as "bunk," accused the Mayor of playing politics and declared that all the Mayor had to do to continue bus operation was to grant franchises and ask the Transit Commission for the certificates.

Supreme Court Justice George V. Mullan, whose injunction restraining the operation of the municipally supervised buses was sustained by the Apellate Division and the Court of Appeals, returned yesterday from a vacation at Warrensburg, N. Y., and telephoned Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson that he would be glad to hear a request for a stay of his injunction order, provided Louis Marshall, attorney for Edward Schafer, who brought the injunction action, also appeared.

Justice Mullan waited in his chambers until four o'clock but Mr. Nicholson, having been unable to get in touch with Mr. Marshall, who is out of town, did not appear. Justice Mullan returned to Warrensburg late in the afternoon, leaving Mr. Nicholson his address.

Justice Mullan's injunction order becomes effective when served on the Corporation Counsel, in which case the operation of the busses would be stopped immediately. Although no information could be obtained at Mr. Marshall's office, there evidently was no desire there to take advantage of the situation, but a disposition to give the Administration time to work out a solution of the problem.

MAUGHAN IS FORCED TO QUIT IN WYOMING IN DAYLIGHT RACE BY PLANE TO PACIFIC; OIL TANK LEAK, ONCE FIXED, STARTED AGAIN

He Was Doing 192 Miles an Hour When Compelled to Stop.

IN TROUBLE NEAR CHEYENNE

He Had Hasty Repairs Made There, and "Hopped Off" Again, Hoping Still to Win.

GOT AS FAR AS GREEN RIVER

Special to The New York Times.

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., July 19.—Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan lost his race with the sun and was forced to abandon his dawn-to-dusk flight across the continent when an oil leak compelled him to land here at 5:08 P. M., mountain time, this afternoon. It was only a trivial mechanical defect that beat this speed champion of the air on his second attempt to span the continent between daylight and dark, after he had flown about 1,972 miles of the 2,570 miles from New York to San Francisco.

It was a leak in the oil radiator (the cooling system for the engine's lubricating fluid) that compelled halting the flight. That leak had been repaired in emergency fashion at Cheyenne, but the solder would not hold until the next regular stop. Examination here showed that repairs would take three or four hours, so that Maughan could not have reached San Francisco until long after dark.

Is he beaten for good? That is what every one will want to know about Lieutenant Maughan and his pet project. The answer is no. Only a flat command from his superiors in the Army Air Service could compel him to abandon his determination to get from coast to coast within the light of a single day.

Those who saw him come down here, who observed in what excellent shape he was and how well his plane was behaving except for its single defect and who have talked with him in the hours that he has been the hero of this small town, are filled with confidence in him and satisfied that the Army Air Service will give him a third chance to do it.

The behavior of the plane between Cheyenne and Rock Springs gives ample ground for the belief here that if the temporary repairs made at Cheyenne, where the leak was soldered, had held, Maughan would have brought his plane down on the edge of the Pacific Ocean long before this is written. He was making top speed when first he went flashing over Rock Springs and it was not until he got to Green River and was forced to turn back because the trouble was getting worse that he slowed down a bit. It is about 272 miles by air from Cheyenne here, and though Maughan had to buck a thirty-mile headwind all the way, he spurted over that lap in one hour and thirty-one minutes.

Wants to Try Again.

Lieutenant Maughan himself is disinclined tonight to make any predictions because he fears it may be slightly unethical to express a wish that conceivably might not be in accord with those of his superiors. But when THE TIMES asked him directly if he wanted to try again, he answered:

"Do I want to? What would you want to do? I want to keep on with this job until I've done a good job."

The pilot had no complaint to make. It was hard luck, and he knew it, but he blamed no one, setting the mishap down to one of those mechanical failures that the science of airplane engine building has not yet been able to overcome altogether. It was obvious that he felt no resentment and took no stock in those rumors which were heard in the East after his previous failure that his engine had been tampered with by some jealous person or by some one who bore him ill will and grudged his chance to try the flight under army auspices.

The pilot's descent here was unexpected. He came down on the air-mail field where no preparations had been made to receive him. Indeed, his apearance was a disapointment, because in the clear sunshine he already had gone humming across Rock Springs at terrific speed.

Not knowing that an oil leak had forced him down at Cheyenne, east of here, and that only temporary repairs had been made there, it was assumed that he had cleared for Salduro, Utah, and would not descend until he got there.

It was 4:58 when he first appeared. Two air-mail pilots, idling at the field here until their terms of duty began, sauntered out from the office building, saw him slip over far above them, gave him a cheer that they knew he could not hear, and went back inside.

Ten minutes later they heard the whirring propellers of a circling plane. No air-mail plane was due at the time so they tumbled out again to see who the visitor might be.

It was Maughan again. Swooping down out of the clouds in long, graceful curves that showed that his Curtiss pursuit plane was behaving perfectly, he glided to earth in a faultless landing. He fetched up within a hundred feet of the office building.

A smile on his tired face, he was climbing out of the cockpit by the time the two pilots, Harry Chandler and

Special to The New York Times.

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., July 19.—"Can it be done?" "Is a dawn-to-dusk flight across the American continent possible?" There was a gasp of surprise in Lieutenant Maughan's voice as he repeated these two questions when THE NEW YORK TIMES interviewed him at the Park Hotel here tonight. There was a second of hesitation before he answered—hesitation that obviously was due to a desire to frame an answer sufficiently modest, and most emphatically not to any doubt in the famous pilot's mind.

"Can it be done?" said Lieutenant Maughan a second time. "Why we're almost there right now. It's been demonstrated, hasn't it? There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that the dawn-to-dusk flight across the continent can be done and that it will be done."

There was in his voice none of that weariness which might have been expected in a man who had flown approximately 1,500 miles in a single day, and who had risen before daybreak in order to be ready to hop off and do it.

He was lying on his bed as he talked, but he had been in Rock Springs for several hours had eaten heartily and was resting. Yet sleep still was a thing far from his mind as he meditated how near he had come on his second trial and how sure he felt that he would get there next time.

About that "next time," the Lieutenant was particularly hesitant to talk. He does not forget that he is a soldier and under orders. He was rather inclined to let it go with the assertion that it was "up to Washington," but, pressed for an answer, he said:

"Do I want to try again? What would you want to do if you had tried twice and had come this near?"

"I'd break my neck before I'd quit," the interviewer told him.

"That's the way I feel," answered Lieutenant Maughan. "It's a job I've started on and nobody wants to quit a job until he has done that job well."

The first question in the talk between Lieutenant Maughan and THE TIMES was:

"How are you feeling? How's everything?"

"I feel fine and everything's all right," was his answer. He manifested a far greater interest in the Curtis pursuit plane in which he had made the splendid trip than he did in his own physical condition. There was real enthusiasm in his voice as he said:

"Why, the ship's in wonderfully good shape. It behaved beautifully. We just got in trouble with that oil pipe, that's all. Otherwise she's in fine shape. She'd be ready to fly this minute if it weren't for that little thing.

"I wanted to go on when I got here. But I just couldn't, that's all. But the thing will be fixed tomorrow. It will take only a few hours. Tomorrow we'll be as ready to fly as we were when we landed."

"Are you going on to San Francisco when the plane is repaired?" was the next question.

"That is up to chief of the Air Service [General Patrick] in Washington," was the reply. "Of course you know what I'd like to do?"

"Sure."

"Been to bed?"

"Bed? No. Just lying on it. I'm in good spirits—absolutely good spirits. There's nothing the matter with me. There's nothing the matter with the ship either, that three or four hours won't fix."

"You made a splendid try anyway, and every one will be sorry to hear that a little mechanical failure beat you so near the end," THE TIMES man told him.

"Thanks," was the reply. "I'm all right. And it can be done. Good night! I'm going to bed now."

AUTOMOBILE THIEVES MURDER POLICEMAN

Shoot Sergeant Near Station After Taking Away His Pistol in a Fight.

Calling to a fireman "to look after things for a minute," Sergeant John J. Harrison ran out of the Scarsdale Police Station about 4:30 yesterday morning to investigate an automobile approaching with its "cut out" open. Two minutes later the fireman heard two shots fired in rapid succession. He hurried out and found Harrison lying in the road dead—shot by automobile thieves, his associates believe.

The Sergeant had recorded two thefts of automobiles, and was entering another when the noise of the approaching car interrupted him. Chief of Police Kenison and several policemen and detectives were out looking for the thieves, and Harrison hurried out in a similar quest, first calling to the fireman to watch the station for him.

News of the murder was flashed to all police in Westchester County and New York. A description of a car, which was stolen from Assemblyman Herbert B. Shonk, was furnished, it being the theory of the Scarsdale detectives that the murderers stole Mr. Shonk's car to escape. State police were called, and all highways were

Agree to Take 150 Youths Under Apprenticeship Commission's Plan.

A plan by which the building industry is being supplied with artisans attracted by higher pay from "white collar" or clerical jobs was disclosed yesterday for the first time at a luncheon at the Hotel Plaza at which labor leaders and building employers discussed the shortage of workmen.

The luncheon was arranged by Grosvernor B. Clarkson. The principal spokesmen for the unions were Hugh Frayne, Vice President and General Organizer of the American Federation of Labor, and Peter J. Brady, Chairman of the Committee on Education of the New York State Federation of Labor, and for the employers, Louis Horowitz, President of the Thompson-Starrett Company, and Otto M. Eidlitz, of Marc Eidlitz & Son.

Mr. Frayne said the Executive Council of the Bricklayers' Union of Greater New York had agreed to accept 150 apprentices, thus definitely falling into line with nine other building crafts in support of the program worked out by the Apprenticeship Commission of the New York Building Congress to fill the thinned ranks of workers in the building trades.

The apprenticeship commission is made up of representatives of organized labor, building employes and the public. Its

Jack Sharpnack, reached him. Each stretched him a hand and a second later Maughan was standing on the field beside the plane.

Slowly the smile left his countenance and a look so rueful overspread it that it needed no words to tell of his disgust of the thing, trivial in itself, that had dashed his hopes.

Maughan, ever since the oil leak started, back while he was crossing Nebraska, had had a bad time of it. When he first stepped out of his craft here he was almost reeling with illness. The leaking oil, spilling over the hot engine, had been vaporised, so that steady clouds of the gas were wafted to his nostrils. For hours, except when he got pure air while he was on the field at Cheyenne, he had been breathing the noxious fumes. But soon after he got here and filled his lungs once more with Wyoming's pure, untainted air he recovered and all effects of the sickness passed away.

The weary, disappointed pilot had little to say. That little concerned itself with one subject and one only—he wanted to go on and go on quickly if the Air Mail Service could do anything for him in his extremity.

Sharpnack and Chandler would have done anything in their power, did, indeed, try their best. But that best was only to examine the leaky, oil-smeared radiator, to determine that the leak was so situated that it would be necessary to take the whole radiator off the plane, fix it and put it back. They found it was hard to get at and they knew from experience on their own planes that to try to fix it and fix it right, so that it would be safe, in less than three or four hours was hopeless.

While they bent over the plane, they carried on a desultory conversation with Maughan—a conversation in which Maughan, sensible despite his own keenness to be off and not to forego the attempt, still let it be known that he would abide by the decision of the two fellow-flyers.

Those were anxious, painful seconds, while Chandler and Sharpnack bent over the radiator and Maughan's tired eyes were fixed on their backs. Then the two straightened, turned, and as offhandedly as they could told the army pilot that it was hopeless.

"Three or four hours to fix it and you'd never get over the mountains with things in this shape," was their verdict.

Maughan smiled again, a smile that obviously came hard, then laconically muttered, "It's off," and started straightaway for the office building.

There he sat down, stretching out the legs that had been cramped in the cockpit so much of the day, and told briefly of his start from Mineola at 4:08 Eastern Standard time, of his splendid progress, even though he was a little behind his schedule all the way and had put on a few extra miles by straying off his course. But mostly he listened while his two companions chatted in an effort to hide the chagrin and disappointment that they knew he was feeling.

Carl Krebs, manager of the air mail field arrived at the office building a few minutes after Lieutenant Maughan got there. Mr. Krebs shook hands with the aviator, welcomed him, told of his sorrow at the cause of the surprise visit and offered to do anything that he could.

Then he, too, went out and looked over Maughan's craft. In a minute he came back shaking his head. He was willing to put every resource of the field at the pilot's command, but to take off a radiator, fix a leak and put the thing back was just so much of a job and there was absolutely no hope of doing it in time to make a dawn-to-dusk journey to the Pacific still possible.

As soon as Maughan heard the verdict reaffirmed, he became restless and anxious to be off. Mr. Krebs got his automobile at once and drove the army pilot in to the Park Hotel. There the best available accommodations were promptly set aside for his use. Lieutenant Maughan received good naturedly the congratulations on his good flight thus far and the expression of regret that he had not been able to get all the way. He shook hands with those who crowded about him, seemed to take satisfaction in their interest and their hearty sympathy and patiently awaited until the "reception" was over, before he demanded food.

Special to The New York Times.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 19.—A man in distress, sick physically and spiritually, but with the fire of his courage unquenched, dropped out of the sky into Cheyenne this afternoon, overcome obstacles that would have defeated a less dauntless soul and soared triumphantly back into the sky on an epochal journey. He was Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan, enroute on his dawn-to-dusk airplane flight from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Maughan landed on the air mail field here at 2:30 o'clock (Mountain Time) with oil gushing from two breaks in the lubrication system of his ship, streaming over the hot motor and rising therefrom in a cloud of choking vapor that swept into the face of the aviator. For an hour and a half Maughan had endured that nauseating vapor, yet held true to the course of his flight. His eyes were inflamed, his stomach rebelled, his nerves raw from strain and misery tormented him, yet he made a perfect landing and brought his machine to a standstill within a hundred yards of mechanics awaiting with tools, fuel and oil.

"I fear it's all over. There's something wrong with the oil." Maughan gasped as he feebly dragged himself out of the cockpit and half fell into outstretched arms, to collapse a moment later in the shadow of his ship. Thirty minutes later, rejuvenated by uncontaminated air and relaxation, he was joking with onlookers; fifty-six minutes later, his ship's engine repaired, he made a clean take-off for San Francisco, jauntily waving farewell.

For a few minutes after Maughan's arrival the prospect was that he had spoken truly, that his flight had ended in failure, but skilled mechanics, working feverishly on the sizzling motor, succeeded in staunching the leaks in the oil reservoir and oil cooling system. Maughan meanwhile was too distressed physically to take more than intermittent notice of the progress of their labors. He lay on a strip of canvas beneath a wing of the machine, his arms folded across his face struggling to conquer his nausea. Women sought to press refreshment upon him, but he waived it aside. Acute as was his distress, it did not submerge his sense of humor.

"No, thanks, ladies," he gasped, forcing a wan smile, "I've had an automatic throw-up every ten minutes since dinner."

MAUGHAN STARTING ON HIS FLIGHT.

Announcement, forty-five minutes after the landing that repairs had been completed and continuation of the flight feasible, was magically revifying in its effect on the sick airman. While the mechanics were "winding up" his ship's propeller and experiencing difficulty in obtaining a response from the motor, he exchanaged pleasantries with a close-pressing crowd, and even wrote his autograph on the brim of a straw hat that a woman insistently held before him.

"I can still make it," he said, as the airplane's propeller finally began whirring, and climbed nimbly into the pilot's seat. The propeller's hum rose suddenly to a roar as he advanced the throttle, and there was a wild scrambling in the crowd, smitten by the miniature tornado caused by the whirling blades. Hats flew high into the air; a small boy was lifted by the blast and hurled in a backward somersault; a lane opened in the crowd and along it the airplane rolled with increasing momentum. A moment later its wheels left the ground and, with Maughan waving a hand in farewell, it shot over the hangars and disappeared in the haze that obscured the near-by mountains.

The take-off was made at 3:27 o'clock.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 19.—Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan appeared above Rosecran's Field here at 11:24 o'clock (central time) this morning. A minute later he glided his Curtiss biplane down to a safe landing. At 12:03 o'clock he was on his way again, his plane reserviced and the motor humming smoothly.

Maughan's ship stopped near a gasoline truck, and as he unhooked his life belt and stood up the crowd burst into cheers. Apparently very tired, the Lieutenant slid over the side of his plane into the arms of the Chamber of Commerce Aviation Committee, which had charge of the field. He was escorted to a tent and immediately lay down on a cot. Members of the committee helped remove his flying suit and sweater. He lay motionless, his eyes closed, for several minutes.

Fried chicken, ice cold milk, ice cream and sandwiches were provided for the flier. He ate sparingly of the chicken and the ice cream.

Maughan complained that he could not hear. An ambulance on the field provided cotton, with which he stuffed his ears before getting into his plane. He had lost the cotton from his ears on the flight from Dayton, Ohio.

A few minutes before taking off Maughan requested that the crowd move back so he could get fresh air. He apparently was highly nervous and spoke sharply. Before donning his flying suit he climbed upon the fusilage of his plane and requested the crowds to move back. He asked that motor cars parked on Lake Road be moved so the occupants could not be endangered if his ship should strike the high tension wires over the road.

Maughan's speedometer registered about 155 miles an hour on the flight to St. Joseph, he said. He flew at a height of about 1,000 feet most of the way. Fair weather was experienced all the way, he said, except for the heavy fogs that overhung the valleys before he got to Lancaster, Ohio. He circled above that town several times to get his bearings, he said.

Behind Schedule at Dayton.

DAYTON, Ohio, July 19.—Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan arrived at McCook Field here at 8:35 o'clock, Eastern standard time, on his first leg of a dawn to dusk flight from New York to San Francisco.

After his plane had been refueled and examined thoroughly by mechanicians and the aviator had breakfasted, he took the air at 8:53 o'clock, Eastern standard time, and, after circling the field once for altitude, headed southwest for St. Joseph, Mo.

Lieutenant Maughan was greeted upon his arrival by Commanding Officer McIntosh at McCook Field, and during the refueling and examination of the plane service men stood guard with fire extinguishers ready to smother any flames that might appear, as was the case when Lieutenant Maughan arrived here on July 9 on his first attempt of the dawn to dusk flight.

Lieutenant Maughan covered the 570 miles from Mitchel Field, New York, in 4 hours and 27 minutes. Only eighteen minutes were allowed at McCook Field for refueling the Curtiss pursuit plane.

"I feel much better on this trip than I did on my former attempt," declared Maughan upon landing here.

"My time was not so good, but I played safe. I did not lose the way for a single instant, although heavy haze and fogs were encountered over Pennsylvania.

"In the place of flying a compass or straight course I flew a circuitous one, using familiar landmarks to keep me on the course. This, of course, cut down the time, but I feel it is better to have less speed over the first leg of the flight than to lose the way entirely, as I did the last time.

"My air speed indicator showed only 155 miles an hour for the greater portion of the way between New York and Dayton. I had two objects in view in flying at this rate.

"First, I flew around the usual airways between the two cities, picking up points that I recognized, and, second, if I should have lost the way by flying at this comparatively low speed I was conserving my gasoline supply.

"If I should have lost the route, I figured I would have enough gasoline to take me to McCook Field from any point that I happened to recognize.

"Today's flight from New York was much more satisfactory than the first one. It takes a lot of starch out of a fellow when he loses his way on any kind of a flight, but it is more especially true on a race against time like this one.

"Because of the fact that I was never lost, I suppose it is that I feel so much better both physically and mentally than I did on the first attempt.

"I don't anticipate any great trouble on the balance of the trip from here," as regards keeping the course. The route I have planned readily lends itself to flying with a map course.

"The trouble with the gasoline line has been completely eliminated and with this out of the way and the motor functioning perfectly, I have great hope to complete the trip and take dinner in San Francisco before the sun sets there this evening.

Lieutenant Maughan's attempted dawn to dusk flight to the coast was not born out of a desire of the Air Service to beat Old Sol to the coast, though such an event would not have been unwelcomed, but to test the possibilities of mobilizing an air force at any part of the country on quick notice. As outlined last week by Frank H. Russell, President of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, and Lieutenant Maughan, the adequate aerial defense of the country demanded that planes be prepared to fly to any point in the vast expanses of the United States without delay. Therefore, it was determined to develop a type of pursuit plane which could negotiate great distances with ease and certainty. The Curtiss pursuit plane, which Lieutenant Maughan was chosen to pilot, was the first of this type.

After months of preparation, during which air service pilots mapped the country and meteorological officers made a study of climatic conditions, Lieutenant Maughan announced about July 1 that he would make an attempt to fly to the coast on the first clear day. The weather bureau gave him the word during the early hours of July 9 and at 4 o'clock, Eastern Standard time, he "hopped off." The weather, however, did not coincide with the predictions and the flier, who holds world speed records, encountered heavy fogs over the Alleghanies, losing his bearings. As a consequence he arrived at Dayton, his first stop, more than an hour late. Then followed a clogged gas line which forced him to land near St. Joseph, Mo.

Maughan might have been able to go on, after fixing the trouble, had not a cow got in the way causing him to swerve his machine in such a way as to injure the landing carriage.

"A cow stood in the way of my success," he laughingly told friends later.

Not daunted by his mishap, Maughan obtained the permission of Major General Patrick, chief of the Air Service to make a second attempt. Returning to Mitchel Field, he put in long hours testing out the plane and making changes which he believed would add to his flight.

His schedule for the transcontinental trip, based on eastern standard time, was as follows:

Leave Mitchel Field 4 A. M., arrive Dayton, Ohio, 6:40.
Leave Dayton 7:00 A. M., arrive St. Joseph, Mo., 12:30.
Leave St. Joseph 12:50 A. M., arrive Cheyenne, Wyo., 3:15.
Leave Cheyenne 3:35 P. M., arrive Salduro, Wyo., 6:35.
Leave Salduro 6:55 P. M., arrive the Presidio 11:05.

In yesterday's flight Lieutenant Maughan reached Dayton at 8:35 A. M., Eastern Standard time, and took off again at 8:53, much behind his schedule. He arrived at St. Joseph at 12:25, Eastern Standard time, an hour and ten minutes behind his program. Leaving at 1:03, the flier taxied into the air mail field at Cheyenne, Wyo., at 4:32 P. M., Eastern Standard time. Here he lost almost an hour making repairs, "hopping off" at 5:27.

Lieutenant Maughan's brother officers at Mitchel Field were hopeful that he would reach the Coast before darkness, even though he had lost fourteen minutes of daylight since he made his first flight on July 9. The word that he had come down put a damper on officers who had gathered last night in the Officers' Club at Mitchel Field to drink a dry toast to Lieutenant Maughan in the event that he reached his goal.

STARTED WEST WITH DAWN.

After sleeping little more than four hours, Lieutenant Maughan arose at 3:45 o'clock yesterday morning at Mitchel Field and breakfasted in his quarters with Lieutenant Edwin Johnson, his "buddie," on two ham and egg sandwiches and coffee. Attired in a much worn and soiled khaki flying suit and a leather helmet in which he had cut a series of holes "to let the air in," he appeared at the flying field at 4:35 o'clock, where he anxiously scanned the horizon and read several last-minute weather reports which had been collected by Lieutenant Bertram J. Sherry, meteorological officer, assigned to aid him in his attempt to span the continent in a day.

Cheered by these reports, which indicated good weather along the 2,670-mile airway, Lieutenant Maughan walked to his wasp-like Curtiss pursuit plane, closely guarded by a detail of enlisted men. Then, as day was about to break, he got into the tiny cockpit and started to "tune up" his engine.

A group of thirty-five spectators, mostly newspaper men, were barred by guards from approaching within fifty feet of the plane. No official explanation was offered for this action, but unofficially it was learned that Maughan was puzzled over certain facts which developed during his unsuccessful attempt to cross the continent on July 9. He was in a highly nervous state lest any one not actually identified with his flight should be permitted to come near the plane.

It was learned that when Lieutenant Maughan was forced to come down in his first flight near St. Joseph, Mo., because of a clog in the gas line of his engine he discovered that there was a mass of clogging dust and dirt in his tank, the presence of which was difficult to explain in view of the fact that the fuel had been passed through a double thickness of chamois. He also found in the middle of the strainer the cap of a gasoline can which could hardly have passed through the funnel when the liquid was poured in. In view of these circumstances Maughan, it was said, determined on a policy of watchful carefulness in order that nothing might go wrong. Officers who were unwilling to be quoted revealed that the jealousy between air service fields was so intense that regretable incidents were not unlikely.

When a protest was made over barring the press, officials at the field finally permitted one reporter to approach the plane and watch the proceedings. A representative of the TIMES who was allowed to pass the guards got a first-hand picture of the preliminaries. Jammed in the cockpit of the plane—the machine is only 22 feet long with a wing spread of 32 feet—Lieutenant Maughan carefully speeded up his engine, which presented a weird picture in the early dawn as it belched blue flame and roared so forcefully that it seemed as though the dozen soldiers holding the machine in position would fail in their task.

Suddenly the engine slowed down and Maughan said, "It's all right!" Then he arose in his seat while Lieutenant Johnson placed copies of morning newspapers under him and stored away a small bag containing letters of greeting from Mayor Hylan to Mayor Rolph of San Francisco, from army officials at Mitchel Field and Governors Island to brother officers at the Presidio, San Francisco, and army documents of importance being sent from the East to the West. Always solicitous of his "buddie," Lieutenant Johnson pushed a shirt into Maughan's pocket.

Maughan taxied down the field and rose into the air at 5:08 o'clock, daylight saving time, or 4:08 Eastern Standard time. His plane was soon high in the sky, resembling a tiny wasp as it encircled the field once for altitude and the ntook a westerly course.

DENY DAYTON SOUGHT TO PREVENT FLIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—In the absence of Major Gen. Patrick, head of the Army Air Service, who left Washington late this afternoon for St. Louis it was impossible to obtain any formal statement concerning a report that he had overruled an attempt of the air force officials at Dayton to prevent Lieutenant Russell Maughan from flying back to Mineola on his previous attempt to cross the continent and to prevent him from making a second attemp for transcontinental flight. An officer of the Air Service who is in a position to know the facts said, however:

"It is not true that Dayton was overruled by General Patrick. Any statement to the contrary is based on a misunderstanding of the facts. Dayton was anxious for Lieutenant Maughan to make another attempt at the flight, and Washington felt the same way about it. Dayton at first recommended that Maughan be authorized to make the second attempt. We talked the matter over with Dayton, and said all right, but it was agreed that it would be better to wait until Maughan and his plane got back from the scene of the accident that interrupted his previous flight.

"When the plane was brought back it was found damaged more than had been expected and there was some doubt as to whether it could be put into shape in time for a second attempt this year. Dayton asked us to hold up the matter until the engineering experts ascertain whether the plane could be put into proper condition. That perfectly proper request was approved by Washington.

"If the engineers had reported the plane could not have been put into condition within a month, Maughan's flight would have been abandoned. Time was a most important element in the case. A month hence the days will be too short to permit transcontinental dawn-to-dusk flight. The engineering experts went over the plane and found it could be put into shape for a second flight.

"After the plane was reported all right by the engineers Dayton recommended that Maughan be allowed to try again. Washington answered that since the plane had been reported 'O. K.' Maughan would be allowed to make the flight if found physically fit for the feat. Maughan has been doing wonderful work, but he has been under a severe physical strain. Washington did not care to have him make this second attempt—even if the plane were ready—unless he himself was in good physical condition.

"Washington sent a telegram to Dayton authorizing Maughan to make the flight, provided the flight surgeon found him in proper physical condition. It is not true that Maughan telephoned to General Patrick and obtained verbal permission over the telephone. Maughan did telepohne to General Patrick's aids and asked: 'What about the flight?'

"General Patrick's aid replied to Maughan over the telephone that a telegram had already been sent saying he could make the flight if the flight surgeon found him in proper physical condition. That's all there is to that end of the story."

With respect to stories crediting Maughan with saying that his engine was "tampered" with on a previous flight, an Air Service officer who has been in close touch with plans for both the first and second flights doubted that Maughan had made such a statement. On the first flight Maughan found the gasoline filter clogged with dirt. As to this an official of the Air Service said tonight:

"We never put gasoline into tanks under pressure for ordinary flights. But time is so important an element in the dawn to dusk trans-continental flight that the gasoline used had to be put under pressure. For the first flight a 'new' chamois skin gasoline filter was used.

"In forcing the gas through new chamois under pressure the lint of the chamois comes off and this is what caused the clogging. That was one of the important lessons learned on Maughan's first flight. New chamois was not used for the second flight. Lint does not come off of old chamois when gas is put through it under pressure. So old chamois was used on the present flight. Maughan knows all about this. He saw it done."

BOOTLEGGER KILLED IN PISTOL BATTLE

the 125th Street corner, a detective gave sharp command to the driver of the other car and it shot forward, crowding the first driver so near to the curb that he was unable to turn.

With the cab thus pinned, the detectives leaped from their own vehicle and ran forward as they appeared at the door of the forward car, the window of which was down, one of them said:

"Who are you?" asked a man inside.

"Detectives," was the reply.

"What do you want?"

"Get out and you'll see."

A hand inside swung the door open. Apparently perfectly pacific and making not the least warlike gesture the men came piling out, Antico in the lead. But as Antico's foot touched the pavement he snatched a pistol from somewhere and fired point blank.

Sullivan fell like a log, but as he went down, his hand, already on his pistol, found just enough strength to pull the weapon and fire. His arm was weak, but the trigger finger twitched three times and three bullets sped toward the group that was then leaping at his companion from every direction.

More pistols came into play, others in the taxicab taking advantage of the momentary diversion as Antico fired, to get their own pistols out and working. King got into action as Sullivan fell. His pistol was emptied in quick time and Antico lay at his feet, but whether it was a bullet from his weapon or one from Sullivan's that ended the man's career has not been determined.

Operate on Detectives.

On a trolley car, bound for the West [illegible] Street Police Station to report for tour, was Patrolman James Hannigan. He heard the shots, and the rapping of clubs and shrilling of whistles as policemen for blocks around spread the alarm, and started to mobilize on the scene of action. Hannigan had drawn his gun by the time he had leaped from the car. He saw men with pistols in their hands, running away, yet turning now and again long enough for the pistols in their hands to flash in the dark.

Hannigan's first impulse was to pursue, but he saw that by then other policemen had run up and were taking after the fugitives, so he turned his attention to the casualties. He bent over Sullivan, who lay in the street just around the corner from Lenox Avenue, and learned that he was a detective. A hurried examination of Sullivan's weapon told Hannigan that he had fired three times. King had crumpled up a few feet from where his partner lay. Next he examined Antico. Fearing that all three men were too badly hurt to risk the delay of an ambulance call, Hannigan shouted to the drivers of three taxicabs parked near the corner. With the aid of bystanders he lifted the three men into cabs. Other policemen joined him and they made a fast run to the hospital. Antico was pronounced dead. Sullivan and King were rushed to the operating room and the surgical staff began a fight to save their lives—a fight which, in the case of Sullivan, at least, they feared would be vain.

Policemen of the West 123d Street Station who took up the pursuit while Hannigan busied himself with the injured took to the hospital four men whose names were not made public.

Deputy Chief Inspector Dominick Henry, who was among the high officials who took charge of the investigation, examined them for hours in the hospital and later took them to the police station for further questioning, using a stenographer to record every question and answer and taking the suspects minutely over every movement they asserted they had made throughout the night, as well as examining them searchingly as to their occupations, interests and associations.

Neither of the wounded detectives was able to give an account of what happened and the police were somewhat puzzled by a version differing from that of the majority of witnesses who were gathered in, told by a woman. That woman, Mrs. Annie Rennie of 344 Lenox Avenue, came to the hospital and identified Antico as a man she had seen walking with the detectives and who, she said, lived in the neighborhood and was known as "Nifty." She said she did not see any of the men get out of taxicabs and was positive that the fight started as the group of detectives and suspects were walking past her house, when Antico suddenly opened fire, the detectives replied, and Antico's companions joined in the shooting.

LIQUOR TRUCK WRECKED.

Dozen Policemen Keep Thirsty Crowd From Leaking Cargo.

Scores of automobilists, attracted by the odor of whisky, paused last night to inspect an overturned truck at Mott Avenue an d158th Street. It required constant alertness on the part of a dozen policemen to see that the forty-three cases of whisky, many of which suffered from leakage, were not carried off.

The wreck occurred when the truck, operated by John M. Joyce of 354 West Eighteenth Street, crashed into a touring car driven by Charles Reilly of 2,006 Lexington Avenue. With Reilly was Miss Frances Dunio, 23 years old, of 1,857 Washington Avenue, Bronx. The touring car was hurled twenty feet, but remained upright. Both Reilly and Miss Dunio, however, were shaken up and had to be attended by an ambulance physician.

Joyce and two companions, Charles Hoffman, 30 years old, of 177 East 101st Street, and Patrick Reilly, 43 years old, of 331 East Thirty-fifth Street, were taken to Morrisania police station where they produced a license to transfer the liquor, which was for medicinal purposes. But the license stated that it was not to be transported after dark, and the three men were held. An additional charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated was placed against Joyce.

DROWNS IN PLUNGE OF CONDEMNED PLANE

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., July 19.—When Lieutenant Caldwell S. Phillips hopped off from Boston's new air field late today in a condemned, ten-year-old army plane, John Stephens, its owner, ran along the ground and jumped on the right wing. There he rode until 500 feet in the air, when he slid into the seat with the pilot.

Scarcely a moment later a sharp turn caused the plane's right wing to collapse and, like a withered leaf, the machine fluttered and spun into the harbor off the Jefferies Point Yacht club house.

Stephens, whose home is in St. Johnsbury, Vt., was drowned, despite the efforts of Phillips to save him. Phillips escaped with a broken leg and shoulder. He was taken to a hospital. He is 29 years old, and a member of the Army Reserves. His home is in Holden, Maine.

The plane, according to the unanimous opinion of army officers, was in no condition to fly. Stephens had used it for commercial purposes and at fairs and circuses, where he did trick flying.

Phillips had attempted a sharp turn. Before it was completed, the right wing collapsed and the plane tipped dizzily to one side. Phillips used all his controls and every trick in his flying trade to right the machine, but it veered unsteadily from side to side as it descended.

Finally the plane dived into a spin and its descent became more rapid.

Only ten feet from the surface of the water the pilot, with a supreme effort, succeeded in righting the machine and it struck the water in a level position. Phillips collapsed, but the water revived him, and freeing himself from his straps he paddled about until he saw Stephens under the wreckage.

Phillips seized him around the neck and crawled on one of the wings. Stephens was gasping and there was a deep gash over one of his eyes.

The weight of the two men was too much for the frail wing and it was only a moment before it sank. The gritty pilot started to swim to shore, but he became unconscious and lost his grip on Stephens.

Two men who put out in a motor boat from the South Boston shore, pulled Phillips from the water and then started search for Stephens.

DEMOCRATS QUIZ FORD.

Make Dearborn Visits to Smoke Him Out on Issues.

DETROIT, July 19.—Several Democrats who have been prominent in national politics have made pilgrimages to the Dearborn home of Henry Ford in the last few weeks, according to former Judge William F. Connelly, Democratic National Committeeman for Michigan.

He made this statement when asked about reports that attempts were being made by Democratic leaders to ascertain where Ford stood on national issues and how loyal he would be to the party if he were supported for the Presidential nomination.

Andrew C. Baird, Democratic Chairman for Wayne County (Detroit), said he was not surprised at the visits to Dearborn by Democrats from other States but professed ignorance concerning their purpose.

Non-Partisan League Paper Quits.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 19.—The National Non-Partisan League lost another publication yesterday when it announced in the current issue of The National Leader, official organ of the League, that the paper had been forced to suspend because of financial difficulties. The Leader, in an editorial explaining the reason for its suspension, says that collection of membership fees in the league by the state organizations instead of by the national body, cut off its funds and that there was no money available for operating the paper.

PLEA TO HUGHES FOR RUSSIA

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 19. — Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Progressive Republican of Iowa, who has just returned from abroad, appeared today in a double rôle as counselor to the Administration.

In the absence of President Harding he sought Secretary Hughes and urged him to exert his influence with the President to call a special session of Congress to aid the farmers. At the same time he pleaded with Mr. Hughes to change his attitude on Russia and recognize the Soviet Government.

Before he did this Mr. Brookhart told reporters that the radicals would prevent the conservative Republicans from organizing Congress unless something was done in a special session for the farmers. He also gave his views on the political situation, insisting that Judge Kenyon of Iowa, the father of the farm bloc, was the outstanding figure in the Presidential race who would satisfy the disgruntled elements and move the Republican ship forward out of the present slough.

Some of the avowed aspirants for the White House do not appeal to this progressive who arrived in the November upheaval of 1922. Henry Ford, he says, was "a very benevolent autocrat;" McAdoo a "poser as a progressive," and President Harding and Senator Underwood representing the same ideas in Government and economically, should be the candidates for the Presidency and Vice Presidency on the same ticket.

Says Party Lines Are Breaking.

"My observation is that there is a radical change taking place in the United States politically," Mr. Brookhart said. "People are not being held by party lines and they are out fighting for their rights. This accounts for the reverses in November last and for upheavals subsequent.

"This progressive movement is going to sweep the whole country. It has just started and is more deep-seated than in 1912. It is the same in New Hampshire, where farmers are forced to sell their milk for 5 cents a quart, as in Iowa and other Western States, where their barns are plastered with notices of mortgage sales. North, East, South and West you will find it spreading.

"Copeland was elected in New York because he had found out about the farming situation. I have been among his constituents and I know. He saw what they needed and started out to advocate it. In addition to the strength he had in the cities he had what the farmers needed and they elected him."

Painting the portraits of Presidential possibilities and impossibilities, Mr. Brookhart drew his brush thus:

"They tell me that McAdoo is a poser as a progressive. He cannot win. Ford—there are a lot of things about him I like, but there is some autocracy about him that I am a little shy of. No reactionary candidate can defeat Ford if nominated, but a good strong progressive candidate will win; such is Judge Kenyon.

"If McAdoo is nominated I don't think he would have much of a shance against Harding. I don't think that either would have a chance against a real progressive. Harding and Underwood are the same type and should be on the same ticket as candidates for President and Vice President."

Wants Harding's Return Hastened.

Senator Brookhart said that President Harding ought to come back from Alaska earlier than September and call Congress in special session to pass legislation to help the farmers.

"Unless this is done the agricultural and progressive group in Congress will prevent the organization of Congress by the conservative Republicans," he declared.

"How will you do this—by combination with the Democrats?" was asked.

"We will find a way," he replied. "The only way is by such a combination.

"If we are going to help the farmers at all, Congress must take charge, through some Government agency, of the marketing of the big crops that are coming. There should be an appropriation by Congress of Government funds to purchase, if necessary, the staple crops of the entire country and market them. The entire wheat crop, corn crop, cotton crop, &c., should be handled in this way. Legislation should provide a minimum price for these products to be bid by the Government.

"There should be a high tariff wall erected to keep out food products from abroad. The millers and the middlemen would have to purchase the farm products then either from the farmers or from the Government. I believe that as soon as they recognized that this was the case they would buy direct from the farmers and that the Government would have to handle comparatively little of the crops in question.

"This would be an emergency measure intended to meet the situation brought about by the huge crops expected in this country. Eventually a farmer's co-operative organization should be formed to handle the crops. It might take a year or two to form such an organization, and in the meantime the Government should be ready to act. But we must act quickly now, if at all. The legislation enacted during the last session will not meet the situation at all."

Senator Brookhart said that the United States could contribute much toward clearing up the European situation by recognizing Russia.

"There will be no general revival of world affairs until the difficulties between France and Germany are settled," he said. "I believe that such a settlement can best be arrived at through Russia. The French apparently fear a combination of the Germans and Russians. While I was in Russia I discussed this matter with the Russians. I found that, with the opening of the Dardanelles through the Lausanne treaty, the Russians are inclined to be as friendly with the French as with the Germans. If our recognition of Russia would encourage France to similar action much would be accomplished."

Senator Brookhart said that the present Russian Government was stable, and therefore it should be recognized, not because he believed in many of its principles, but because such recognition would tend to stabilize Europe.

After he had laid his views on Russia and the special session before Secretary Hughes, Senator Brookhart declined to say how his suggestions had been received. It is known that he did not succeed in influencing the Secretary to abandon the present policy toward Russia.

WASHINGTON, July 19 (Associated Press).—Senator Brookhart today staked his reputation as a political prognosticator on the prophecy that President Harding's renomination would mean a third party.

"Should President Harding be nominated and the Democrats select a conservative as their candidate," he said, "there would be a third party in the field headed by Senator La Follette. The people do not want another conservative for President."

DES MOINES, July 19.—Senator Brookhart's suggestion for an extra session of Congress will not alleviate the farm situation, State Secretary of Agriculture Raymond Cassidy said today.

"There is only one thing I know that will relieve the situation," he said, "and that is the arbitrary fixing of the price of wheat.

"The Grain Marketing act, passed by Congress and put in effect by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, probably is the last word in the Congressional effort to effect an equilibrium between production and price."

MEMORIAL TO RECORD ALL WORLD WAR DEAD

Names of 84,324 Heroes Already Placed in Allied Centre Vault at Oakland, Cal.

OAKLAND, Cal., July 17. (Associated Press).—Names of 84,324 heroes who died in the World War today repose in a vault in the Allied Memorial Centre here. The memorial, a majestic monument of steel and stone, was erected on the banks of Lake Merritt, in the heart of Oakland, for the purpose of holding the names of every allied soldier, sailor or nurse killed in the World War.

Dr. Leroy F. Herrick of Oakland, who erected and maintains the memorial at his own expense, states that in time he hopes to have the names of every participant of the World War.

"I planned and since 1919 have carried out my plan of holding patriotic services for the depositing of names on each Memorial Day and each Armistice Day," said Dr. Herrick. "However, I do not want to keep the entire Canadian list out of the vault until next Nov. 11, and I am going to break the rule of procedure this once.

"I do not know how long it is going to take me to get the names of the 1,500,000 soldier dead of France. The French war authorities have not finished compiling its list. I expect to have the Australian and New Zealand lists in time for next Armistice Day, but I do not know how long it will take to get complete lists from England, Belgium, Italy and other Allies.

"The names in the vault today are all American, with the exception of 145 of Brazil's war dead."

SON, GAMBLING, LOSES; OHIO GOVERNOR ACTS

Crusade Against Petty Games of Chance Follows Boy's Adventure With Baseball Pool.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 19.—Several weeks ago Governor Donahey discovered that one of his small sons had lost his weekly allowance of money in a baseball pool conducted in a cigar store.

Immediate announcement was made by the chief executive that this and other forms of petty gambling must stop in Ohio. Since that time, more than a dozen Mayors and Sheriffs have been ordered to put an end to gambling or "get off the job." The Mayor of Massillon was removed following charges.

In a letter to Paul M. Lamb, law director of Cleveland, the Governor yesterday announced receipt of many complaints that slot machines which vend gum and, in some instances, negotiable metal chips, are being operated in Cleveland. The Governor asked Mr. Lamb for a copy of an opinion said to hold such slot machines legal, which the law director is alleged to have given Mayor Kohler recently.

The Governor told newspaper men he would take no action in the Cleveland case until a reply had been received from Mr. Lamb.

Mrs. Hopkins Alleges Slander in Action Against J. Fleischman.

Mrs. Dorothy N. Hopkins, whose husband, Robert Thompson Hopkins, some weeks ago filed a $500,000 alienation suit against Joseph Fleischman, proprietor of Fleischman's Baths at 47 West Forty-second Street, yesterday served papers on Mr. Fleischman in a $500,000 suit for alleged slander. The suit, she said, is being brought to clear her name of false charges which she says were made against her by the bath owner.

"This suit is a welcome one," said Mr. Fleischman last night at his office. "It will give me the opportunity to get the wife of Robert Thompson Hopkins into court at an early date."

Fire Destroys Medici Heirlooms.

BOSTON, July 19.—A number of fourteenth century etchings and heirlooms of the Medici family of Florence were destroyed by fire today in the home of Colonel Edward H. Eldredge on Beacon Hill. The etchings, framed in rare Florentine glass, were said to be of great value. With a large hand-painted Venetian chest, which was also destroyed, the etchings were brought from Italy recently by Mrs. Eldredge, who before her marriage was Cressida Di Midici.

PRESIDENT JOVIAL ON WALK IN SEWARD

dent stopped to talk with children, many of whom recognized him.

"What's your name?" was his usual question to each child. Two children, a sister and a brother, told him their names were Constance and Jerrold.

"Constance, that's a beautiful name," he remarked.

A girl of 12 ran out of her home and got the President to pose for a photograph. When she had done this he asked her name and found it was Beulah.

"I like the name Beulah," he said. "I've got a cousin of that name and I'm going to see her when we get to Los Angeles."

"Come over here and see some game trophies," he said.

The trophies, the heads of mountain sheep, caribou and other animals, were in the office of the hotel kept by George Sexton, who told the President the history of them. Louis, a 4-year-old cyclone, with a pencil tucked behind his ear, which he exhibited proudly, got another pencil from the President.

"He's going to be a business man," the President commented.

Most of the Seward houses are built of wood and stucco. The President likes the stucco ones. He spoke of the attractiveness of the log houses at Fairbanks, where he spent Sunday and Monday. He was particularly impressed by the architecture of the log house of Mayor Marquam of Fairbanks. "You know," he said to those who accompanied him on the stroll, "there are only two classes of houses suitable for this country—log and stucco. I like them."

Harding Visits Valdez and Goes On.

ABOARD THE HENDERSON, WITH PRESIDENT HARDING, July 19 (Associated Press).—President Harding and his party arrived at Valdez today and are voyaging to Cordova and Sitka.

Mrs. Harding did not come ashore when the President visited Valdez, but remained on the Henderson, continuing a program of rest that she has followed since she left Fairbanks. Her physicians said that she was responding favorably to treatment.

DUTCH IN A FLURRY OVER NAVY PROGRAM

CABINET TO RUSH BILL

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, July 19.—The resignation of the Minister of Finance, Jonkheer de Geer, who came into office as a representative of national economy, is looked upon as a grave incident in Government circles.

De Geer resigned because he could not agree with the Cabinet to present the Naval bill immediately after the present recess of Parliament in order that it might take effect in January, 1924, without fail, as the naval program, which has for its chief aim the defense of the Dutch East Indies, has been under discussion for eighteen months or more and has been continually postponed owing to the expense involved. A special commission appointed to examine the bill finally pronounced it the minimum which was possible for the defense of Holland and her colonies.

The measure has met with great opposition in Parliament, especially from the left wing, chiefly owing to the present difficulty in meeting the budget and the necessity of stringent economy in all departments, on which Minister de Geer insisted.

What has happened, the Dutch press is asking, that the Naval bill must now be rushed through in such haste when it had been agreed to postpone the whole question owing to the impossibility of meeting the expenditure, and why should one of Holland's most valuable Ministers be sacrificed in this adventure? Why should the Government suddenly change its policy in this respect?

The Nieuwe Courant puts the question in this way: "What has become known or supposed that the Cabinet, which was apparently harmonious, has now changed its mind in opposition to one of its members?" The paper says that the matter must have been earnestly considered before the Cabinet took its decision, which it was aware meant the resignation of the Minister of Finance.

"Therefore, we repeat," it proceeds, "what has happened, what has become known? Is it possible that behind this crisis lurks the nightmare of a menaced Dutch Indies? Is there something more than a question of a normally permissible expenditure? Have international politics in regard to the seas surrounding East Asia caused it to be felt that the Netherlands Government must no longer restrain preparations for the defense of our big overseas possessions, without which the future of the Netherlands would be very gloomy, or is the Government reckoning with the possibility that an undefended Dutch Indies or an India defended by another power would mean a partly lost Dutch Indies?"

The press in general take the view that the Government must have serious reasons if in spite of the opposition of a majority of the people to the naval program it has decided to bring the project suddenly before Parliament, thereby revoking its decision of seven months ago and sacrificing a Minister. A representative comment is:—

"We suppose that serious decisions lie behind this crisis and know that many experts outside the Government and the navy have for some time considered the question of the defense of the Netherlands' most vital interest, namely, the East Indies, as very serious. We look upon the resignation of de Geer as a symptom of great importance in the question of Holland's national and international policy."

The Handelsblad points to the serious conflict in the Cabinet over the question of national economy. The Minister of Finance, it says, maintained that everything must go down before the great necessity of national economy, even Holland's defense and that of the Indies, but the rest of the Cabinet was evidently of the opinion that the fleet program was so urgent that it must be put in effect in January.

DANZIG TO ESTABLISH NEW CURRENCY SYSTEM

One Independent of Germany Is Expected to Be Put in Operation Soon.

DANZIG, July 19.—Preparations are being made for the establishment as soon as possible of the Danzig Free City's new independent currency system, to replace the present one, of which the German mark is the unit.

It is understood that the Finance Commission of the League of Nations has unanimously approved the plan. The Danzig Senate has given its authorization, as has the Executive Board of the Volkstag, conditional only on the attitude the political parties may still take.

The gulden, which equals 100 heller, will be worth about 4.764 American cents, and will be almost the same size as the American nickel. In the new silver coinage the gross weight of one gram for every five gulden will prevail.

The new bank, which will be authorized to issue paper money, will be under State supervision, but will not have the character of a State institution. In order to guard against inflation, it will not be burdened with the monetary needs of the State or the various communities.

It will originally be permitted to place in circulation paper currency amounting to 500 gulden per capita, or about 180,000,000 gulden. One-third of this must be covered by a note reserve existing in gold, in English pound notes or in pound credits, due daily. The other two-thirds must be covered by several fold guaranteed bills of exchange.

The bank of issue will for the present be free from direct taxation. If it finds itself able to issue in excess of the usual 500 gulden per capita, on account of greater available reserves, a 5 per cent. note tax will be collected on all notes issued over the stipulated per capita allowance. Two-thirds of the bank's surplus profits must be paid to the State after a 4 per cent. net profit has been distributed for its own purposes.

A branch will be established in London for handling Danzig checks. For three days immediately after the new reform becomes effective outstanding obligations handled in Danzig may be paid either in German marks or in gulden; thereafter, payment in marks may be refused.

STEALS BONE OF ST. MARTIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 19.—Consternation spread among the faithful who this morning attended early mass at the little thirteenth centry Church of St. Nicholas des Champs when it became known that a thief had stolen a famous relic, one of St. Martin's bones, which had been preserved there ever since St. Martin's own chapel was dismantled to become the Library of Arts and Crafts Museum.

The reliquary had been broken open and the precious bone with its wrought brass mounting had been wrenched from its place. From the neighboring Chapel of the Virgin ex votos in the form of brass hearts have also disappeared.

None of these objects having anything but the smallest intrinsic value, the motive for the theft is mysterious, the police inclining to the theory that the perpetrator is a victim of religious mania.

VERA CRUZ TENANTS RIOT.

Ten Persons Hurt in Battle With Police in Streets.

VERA CRUZ, July 19.—Ten persons, including two policemen, were wounded yesterday in a street battle between police and members of the Red Union of Revolutionary Tenants who refused to pay rent.

The trouble had its inception partly in an attempt by the tenants to haul down the flag of the republic which a landlord had hoisted over his building. When the police started to take the troublemakers to jail the tenants left behind began to shoot and throw stones, bringing down three of the police from their horses.

BRITISH DECIDE SHIP LIQUOR PLAN

But Baldwin Withholds Statement on Policy Favored by Committee.

CONSIDER SMUGGLING CURB

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 19.—In the House of Commons today Captain Benn asked whether the committee which was considering the question of intoxicating liquor in British ships in American ports had yet reported, and whether it was the policy of the Government to come to some fair temporary understanding with the United States to increase the powers of American authorities against smugglers outside the three-mile limit.

Prime Minister Baldwin replied:

"The answer to the first part of your question is in the affirmative, but I cannot at this stage make any statement as to the line of policy his Majesty's Government may ultimately decide upon."

Mr. Baldwin did not make any statement when Captain Benn asked if it might not be taken that the British Government would do its best to assist the American Government in putting down the smuggling business.

Mr. Shakespeare asked if the Prime Minister was aware that the ship owners were complaining that the customs officers have to be shown a bottle of whisky in order to prove that there is absolutely no liquor aboard a ship.

Mr. Baldwin replied that he was not aware of that.

Ronald McNeill, Under Secreary to the Foreign Office, replying to a question by Duncan Millar as to the granting of clearance papers to notorious rum smugglers said:

"The suggestion that the issue of clearance papers might be controlled was contained in a note received from the United States Government about a year ago. His Majesty's Government were then as they are now without power to give effect to this suggestion under the existing law which does not either in the United Kingdom or in the West Indies authorize the refusal of clearance papers on the grounds that the vessel concerned is believed to be engaged in the liquor traffic."

Mr. Millar then asked if Mr. McNeill was prepared to take steps to amend the law so that Britain could give effect to the desire of the United States Government.

Sir R. Chadwick asked: "Is the British Government prepared to do everything to prevent the breaking of American laws by British interests, which is a fruitful source of the unrest that is undesirable between the two great nations?"

Viscount Curzon asked if Mr. McNeill was aware "that only two days ago a hundred cases of rye whisky were shipped to this country by a Cunard liner from America?"

Mr. McNeill replied: "I cannot say whether His Majesty's Government will undertake legislation. The Prime Minister and the Government are fully aware of the desirability of doing everything in their power to dissociate themselves from these actions. There are the greatest difficulties, but the whole matter is being carefully considered to see what can be done."

Marines Entrain for Belleau Wood.

CHERBOURG, July 19.—Three officers, sixty marines, and the ship's band landed from the United States cruiser Pittsburgh today and entrained for the old battlefront in Northern France. They will take part on Sunday in the ceremonies for the dedication of Belleau Wood as a national monument to the American troops who took part in the final Allied campaign in 1918.

Secretary Davis Going to the Ruhr

BERLIN, June 19 (Associated Press).—James J. Davis, the American Secretary of Labor, who is touring Europe and the Orient to study world emigration problems at first hand, returned to Berlin today from Warsaw and prepared to leave for Prague and Vienna. He will spend several days later in the Ruhr visiting mines, smelters and factories as he is particularly interested in the economic aspects of the Ruhr situation.

WILL ASK CHINA TO PAY A TRIFLING INDEMNITY

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PEKING, July 19.—The Diplomatic Corps met today to consider the recommendations of committees reporting on reparations for kidnapping by Chinese bandits last May of a number of foreigners who were held for ransom. Unless unexpected objections are raised by the home Governments a note will be presented to the Chinese immediately, demanding:

1. The punishment of the Tuchun of Shantung and all officials responsible for permitting the outrage to occur.
2. An indemnity of $8,000, Mexican [$4,000 in American currency].
3. The organization of a guard on the principal railways under foreign supervision.

The recommendations are such as will meet Chinese acceptance, but they will arouse indignation among the captives, many of whom had expected substantial damages. General Munthe, a Norwegian officer, will probably head the railway police, with Chinese assistants.

Feng Yuh-Siang, "the Christian general," has been rewarded for his expulsion of President Li Yuan-Hung by being made a super-Tuchun, commanding Mongolia and Sinkiang, with an increased army.

COSGRAVE TO GO TO GENEVA.

Irish President Will Probably Head Delegation to League.

GENEVA, July 19 (Associated Press).—President Cosgrave, with a strong delegation from the Irish Free State, will probably come to Geneva for the annual meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations in September, when the Free State is expected to be elected a member of the League. This announcement was made today by Michael MacWhite, permanent representative of the Free State here.

"Rest assured that Ireland will have her own independent program toward the League," said Mr. MacWhite. "We are not tied up with other European nations as most of the members of the League are, and we feel by our very independence that we can do good."

Ireland wants international help, he continued. Her opportunity for economic development and prosperity is dependent upon a settlement of Europe's woes, hence Dublin's keen interest in a solution of the reparation problem.

Mr. MacWhite declared the Irish delegation would throw its weight on the side of international co-operation through the League. The world need have no fear, he added, that Ireland's admission would mean another vote in the Assembly for England.

Speaking of diplomatic relationships, the Free State envoy said the dispatch of a minister or ambassador from Dublin to Washington was a prominent item on the agenda of his Government, but that it was too early to discuss the details of the project.

GUARD 'BLACK HOLE' PILLAR

CALCUTTA, July 19 (Associated Press).—Repeated attempts to mutilate and destroy the "Black Hole" monument here have resulted in numerous conflicts between the police and nationalist volunteers.

The monument, a large pillar, was erected in memory of 117 employes of the British East India Company who lost their lives in 1756—smothered to death in the famous "Black Hole," a room eighteen feet square, into which 146 prisoners had been thrust by Surajah Dowlah, a Bengali ruler.

Three of those who tried to damage the monument were sent to jail for one year after they had admitted in court that they were determined to demolish the pillar, and other offenders are in prison awaiting trial. One of the latter, a youth of 19, came all the way from Narna Guzerat, but was intercepted.

The attempted mutilations have been made by individuals apparently working on their own initiative. In each case they carried a flag and a hammer. Representatives of both the Calcutta Khalifat Committee and the local Congress committee disclaim any connection with the outrages. A large force of armed police now guard the monument day and night.

AWAIT JURY REPORT ON ANDERSON TODAY

CALLS BANTON 'WEAK TOOL'

Even if Indicted, Anti-Saloon Leader Says He Will Bare Alleged Political Conspiracy.

The Additional Grand Jury yesterday finished its inquiry into allegations of grand larceny, forgery and extortion against William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League. It was said the jury would vote on its findings today and then report to Judge McIntyre in General Sessions.

Miss Eleanor Fitch, confidential stenographer to District Attorney Banton, was the only witness called yesterday. She, with Miss Marie O'Donnell, another stenographer in the prosecutor's office, took notes on Mr. Anderson's statement to Chief Assistant District Attorney Pecora last January in the preliminary investigation of the charges made against Mr. Anderson by O. Bertsall Phillips, formerly financial representative of the league.

Mr. Anderson announced the day before that B. H. Fancher, Vice President of the Fifth Avenue Bank and Treasurer of the league, would be available as a witness for him, but Mr. Fancher was not called. He testified at the first Grand Jury inquiry into the Phillips charges last January.

Mr. Anderson issued another statement charging that action of District Attorney Banton in placing the Phillips charges before the Grand Jury was part of a scheme to make Governor Smith President. He referred to the prosecutor as the "weak tool of Tammany, which gave him the office because it thought it could use him on account of his church affiliations and supposed prohibition views."

"I presume," he added, "that Mr. Banton meant fairly well when he entered the District Attorney's office, but his intentinons were too feeble against the power of Tammany."

Repeating that he did not expect the Governor would supersede Mr. Banton in the handling of the Phillips charges, Mr. Anderson said he merely wanted to put on record an offer to the Governor "of a chance to go through, at least, the form of fairness. His silence is a confession of his fear of what I can deliver."

"The Governor's failure to act," Mr. Anderson continued, "also removes the real responsibility from Mr. Banton, the tool, to himself as the real power in Tammany today. The Governor evidently realized that this was the last chance to indict me."

Charging there were indications that "orders have been given from the highest quarter not to stop at anything," Mr. Anderson said, even if an indictment were returned, it would not have the "slightest effect in silencing me respecting the real motive and object behind this conspiracy."

INSTRUCTED TO LIBEL FOREIGN SHIPS' LIQUOR

Hayward Is Told to Seek Confiscation Under Tariff or Revenue Acts.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Department of Justice officials said today that libel suits would be filed soon in the New York Federal Courts by District Attorney Hayward to confiscate the liquors seized recently from foreign liners.

Instructions have gone forward from Assistant Attorney General Willbrandt to Mr. Hayward with advice to limit the present proceedings, at least, to confiscation of the liquor. In future violations of the Supreme Court decision occur, the Government is said to be prepared to pursue a more vigorous policy.

It is said to be the intention to make the action to some extent a test of the new policy. For this reason the confiscation suit probably will be brought under the Tariff act, or possibly under one of the old revenue statutes providing for Government confiscation of contraband imports. Should the proceeding be based on the prohibition statutes, officials say, it would be mandatory to confiscate also the ships bringing in the liquor and take criminal action against their masters.

In view of the cessation of attempts by foreign ships to bring in liquor the department is not disposed to resort to the more drastic law.

MUSSOLINI MEETS BIG FASCISTI CHIEFS

ROME, July 19.—"The new Italy is daily showing herself ready to fulfill, and worthy of fulfilling her high destinies," said Premier Mussolini today, after a meeting of all the leaders of Fascismo throughout the country.

At this meeting each of the representatives presented testimony to show the widespread influence exerted by the Fascista movement, and the strength of its organization emphasizing the discipline that prevailed and the spirit of sacrifice that was shown by its readiness to undertake the most unpleasant tasks and even when necessary to punish its own followers.

As proof of this the case of Captain Padovani, the Naples Fascista leader, who was expelled from the organization because he showed a rebellious attitude, was pointed to by spokesmen, and a similar case has just occurred here. Deputy Farinacci, one of the most energetic champions of Fascismo, has received full powers to deal with any problem relating to the organization in Rome and the Roman Province. Simultaneously Signor Calzabini, who had been the most powerful Fascista leader in the capital, was expelled from the party.

A dispatch from Venice announces that in accordance with instructions from Premier Mussolini the Prefect has dismissed Bortolo Pascotto, Mayor of Pramaggiore, for having uttered words "offensive to the sacred person of the King." The Prefect simultaneously denounced the Mayor to the Crown Prosecutor for penal procedure.

CASTE ISSUE MAY DELAY ROYAL WEDDING

Swedish Law Prohibits Prince From Marrying Daughter of a 'Private Man.'

LONDON, July 19.—The marriage of Crown Prince Gustave of Sweden to Lady Louise Mountbatten, sister of Princess Andrew of Greece, may be postponed, according to a Central News dispatch from Stockholm, until a change is made in the fundamental law of Sweden which prohibits the heir to the throne from marrying a daughter of a Swedish or foreign "private man."

Investigation by a member of the Superior Court, the dispatch says, revealed that the Prince's English fiancée is the daughter of a "private man," but the Judge expressed the opinion that the difficulty soon could be obviated satisfactorily with the co-operation of the Swedish royal house and the people.

SWEET CONGRESS ASPIRANT

Former Speaker of Assembly Seeks Republican Nomination.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 19.—Thaddeus C. Sweet, former Speaker of the Assembly, announced today that he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the 32d district to succeed Representative Luther W. Mott.

Soon after the death of Representative Mott it was reported that Mrs. Mott might be a candidate. That plan has been abandoned and she and her friends will support Mr. Sweet.

One of the arguments put forth by Mr. Sweet's supporters is that strong leadership is needed in Washington and that at this juncture Mr. Sweet, with his long political and parliamentary experience, would prove a Republican asset in Congress.

PUZZLE OF THE RUHR DELAYS BRITISH NOTE

the Reparation Commission. In this way respect would be paid, to some extent, to M. Poincaré's standpoint.

On the question of the inetrallied debts, according to Dr. Benes, there is also agreement. The delicate point is as to the conditions on which France and Belgium would consent to modify their régime in the Ruhr. For the moment the question is the subject of further discussion between London and Paris.

Lastly, in a letter which will accompany the draft reply to Germany the British Government will expound its point of how it will agree with technical suggestions made by Belgium two months ago.

Germany's Suggestion of Terms.

PARIS, July 19 (Associated Press).—The German Government, through its Embassy in London, is striving to have the forthcoming British note on reparations convey to the French Government Germany's willingness to cease passive resistance in the Ruhr, subject to certain concessions on the part of France. This information has reached the French Government on what is regarded as unquestionable but unofficial authority.

These concessions appear to include:

First, withdrawal of the Franco-Belgian troops of occupation with the exception of a mere skeleton military force, which would in the diplomatic sense be "invisible."

Second, permission for the German officials and functionaries expelled from the Ruhr to return to their posts, restoring the local administration of all civil services as it existed before Jan. 11, when the occupation took place.

Third, that the French Government agreed to restore the currency it confiscated.

These conditions, it was declared here, would be unacceptable to the French Government, because they are unaccompanied by any definite assurances or guarantees that reparation payments would be forthcoming.

Likewise, it is explained, the French Government feels that between France, which is enforcing the peace treaty, and Germany, which is refusing to execute it, it would not be equitable that Germany should impose conditions instead of yielding to the French demands.

Germany, it is asserted, must first cease her passive resistance, after which the French Government would be disposed on its own acount favorably to consider Germany's views, whereas it could not receive them in the nature of an ultimatum.

The British Government, it is understood, is already aware of the French Ministry's feeling on this subject.

Negotiating on Reparation Offer.

BERLIN, July 19 (Associated Press).—Germany's amendatory reparations proposals of June 7 have been the subject of informal exchanges of opinion between the London and Berlin Cabinets during the past month. This was admitted in official quarters today. This procedure is considered nothing unusual, as the discussions concerned themselves wholly with the manner in which Germany proposed to safeguard the guarantees which were to constitute the basis of reparation annuities or capital sum.

The exchanges which have been going on between the two capitals are supposed to have been stimulated by Premier Baldwin's desire to give Germany an opportunity to elucidate her reparations program, which it is believed would constitute the basis of the forthcoming discussions. The manner in which the German Government proposed to guarantee the annuities through legislative enactments was one of the cardinal points on which the London officials desired information.

Germany's amendatory reparations note, which was handed to the Entente and the United States Government on June 7, proposed a system of annuities, estimated to total 1,200,000,000 marks annually, if an international loan was not available for immediate capital payments. The annuities would became effective in 1927 and their number and amount would depend on the degree of Germany's economic recovery.

The note made no mention of the political situation, the Ruhr occupation or passive resistance.

The German Government pledged the Federal Railway System, a gold 5 per cent. mortgage, secured by industry, agriculture and shipping, and an additional amount to be raised by increased customs duties and other taxes.

RUHR UNIONS FOR RESISTING.

But Urge Berlin to Strive for a Way to Make Peace.

ESSEN, July 19 (Associated Press).—The German Trade Union Council for the occupied territory passed a resolution today against the efforts of the leaders of the Rhineland republic movement and in favor of the continuance of passive resistance at all cost. The resolution, however, contained an appeal to the Berlin Government to leave unexplored no avenue offering a possible solution of the reparation question.

The French announced today that the Germans sent several fuel trains out of the Ruhr yesterday, of which four went to Holland and one to Italy.

The French seized ten locomotives, a dozen tank cars and fourteen open freight cars at the Rhine steel works in Düsseldorf, which were occupied yesterday.

The port workers at Duisburg are demanding an increase in wages of 85 per cent. in order to meet the increasing cost of living.

DUESSELDORF, July 19.—The Interallied Rhineland Commission has published a decree, according to the Cologne Zeitung, forbidding the holding of the annual Rhineland Catholic Convention, set for Aug. 26, 27, 28. The commission's action, the paper adds, was based on a desire to prevent possible Nationalist demonstrations.

HUGHES GETS RUHR PROTEST.

Berlin Says Blockade Is Causing Great Hardship and Injury.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Dr. Otto Wiedfeldt, the German Ambassador, delivered to Secretary Hughes today a copy of the protest which the German Government had lodged with the French and Belgian Governments against continuation of the blockade established by the French and Belgian forces, preventing passage of persons between the occupied and unoccupied portions of Germany.

The protest said the blockade, ordered in retaliation for alleged sabotage by Germans, was to have continued until July 16, but the expulsion by the German police from unoccupied Germany of two French soldiers who had pursued smugglers from the occupied zone, was made the pretext for an indefinite extension of the order, which, it is contended, is inflicting great hardships and injury on many innocent people.

ASK FOREIGN MONEY FOR 20 TRILLION MARKS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 19.—There having been no official legal business in foreign exchange yesterday, a tidal wave of buying orders, the like of which never had been seen and utterly impossible of fulfillment, startetd this morning coming from all over Germany.

The total exceeded twenty trillion marks, so that the Reichsbank had to threaten to suspend credits.

Director Fuchs, of the Reichsbank, taking the floor of the Boerse, said:

"Buying orders for foreign exchange if filled in full would amount to twenty trillion marks. The most important of them are for 26,000,000 of Dutch gelden, $11,500,000 and £3,300,000 sterling.

"I call attention of the banks to the recently published ordinance whereby banks in placing buying orders for customers must assure themselves that the full amount in marks is on deposit for covering buying orders for foreign exchange. In view of the fact that the amount of buying orders for foreign exchange today exceeds twenty trillions I am of opinion that the banks have ignored the foregoing proviso, because there is no such sum on deposit in all the Berlin banks together.

"I will give the banks fifteen minutes to correct their buying orders, otherwise, beginning tomorrow morning, the Reichsbank will suspend discounting notes and bills and further see to it that the Darlehenskassen will grant no loans."

Returning after fifteen minutes the Reichsbank director found that the banks had withdrawn less than 10 per cent. of buying orders for foreign exchange. The Reichsbank rate for dollars and other foreign exchange was accordingly arbitrarily fixed at Tuesday's rate with one-quarter of 1 per cent. of the buying orders only to be filled.

The banks unanimously rejected this tender.

EXTOLS ALCOHOL TO BRITISH LORDS

it was 4; in 1915 it was only 2, and in 1920 ithad fallen below 1 per thousand. That was striking testimony to the fact that the use of alcohol was becoming much more circumspect and that there was a greater regard for its quality and for the time of its consumption.

But when one came to youth he fully agreed that up to the age of 18 practically no alcohol was required.

STUDY PROHIBITION HERE.

Scottish Churchmen to Report on Working of Dry Laws.

PORTLAND, Me., July 19.—A commission of Scottish churchmen investigating the working of prohibition will make Portland their point of departure. The Rev. John Malcolm Munro of Edinburgh, Chairman of the commission, is now here and, with his party, will visit the leading cities of this country and Canada until their departure for home Aug. 1. The body's findings will be kept secret until the tour is completed.

The commission is empowered to investigate the origin, nature and conduct of prohibition and other liquor laws here and in Canada, with the effect of the dry system on health, business and agricultural efficiency and activity, and on crime, statutory offenses and domestic and social conditions.

Estimates of the prospects of enforcing prohibition legislation will be furnished by the commission after its investigations, with its findings on the amount of law breaking and its effect on the national character. The commission is finally requested to consider the bearing of American and Canadian experience on the present situation in Scotland.

BISHOP LAUDS PROHIBITION

Nicholson Tells British Wesleyans It Has Lessened Poverty Here.

BRISTOL, England, July 19 (Associated Press).—The United States rapidly is becoming a population of city dwellers, with very little home life and no opportunity to entertain as of old, according to Bishop Thomas Nicholson of Chicago, Resident Bishop of the Chicago area of the Methodist Episcopal Church and President of the Anti-Saloon League. He made this statement before the annual British Wesleyan conference here last night.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, he said, was rising to meet these changed conditions. The church, however, had "not been markedly successful" in its handling of the problem of the foreign population in American cities, which it had hitherto attempted to solve by purely evangelistic efforts. But, he added, it would try a new approach through religious educational work in the universities and recreational, social and community programs.

The Bishop asserted that prohibition "has had a remarkable effect" in lessening "poverty, squalor and bad housing," permitting charity organizations in some cities to go out of business.

"On the whole," Bishop Nicholson concluded, "I think we are constantly getting more vital religious life. We not only have more members than ever before, but we have more actual loyalty to the program of Jesus Christ, more sincere personal effort than in any previous period."

SIGHT NEW LIQUOR FLEET.

Alien Ships Off Jersey Fly Message, "Come and Get It."

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 19.—A fleet of twelve foreign liquor ships is reported at anchor twelve miles off Ocean City, N. J. Some of the ships are said to be flying the message, "Come and get it." The United States Coast Guard patrolling the waters has been reinforced by eight customs men.

Captain R. C. Weightman of the Coast Guard cutter Kickapoo reported sighting a British yacht carrying 4,000 cases of whisky, valued at $200,000, twenty-five miles southeast of Five-Fathom Light. Because of the liquor fleet, it is reported the manoeuvres of the Coast Guard cutters off Cape May, scheduled for August, will be postponed until after the liquor fleet has been dispersed.

Competition among bootleggers has developed to such a point that they are making house-to-house canvasses and offering Scotch whisky as low as $50 a case.

DISMANTLE 62 SALOONS.

Owners Heed Warning of Hartford State's Attorney.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 19.—Becoming frightened at the warning of State's Attorney Alcorn that he intended to use freely the padlock provisions of the prohibition law where convictions were obtained against violators, sixty-two saloonkeepers are dismantling their places, and today it was stated that only a few saloons are open for business.

A few weeks ago Chief Justice Wheeler of the Supreme Court of Errors talked to State's Attorneys and, it is understood, called their attention to the increasing prevalence of bootlegging, liquor selling and alleged inertia in prosecuting cases. The State's Attorneys held a conference and Mr. Alcorn made the first move by publicly warning saloonkeepers that it was his intention to use the injunction to close places which persisted in selling liquor.

MANILA ACTION LEFT IN HARDING'S HANDS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The break between Major Gen. Leonard Wood, Governor General of the Philippines, and Filipino leaders, which resulted in the resignation of the native members of the Cabinet and the Council of State, is now squarely up to President Harding, it was announced officially today at the War Department.

In view of the action of Manuel Quezon, President of the Filipino Senate, in appealing directly to President Harding in the matter, Secretary Weeks has taken the attitude that nothing can be said concerning General Wood's action in accepting the resignations until Mr. Harding has had an opportunity to pass upon the case. It had been indicated previously that Administration officials were inclined to regard the Cabinet incident as comparatively trivial and that the Administration doubtless would stand firmly behind General Wood.

Secretary Weeks today received a report from General Wood, and a communication also reached the War Department by cable from Quezon, but Mr. Weeks decided that the text of neither of these communications should be made public at this time. The Filipino press bureau gave out a statement received by cable from Teodoro M. Kalaw, Executive Secretary and chief adviser of the Commission of Independence at Manila, embracing the text of the Cabinet members' resignation and a statement by Quezon, previously made public.

Find Law Sustained Wood.

Secretary Weeks has had several conferences with Major General Frank McIntyre, chief of the Insular Bureau, which has charge of Philippine affairs. It is understood that these conferences had to do mainly with the legal aspects of the case.

From a strictly legal point of view there appears to officials to be no doubt as to the powers of General Wood to take the action of which the Filipino officials complain. It is perfectly evident, according to legal authorities, that when Congress gave the Filipinos certain powers under the organic act, it was doubtful whether the Filipino people were competent to exercise those powers, and for that reason it gave the Governor General almost paternal authority over the islands.

The Governor General has the power to name the heads of executive departments. The advice and consent of the Philippine Senate is necessary in naming them, but when the Senate is not in session, as at present, the Governor General may name any one he sees fit to serve until such time as the Senate convenes. The Philippine Legislature will not be in session until next October, and there is nothing to prevent General Wood naming a Cabinet of army officers, if he sees fit, to serve until such time as he wishes to name members for confirmation by the Senate.

The one exception to the general rule concerning the selection of the heads of executive departments is in the case of the Vice Governor of the Philippines, who is automatically Secretary of Public Instruction. He is named by the President of the United States. This official is the only member of the Cabinet who has not submitted his resignation in the present controversy.

The so-called Council of State is an extra legal body consisting of the heads of the executive departments, the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives. It was established with the consent of the Governor General.

Since the present controversy arose primarily as a result of incidents affecting the Mayor of Manila, some attention has been given by War Department officials to the legal aspects of the Governor General's powers in that respect. Under the law the Governor General has the right of supervision and control over the city of Manila, but in actual practice its municipal affairs are normally handled by the Secretary of the Interior.

Dispute on Deliquent Taxes.

WASHINGTON, July 19 (Associated Press).—Additional details of incidents which contributed to the break between Governor General Wood and Filipino officials were made public today in a cabled statement from the Commission of Independence at Manila to the Philippine Press Bureau here. The statement told of a difference of opinion between General Wood and the officials over the question of delinquent land tax payments.

"Several municipal and provincial Governments, especially in regious visited by locusts and typhoons," the statement set forth, "have petitioned that the penalty for delinquency in the payment of land tax be remitted, but the Governor General would not stand for any remission in spite of the recommendation of the Secretary of the Interior.

"President Quezon (of the Senate) and Speaker Roxas insist upon the necessity of such remission. President Quezon addressed a letter to Governor Wood expounding his reasons. He said in part: 'The land tax is purely a provincial and municipal revenue, and the provincial and municipal Governments concerned having requested, and the Secretary of the Interior having recommended, that the remission of such penalty be granted, there seems to be only one proper course for the insular Government to take, namely, to grant it. It would seem obvious that this power should be exercised in accordance with well-known principles of democracy and in line with the avowed policy of this Government to exercise but supervisory power over the regularly organized provinces and municipalities in granting them the largest measure of local autonomy.'

"President Quezon then concluded by saying:

"'Permit me to inform you in all sincerity that there is a growing feeling among our people that the views of the Filipino officials in this Government, the Secretaries of departments included, have very little, if any, weight with you. If this feeling is allowed to stand, it will be very difficult to preserve the utmost co-operation of the Filipinos when they become convinced that you have little confidence either in their loyalty or in their ability.'"

LETTER CAUSED 3 DEATHS.

Missourian Says Other Man Wrote to Wife, So He Killed Her and Kin.

LEXINGTON, Mo., July 19.—A letter, couched in endearing terms, from a married man of Waverly, Mo., to Mrs. William Plunkett precipitated the fatal shooting there yesterday of Mrs. Plunkett, her mother and sister, for which Plunkett is held in the county jail here. Plunkett is reported to have told the authorities the letter suggested that Mrs. Plunkett hasten divorce proceedings, and promised that the writer also would seek a speedy divorce.

Plunkett declared Mrs. Plunkett's family had stirred up trouble between him and his wife almost from the time of their marriage, when she was only 13 years old.

Feeling ran high while Plunkett was held in the Mayor's office at Waverly and there was said to have been talk of hanging. Officers took Plunkett through the crowd and brought him to Lexington.

NO OFFICIAL BACKING FOR CHESTER GRANT

State Department Denies That the Government Is Bound to Defend Its Validity.

ANSWER MADE TO INQUIRY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Denial that the Chester concessionaires have received moral or political assurances that in the event of a dispute the American Government would be bound to defend the validity of their concession, is made by the State Department in a reply to the request of the National Popular Government League for information as to any commitments this Government may have made in the matter.

The department's reply is signed by Leland Harrison, Assistant Secretary "for the Secretary of State," under date of July 3, and deals with inquiries contained in a letter which the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the league addressed to President Harding on June 19. The league's letter of inquiry was signed by Jackson H. Ralston, a Washington attorney, Chairman of the committee; ex-Representative William Kent of California; Professor E. A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin; Louis F. Post, former Assistant Secretary of Labor; Dr. John A. Ryan of the Catholic University of America; Charles E. Russell and President William H. Johnston of the International Association of Machinists.

The reply states that neither the Department of State nor its officers in the field took part in the negotiations for the Chester mining and railway concessions in Turkey, that the State Department has not even a complete or authentic copy of the concession, and is concerned only in maintaining the open door policy of equality of commercial opportunity and fair play.

Department of State,

Judson King, Esq., Secretary, Committee on Foreign Affairs of the National Popular Government League, Munsey Building, Washington, D. C.

Sir—The department has received, by reference from the White House, your letter of June 19, 1923, making certain inquiries respecting the so-called Chester concession, and in particular requesting information as to "the exact nature and extent of such promises, pledges, endorsements or commitments" as this Government may have made in the matter.

I beg to inform you, in reply to your first question, as to whether a concession has been granted, that, according to the department's reports, a railway and mining concession, of which the department has received no complete or authentic copy, is understood to have been accorded by the Government of the Great National Assembly of Turkey to the Ottoman-American Development Company. The department's reports would not indicate that this concession is a monopoly or that, as your letter appears to suggest, it contemplates "control of certain administrative functions in Asia Minor.

The reply to your second question, as to whether the concessionnaires had been promised moral or political endorsement or have received assurances that in the event of any dispute this Government would be bound to defend the validity of the concession, is in the negative. It is not this Government's practice to give such assurances, or "to give implied future guarantees." The third question, in which you have inquired as to the form of the assurances, is not therefore pertinent.

For your further information it may be added that neither the department nor its officers in the field took part in the negotiations for the concession. These were carried on directly by the parties concerned. As the department has taken occasion to point out in communicating with other correspondents on this subject, this Government's interest in matters of this nature is that of securing recognition for the policy of the open door—in assuring equality of commercial opportunity and fair play. In other words, to quote again from your letter, the department believes that this Government should deal with questions affecting its nationals as they arise, as international courtesy, equity and justice justify.

I am, sir,
Your Obedient Servant,
For the Secretary of State,
LELAND HARRISON,
Assistant Secretary.

In making public the letter today Mr. King said:

"So far as I know, this is the most sweeping and explicit denial yet made by the Department of State that the Government is in any way tied up with the Chester concessionnaires. Since Chairman Ralston of our Foreign Affairs Committee is absent in California, and other members are afield on vacations, its publication has been delayed until mail consultation could be had. It is the opinion of the committee that the letter should be made public without comment, as it speaks for itself. Happily, the delay works no injustice, since the acute fight between English and American representatives and the Lausanne Conference, now filling the papers, makes the publication of the latter peculiarly appropriate and necessary at this time."

searched. No arrest had been made up to a late hour last night.

The first automobile stolen belonged to Raymond P. Morse, whose touring car was standing outside his home in Heathcote Road. He telephoned to Sergeant Harrison at 2:29 A. M., according to the entry in the police book.

A moment later Patrolman Gizzicy telephoned that he had seen two men leave a stalled car in Heathcote Road, about a mile and a half from the police station. The officer said the men ran away and that he fired two shots at them but missed.

Chief Kenison and all the available policemen and detectives started out to search for the thieves, and as they were leaving Harrison received another telephone report of an auto robbery. It came from John E. Muhlfield, Edgewater and Sherbrook Roads. The police found this car, also stalled, not far from where it was taken. The third theft was reported by Carl Roessing, who said his sedan had been stolen.

The police believe the murder and all three thefts were committed by the same band of auto thieves. Fingerprints found on the cars may help in the search for the murderers.

The New Rochelle police reported that a man acting suspiciously was seen running in the woods near Willmont Road about 6 o'clock. The Scarsdale officers hurried to the scene but could find no trace of the man.

Harrison, according to Lieutenant Smith, was a "crack" shot. The police believe he had a fight with the men and that they took his gun from him. It was not found. One bullet lodged in Harrison's right arm and the other entered his breast. He leaves a wife and three small children. His funeral will take place from the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, Scarsdale, at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

To Miss the Opportunity to Do a Kindly Thing to give some one innocent pleasure, or to lend a helping hand where it is needed, if in your power to do so, may be to risk the loss of a happy memory that might sweeten and lighten your way later on.

In sailing over the wide bays of the South and upon the Gulf of Mexico, it is easy to notice that the waves that lift us rush on without stopping and never come back again.

The regret of a lost opportunity lasts a long time.

chairman is Burt L. Fenner, for a long time member of the architectural firm of McKim, Mead & White. It will have completed its first year of work on Aug. 1 .

"We have applications from hundreds of white collar boys whom the commission wants to place," explained Chairman Fenner. "Inducements are being offered to them to join the ranks of the skilled artisan."

Mr. Fenner said that in not more than two or three trades had the commission met opposition, and that all opposition had quickly disappeared. The principal difficulty now was to get the employers to take the apprentices as fast as they applied for jobs.

Fred F. Moran, Managing Director of the commission, in summarizing the first year's work of the commission, said nine crafts had endorsed the plan. Mr. Moran explained that the "white collar workers" were quitting office work for jobs as bricklayers, painters, plumbers, plasterers and in other lines because they could earn from $6 to $7 a day, which in some cases is double what they formerly earned and that they received the increased pay while learning their new trades.

Mr. Moran said the following unions had adopted the commission's program: Carpenters, painters and decorators, electricians, sheet metal workers, upholsterers, cement masons, plasterers, drafting apprentices of the Iron League. The Executive Board of the Bricklayers' Union has endorsed the program and referred it to its various locals. Locals 1, 41 and 9 have approved of the program and have appointed committees to confer with the Managing Director. The Executive Board of the Plumbers' Union of Brooklyn has endorsed the program and has referred it to its unions for action.

In the past year classes have been opened in the following schools for the training of apprentices: Harlem Evening Trade School, Washington Irving Evening High School and Murray Hill Evening Trade School, Manhattan; Curtis Evening Trade School, Staten Island; Brooklyn Evening Trade and Technical and Bushwick Evening Trade School, Brooklyn; Bryant Evening Trade School, Long Island City, and Jamaica Evening Trade School, Jamaica.

The report said the commission had placed 210 apprentices in the carpentry and painting and decorating trades, and that there had been requests for apprentices from 228 employers and more than 400 boys had requested jobs as apprentices in the various building trades.

Work along similar lines was being inaugurated in Boston, Philadelphia, the State of New Jersey, Seattle, Portland, Ore., and Australia, and in this State in Niagara Falls, Rochester, Albany and other cities.

Mr. Clarkson announced last night that the Building Trades Employers' Association had voted $25,000 for the support of the commission's work.

BRICKLAYERS FOR SCHOOLS.

Union Leader Says Immigrants Must Do This Work to Get Cards.

Bricklayers arriving from Scotland and other foreign countries, lured here by the high pay, will be required by the bricklayers' unions to work on schools at $12 a day before they get their union cards. The action of the union in furnishing bricklayers to complete school buildings was announced by John J. Donnelly, business agent of Bricklayers' Union, Local 34, at a meeting of Mayor Hylan's Committee on School Construction yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Donnelly told the committee he already had put that plan into effect in his union. He called on other locals to follow his plan. Public Works Commissioner William J. Flynn of the Bronx, who is Chairman of Mayor Hylan's Committee on School Construction, told Mr. Donnelly that his plan was the first practical one to be tried out. Donnelly estimated that 200 immigrant bricklayers were working under the jurisdiction of his union. The committee will meet again next Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the City Hall.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—A survey of industrial and commercial movements in June made public today by the Department of Commerce shows that there was a general slowing down from the activity in May. In almost all lines, however, activity was greater than at this time one year ago.

FULLER COUNSEL MAY QUIT.

Griffith and Content, It Is Believed, Will Retire in Few Days.

Charles H. Griffiths and Harold A. Content, who replaced William J. Fallon and Eugene McGee as attorneys for Edward M. Fuller and William Frank McGee, probably will retire from the Fuller case within a few days, it was learned yesterday. Mr. Griffiths presented a motion for the discharge of Fuller and McGee from their imprisonment for contempt to Judge Henry W. Goddard of the United States District Court on Wednesday, and Judge Goddard denied the motion.

Mr. Content said that they had been retained merely to try to get Fuller and McGee released from the contempt charge and that the future connection of his firm with Fuller and McGee had not been determined. It was understood that the continuation of Mr. Griffiths and Mr. Content in the case depended largely upon whether it was decided to appeal from Judge Goddard's denial of the motion for the release of the two brokers from the contempt charge.

MISSING WITH $6,000.

Find Empty Car, but Fail to Locate Brooklyn Builder.

Detectives of the Vanderveer Park precinct in Brooklyn were unable yesterday to trace William W. Scott, 56, a builder, of 2,485 Ocean Avenue, missing since Monday.

According to Mrs. Mae Scott, her husband had $6,000 with him when he left her downtown. His empty automobile was found later at Bartlett Street and Harrison Avenue.

Mrs. Scott said she accompanied him to the Home Title Insurance Company, 51 Willoughby Street, where he secured a loan of $6,000 on eighteen new buildings on Ocean Avenue. Scott then told his wife that he was going to Williamsburg to purchase lumber and fixtures.

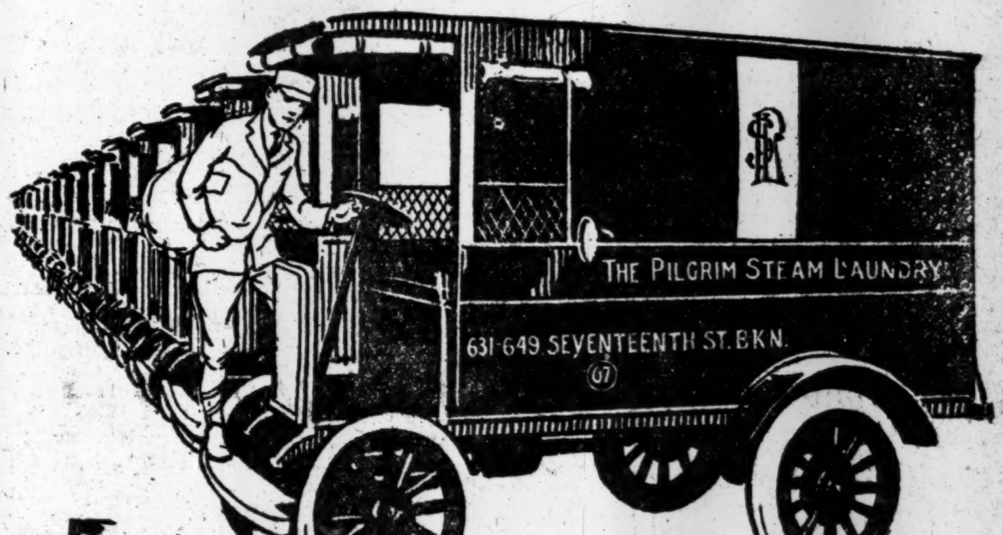
Ward Electrics Save 20% to 35%

Actual cost comparisons disclose that the money which pays for 50 to 60 gas truck deliveries, or 65 to 80 horse-and-wagon deliveries, will buy 100 electric truck deliveries. In other words, electric truck delivery is 20% to 35% cheaper than horse-and-wagon delivery and as much as 50% less than gas-truck delivery on frequent-stop city routes. This difference is so great that if your horses and wagons or gasoline trucks had cost you nothing, Ward Electric delivery would still be cheaper.



This patented bumper-step and folding dash saves driver's time.

Mr. McClellan of the Chalmette Laundry, New Orleans, has said: "Ward Electrics have already saved us $50,000 over former horse costs." (They use 47 Ward Electrics.) Col. James of the Imperial Laundry, Newark, has stated: "On the light 750-lb. truck, the 'juice' used averages 1c a mile"—that's less than the cost of horseshoes. (They use 66 Ward Electrics.) The Pilgrim Laundry, Brooklyn, uses 41 Wards and not a single horse. Their operating expenses average $20.39 per car per month, including current; labor of repairing, charging and washing; renewals of parts; oils, grease, waste, etc., and tires.

Laundries have to collect as well as deliver. Bundles are large—charges relatively low. Delivery with horses or gas trucks totals from 20% to 30% of their entire cost of doing business. It is indeed significant that laundries are turning so largely to Ward Electrics for delivery.

The bakery field is also confronted by a knotty delivery problem. Bread is bulky—is sold on a small profit margin. There are five times as many Ward Electrics used by bakeries as of the leading line of gas trucks. United Bakeries Corporation use 407; Corby Baking Co., Washington, 106; Mills Baking Co., Detroit, 86; Consumers Baking Co., Kansas City, 79, etc.

Ward Electric Trucks cost much less for current and battery renewal than a horse does for food, less for tires than a horse does for shoes, and they only take from a third to a fifth the space that horse, wagon, harness, hay, etc., require. Some users even store their Ward Electrics right at the loading platform, doing away with stables altogether. A complete comparison with gas truck costs shows even greater savings.

Another feature which makes for low costs is the great ruggedness and long life of the electric truck. In that respect it greatly excels either horses or gas trucks.

The Chalmette Laundry Co. of New Orleans bought their first Ward Electric second hand over 10 years ago. It is still in daily service. The average horse doing the same work would have been in his grave over four years; the average light gas truck would have been scrapped 7 to 8 years ago; the high class gas truck about 5 years ago. A number of Ward Electrics that are 12, 14 and 15 years old are still giving excellent service.

The Ward Electric of today is even sturdier than those built a decade ago. Its worm-gear drive, simple rugged construction and heavy parts assure even longer wear. It is peculiarly adapted to frequent stops because electric power can be snapped on and off instantly and no current is wasted when the car is standing still.

Every day that you use horses and wagons or gas trucks for city deliveries, you are "throwing money away." Every unnecessary dollar added to your delivery costs is taken directly from your profits.

Investigate Ward Electrics. We will survey your delivery problem and sell you Ward Electrics on the understanding that if they will not do the work we specify in the contract, they belong to us, not to you. We have done this in scores of cases and won out.

Delivery is a very big expense item here in New York. Traffic congestion results in frequent stops during which the gas truck engine "eats" fuel. Stable space rents at exorbitant figures. Making your delivery dollar buy more is a vital matter to you. Act NOW!

We have a book for executives that tells the story—write us or phone Fairbanks 1422 for a copy.

FRENCH TRADE GAINS RAPIDLY IN VOLUME

GAIN IN VALUE IS SMALLER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 19.—Foreign trade statistics for the first half of 1923 show that France has accomplished a remarkable post-war recovery. Both exports and imports have increased more than 10 per cent. over the trade for the first half of 1913, figured on a tonnage basis. The increase over the same period last year is about 40 per cent.

Despite the fall in value of the franc as compared with last year, the trade balance against France for the first six months this year is approximately the same as last year, indicating an increase in exports, while the fall of the franc, of course, increases the cost of imports.

The recovery in French trade was such that France was able to carry the extra cost of coal, which has been purchased from England since the Ruhr occupation, without increasing the adverse trade balance of about 500,000,000 francs.

The total value of imports in the first six months of 1923 was 14,689,459,000 francs, as compared with 10,635,521,000 last year, an increase of 38 per cent. The value of exports was 14,167,465,000, compared with 10,107,112,000 in 1922, an increase of 40 per cent.

Because of the wide variation in exchange it is difficult to compare the 1923 trade with that of 1913. However, on a tonnage basis, imports for the first half of 1923 show an increase over the same period in 1913 of 3,392,916 tons, and exports an increase of 1,351,570 tons.

It is said officially that France will not have to import wheat this year, from which fact a further reduction in imports is promised, with a consequent betterment of the trade balance. Not only is the wheat crop above normal, with a yield of between 75,000,000 and 80,000,000 quintals forecast, which comes very near supplying France's needs, but Algeria reports that in addition to this she will have an extra 4,000,000 quintals for the French market. Importations of wheat by France last year exceeded 12,000,000 quintals, but the Minister of Agriculture, M. Cheron, says he intends that France shall import no wheat in the coming year.

NEW COMEDY HERE WITH COHAN TOUCHES

'Two Fellows and a Girl,' by Vincent Lawrence, Told With Skill and Humor.

TWO FELLOWS AND A GIRL. A comedy in three acts by Vincent Lawrence. At the Vanderbilt Theatre.

Lea Ellery	Ruth Shepley
Thomas Ellery	Jack Bennett
Jack Moorland	John Halliday
Jim Dale	Allan Dinehart
Johnson	George Smithfield
Doris Wadsworth	Claiborne Foster

What seems to be the new theatrical season began prematurely but pleasantly last night at the Vanderbilt Theatre with the presentation of a comedy entitled "Two Fellows and a Girl." The author is Vincent Lawrence, who has been tapping on the Broadway portals for a number of seasons, and who now seems finally to be in a fair way to realize on his efforts. The legend from Chicago, where the play was popular during the latter part of the past season, was that the expert hand of George M. Cohan had figured in the proceedings to a vastly greater degree than the billboards indicated: a view of the play and of the manner of its presentation fully confirms this impression.

"Two Fellows and a Girl" has something less than enough story for a musical comedy. Its tenuous tale has been spun out with a good deal of skill—except in the last act, which is dull. It is nothing more or less than the simple story of one girl and two suitors, of her marriage to one of them and of the respective feelings and reactions of the trio when they meet again five years later. But in the writing and the staging it has been given many genuine and humorous touches, particularly in the first two acts, that certainly make it good entertainment, and which even perform the miracle of making it seem important now and then.

Mr. Cohan is evident in the pointing of a hundred lines and he fairly stalks through the play in the person of John Halliday, who has mysteriously acquired practically all the Cohan mannerisms in the course of rehearsals. For the rest, a true and human line occurs now and then, but the evening is largely an exhibition of what expert staging can do for a play.

In its glorification of the minute the play is at times almost too faithful. Friends meeting after an absence of five years are likely to indulge in just such extravagant and wearisome expressions of welcome as do those in the Lawrence-Cohan comedy, but there were times last night when one more friendly slap on the back, one more "Why-you-old-dog-I'm-certainly-glad-to-see-you-what-have-you-been-up-to?" would have been just too much to bear.

The burden of the story falls on the three characters of the title acted by Ruth Shepley, John Halliday and Allan Dinehart. The performance is excellent throughout, with perhaps the shade going to Mr. Dinehart for his performance as the losing suitor. In the first act he was particularly fine in the moments when he learns that victory has gone to the other. Miss Shepley is pretty and sufficiently capable as the heroine, and Mr. Halliday, despite his Cohan mannerisms, strikes many true notes. There was also an effective performance by Claiborne Foster in the showy rôle of a flapper.

"Two Fellows and a Girl," of course, is designed for the great theatre-going public, as are all of Mr. Cohan's productions. There seems to be no reason why it should not fulfill its object.

"Black Flag" at National Aug. 27.

Prior to beginning his own season at the National Theatre, Walter Hampden will offer a preliminary production there on Aug. 27, when "The Black Flag," by A. E. Thomas, will be produced. Pedro de Cordoba and Carroll MacComas will have the principal rôles. Mr. Hampden acted the play on tour last season, at which time he played the rôle in which Mr. de Cordoba will be seen here.

DETROIT TROLLEYS PAY.

Statement for June Gives Net Income as $62,139.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, July 19.—Net income of Detroit's street car lines for June was $62,139.44, according to the monthly statement made public today. The report shows transportation revenue increased $213,439.88 from that of the corresponding month in 1922, although there was an increase in the operating expense of $248,926.90.

June was the first month in which the officials had an opportunity to compare the financial situation with that of the same month a year ago. In June, 1922, the lines returned a net profit of $98,744.01. The decrease in the net income is accounted for largely by the rebuilding program in operation this year, the increase in wages of platform and other employes authorized last Fall and an increase in employes.

Street cars carried 41,730,246 passengers in June, compared with 36,715,466 the same month last year, the cars covering a total of 4,371,504 car miles in the month.

Injunction Obtained by Agent in Steamship Seizure.

An injunction pending litigation was granted yesterday by Federal Judge A. N. Hand on the application of Walter S. Field, who has sued for $450,000 for services rendered in connection with the seizure by the Alien Property Custodian, of eleven steamships belonging to the American Transatlantic Co., and the Foreign Transport and Mercantile Corporation. The defendants are Thomas W. Miller, as Alien Property Custodian, Frank White, as Treasurer of the United States, Hugo Stinnes, Edward Wagenknecht and Albert Jansen.

In June last President Harding ordered the return of the proceeds of the sale of the property, $1,195,875.77. To protect the Government in any liability growing out of the suit instituted by Mr. Field, $450,000 of the money was withheld. The injunction obtained by Mr. Field will keep this money in the control of the Government until the suit is disposed of.

LEAPS OFF SHIP AT SEA.

St. Louis Business Man Depressed by Visit to Germany.

Rudolf Grotian, a retired business man of 1,917 Dodier Street, St. Louis, is believed to have committed suicide by jumping overboard from the North German Lloyd liner Seydlitz. His loss was reported yesterday when the vessel arrived. Mr. Grotian was 66 years old.

On July 12, when the Seydlitz was five days out from Bremen, Grotian did not appear at dinner. His wife left him alone in his state room. A search of the ship failed to reveal him. Mrs. Grotian said she and her husband went abroad several months ago to visit relatives in Germany. He was very much distressed over economic conditions in Europe. It was his first visit abroad since the beginning of the war.

Confession Clears Woman.

Mrs. Rosie Shymansey, 30 years old, of 726 Sixth Street, locked up Wednesday night charged with felonious assault, was released yesterday. Mrs. Caroline Kropisky, of the same address, confessed yesterday that she had cut her own throat and not Mrs. Shymansey, whom she had accused when she was found Wednesday night in the hallway of the house. Her condition was said to be critical by physicians at Bellevue. The women had previously quarreled over a clothesline.

WOMEN SEEK EQUALITY WITH MEN IN BANKING

Leader of 6,500 in Institute Resents Exclusion of Sex From Executive Posts.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 19.—Equal rights with men in the banking work is to be the objective of the more than 6,500 members of the Women's Committee of the American Institute of Banking.

This assertion was made tonight by Miss Margaret Coons of St. Louis, elected Chairman of the committee today, following an address by Carter E. Talman of Richmond, Va.

Speaking at a meeting of the women delegates, Mr. Talman said that women were "merely temporary employes in banks and other business houses," and that "it would be a long time before any woman would become President of the institute." He also insisted that woman's ultimate goal should be the home.

Consequently Mr. Talman was the target of a volley of criticism at the hands of the women.

"The women resent the idea of being excluded from executive positions which they could fill to advantage, merely because they are women," Miss Coons said. She insisted that men have no place in the women's department of a bank. This, it was said by other women, expressed their sentiments.

ASKS $15,000,000 DAMAGES.

London Promoter Seeks to Attach Property Here of M. C. Martin.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 19 (Associated Press).—A suit for $15,000,000 damages, the largest sum ever named in a damage action here, has been filed in Circuit Court in behalf of James C. L. Huber, said by his attorney to be a London promoter, against M. C. Martin, said also by the attorney to be a London capitalist, it was announced today.

It is alleged in the petition that Martin, meeting Huber in London last Aug. 26, slashed him with a knife in a manner to permanently injure him, threw acid in his face and cut off his right ear. It is asserted that Huber's earning capacity of $500,000 a year has been destroyed.

The lawyer filing the suit is C. E. Piper, who has been in St. Louis two months. He said the suit was filed here because Martin possesses a large sum of securities in Missouri, which is subject to attachment.

Piper said the assault was the result of a quarrel over a woman.

The petition asks $10,000,000 actual damages and $5,000,000 punitive damages.

SMITH WILL PROPOSE PLAN TO RUN BUSES

at yesterday's special meeting of the Board of Estimate. More than 100 spectators had gathered. Three uniformed policemen in addition to Lieutenant Edward J. Quinn and Detective Sergeant Thomas Reilly, regularly assigned to the Mayor's office, were present.

The Mayor's New Statement.

The Mayor's first action was to direct the policemen to preserve order. He then announced he had a statement, which he read, as follows:

"The impression that is being conveyed and, in fact, the statement that some of the Republican Assemblymen and newspaper propagandists are making, that the reason we want municipal ownership and operation of buses at a 5-cent fare, is to create new positions, is absolutely false, and those that are giving it out know it.

"The Republican Assemblymen, newspaper men, McAneny and the rest of the crew, who are opposing municipally owned and operated city buses at a 5-cent fare and a special session of the Legislature to give the municipal authorities the necessary power because they are afraid that somebody will have a few positions to fill, know as well as I do that such positions will be filled from the Civil Service lists promulgated after examinations, which Republicans, Democrats and Socialists would be eligible to enter.

"It is most amazing what this crew will do to throw dust in the eyes of the people. The people of this city want municipal operation of buses at a 5-cent fare and they want the $4,000,000 yearly profits to go into the City Treasury. In so far as I am concerned, I am going to oppose the private interests getting these valuable franchise privileges that are worth $50,000,000, and I shall oppose the $4,000,000 yearly profit going into the pockets of the private interests, and do all in my power to protect the public from the peddling of watered bus stock."

Following the reading of this statement, the Mayor directed a clerk to read a copy of the following telegram he had sent to Speaker H. Edmund Machold and Assemblyman Simon L. Adler, majority leader of the Assembly, asking for bus legislation:

"A recent decision of the Court of Appeals will stop the operation of all municipally supervised bus lines in the City of New York. These buses give daily service to a quarter of a million people who have no other means of transportation. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment is prepared to furnish adequate bus service wherever required in this city. It has a plan for the operation of 3,500 municipal buses, which will turn in no less than $4,000,000 yearly to the city treasury and help reduce taxation.

Sees Feast for Corporations.

"We need enabling legislation to carry out our plan. A special session of the Legislature can grant it. If we do not get legislation empowering the city to purchase and operate buses, the bus franchises, valued at $50,000,000 and representing the people's last valuable privilege, will go to the private corporations. These corporations will make a profit of not less than $10,000,000 a year on operation and begin the amassing of huge private fortunes through the usual traction methods of stock jobbery.

"The people of this city have had their fill of the private operation of traction lines. They do not want the valuable bus franchises to go to the traction corporations, or their friends in the newspaper world, political organizations or private life. In their behalf I ask your co-operation. You can help to protect the rights of the people that the traction corporations, which are interested in private profit and not service, are about to flout."

Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, attacked the bus drivers, who are forming a corporation to apply for a franchise, and characterized the movement as "a smoke screen for the Transit Commission." Mr. Whalen said that at the issuance of each injunction against a bus line some firm of lawyers had attempted to organize and incorporate the bus operators. He said he doubted if the city would be able to control bus operation properly if franchises should be granted.

"Don't worry," said the Mayor. "There'll be no franchises granted if I can help it. We'll fight them to the bitter end."

Mr. Whalen repeated that every time a bus line had been enjoined a firm of lawyers had sought to "save the situation and collect fees from the bus operators."

"Is that the same firm of lawyers that is going to organize a corporation and issue $3,000,000 worth of stock?" the Mayor asked.

Bus Owners Treated Fairly.

"No, I don't think so," replied Mr. Whalen. "Anyway, these bus drivers do not need lawyers. They have been fairly dealt with by the Department of Plant and Structures."

Mr. Whalen added that, if franchises should be granted, the Transit Commission would have supervision of the bus lines and he did not believe the commission's inspectors were competent. "White collar inspectors can never get a proper report on equipment," he said. "All they do is to take the reports of the railroad companies and assume they are correct."

Although the Board of Estimate room was full of men interested in the bus situation, the Mayor decided not to hear them, as there was nothing that could be done by the board.

"The matter is in the hands of the Governor," the Mayor said.

I. Lewis Dreeben, attorney for the bus drivers who are trying to incorporate, attempted to address the board. "Mr. Mayor—" he began.

"Now, no Mr. Mayor," said Mayor Hylan. "You're a lawyer, aren't you?"

"I am, but I am not speaking as a lawyer," replied Mr. Dreeben.

"Never mind," said the Mayor. "Officer, see that he sits down."

The board then proceeded to transact a few items of routine business before adjourning.

Another Statement by Mayor.

In his statement attacking the certificate of convenience and necessity, the Mayor said:

"At last the mysterious 'certificate of convenience and necessity' has been dragged out into the broad light of day. This high-sounding phrase, 'certificate of convenience and necessity,' is being understood by the plain people for whom it was never intended to be intelligible.

"This small, innocent-looking group of words has been inserted in the law to give the traction magnates everything that they want. It is a neat little trick to render more certain the robbing of the public by the traction corporations. That is its purpose, nothing else. Isn't that a wonderful way of giving service to the people?

"The real purpose of this phrase will not, of course, be acknowledged by the traction trio composed of the McAneny State Transit Commission, the traction interests with shady pasts, and the Republican leaders and legislators who are willing to sacrifice their party to carry the errands of the traction corporations. That triumvirate is announcing that the certificate of convenience and necessity contains the great cure-all for the existing bus paralysis brought about by traction manipulation.

"The Transit Commission and its predecessor, the Public Service Commission, always have held that the moving factor in the granting of a certificate of convenience and necessity is whether the territory affected by the proposed new line is at the moment receiving adequate service. In other words, the commission must first ask the traction companies whether the city may install a transit line. The people have about as much chance of getting a bus line where they need it under such conditions as McAneny has of being elected to public office in this city.

Cites 65th Street Controversy.

"The Transit Commission could not grant a certificate of convenience and necessity for the bus line on Sixty-fifth Street which formerly was operated under municipal supervision. It will be recalled that the Belt Line Railroad Corporation brought an action against the city to restrain the operation of buses on Sixty-fifth Street. This corporation was determined to prevent the operation of city buses a mile distant from its own line. It would require an unusual stretch of the imagination to believe that this bus service was competitive with that of the distant railroad company. Yet that company pretended that such was the case and Justice Delehanty of the Supreme Court, New York County, granted an injunction against the city on that basis. In this specific instance the Transit Commission would be obliged to refuse a certificate to a municipal bus line on Sixty-fifth Street because the Court has ruled that such a line, temporarily established, did compete with an existing street car line. The traction corporations now have a precedent which they will not be slow in citing to keep municipal buses off the streets of this city.

"Assuming that the Transit Commission did grant a certificate of convenience and necessity in the instance mentioned, the Third Avenue Railroad Company or some other transit corporation would in all likelihood make a similar application, as did the Belt Line Railroad, for an injunction, and lay stress upon the fact that the merits of the case had already been examined by the Supreme Court and a decision rendered. The battery of trained traction attorneys would keep the city in the courts and by repeated delays and appeals and endless hair-splitting prevent the initiation of needed transit facilities while the crafty brigands of the traction interests continued to mulct the people.

"It is a waste of time to go to the Transit Commission created by the traction attorney at Syracuse and ask for the issuance of certificates of convenience and necessity which the traction corporations would pigeon-hole in the Transit Commission or club to death in the courts. The only thing to do is for the people to clean up this whole mess themselves by demanding that their legislators vote squarely in the interest of the city by vesting the duly elected local representatives of the people with power to purchase, own and operate municipal buses to meet the surface transportation requirements in this city."

Mayor Hylan was upheld in his fight for city-owned buses by the Central Trades and Labor Council, representing 700,000 workers, at its meeting at Beethoven Hall last night. The Council also approved a recommendation that its non-partisan political agents "pay strict attention" to Assemblymen who at the last session of the Legislature at Albany had been hostile to the Hylan transit program.

The action was taken in adoption of a partial report submitted by the Transit Committee of the Council, which read:

"Your committee recommends that the Mayor be commended for his excellent stand in the present situation, and offers such assistance as will secure proper transit for the great mass of the people of this city.

"We further recommend that our Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committees in the Boroughs of Manhattan and Brooklyn pay strict attention to those Assemblymen, without regard to their political affiliation, who were so careless and shortsighted when the Donohue bill was before the Assembly."

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 19.—Mayor Frank X. Schwab today wrote to Governor Alfred E. Smith urging him to call a special session of the Legislature to amend the Transportation law.

Failure of the International Railway to supply adequate street car service and court decisions holding that municipalities are without the legal right to operate emergency bus lines, Mayor Schwab says, have created a situation demanding immediate relief.

The amendment of the Transportation law sought by Mayor Schwab would permit cities of the first class to own and operate buses or authorize the granting of franchises to private corporations without the consent of the Public Service Commission.

SUMMIT, N. J., July 19.—There is only one worth-while golf title in the world and that is the metropolitan open championship. So, at least, one would judge from the way the big fellows of golf are jockeying for positions for the final 36-hole dash which will decide who is to carry on as exalted ruler for 1923, succeeding Marty O'Loughlin of Plainfield, N. J.

When the second 18-hole round of the year's metropolitan event was finished today at Canoe Brook the stars of the royal and ancient pastime were buzzing around the trophy like flies around the top of a sugar bowl. Reading down the list was like glancing through the pages of "Who's Who in Golf." Out of the first fifteen names that met the eye as many as ten belonged to players who have been decorated with golf titles. Ex-champions abounded. The very fact that it is necessary to fasten the prefix is the reason for the extreme zeal with which the pros are striving to gain this year's crown.

For these are days when every little title has a jingle all its own. Fame is fleeting and without fame there is not much a golf pro can do except preside over a practice tee and adjust stances and backswings at $2 an hour. With a title and, as a corollary, with fame, a golfer can command many times that amount an hour. Hence, the premium placed on titles. Hence, the star field in this year's metropolitan. Hence, the blasting of records. The days of the gold rush are here again.

Whatever the motive back of all that happened here today, it was commendable from one standpoint, for no metropolitan classic has ever had a more momentous day. The Canoe Brook course record was smashed and re-smashed and all the stars shone with unusual brilliance. All in all, it was a day of days for metropolitan golf.

MacDonald Sets Record.

Early in the afternoon Lanky Bob MacDonald of Chicago, winner of the title in 1921, went out and established a new competitive record for the course with a round of 69, four under par. There was a mark of 69 already on the books at Canoe Brook, made by the home pro, Isaac Mackie, but it was not made under the same conditions as MacDonald's mark today. Only a short time later Joseph Kirkwood, trick shot artist from Australia, went MacDonald one better by registering a 68. Before these two events of importance transpired Long Jim Barnes of Pelham, national open champion in 1921, suddenly appeared out of the vale of disappointment with a 70.

These three achievements placed the doers thereof in a commanding position for the final sprint tomorrow. Kirkwood's 68 put him right up in the front line. So did MacDonald's 69. The pair now share the top rung with MacDonald Smith, the Californian, who, although adding two strokes to his 72 of yesterday, is still one of the favorites to win this year's event with a total of 146. In fact there isn't a single man in the field who has been as steady as the rejuvenated linksman from the Coast. His work today was almost as faultless as it was yesterday, and a continuation of the form he has shown to date will place him close to the title tomorrow night.

Walter Hagen, whose collection of titles has dwindled perceptibly since he sailed to England this Spring, is in a dangerous position—fourth place—just a shot away from the leaders. Walter, selecting his own starting time today, vindicated his judgment by shooting a 74, giving him a total of 147 strokes for the two rounds. Barnes and Johnny Farrell of Quaker Ridge are tied for fifth, Long Jim's 70 today improving his lot considerably. Farrell, who was in a tie for the lead after the first day, slipped off a few strokes on his round today, taking a 76.

A stroke behind them are Emmett French, Youngstown, Ohio, pro, and Bobby Cruickshank of Shackamaxon, runner-up to Bobby Jones in the national open this year. Both succeeded in bettering their first day's score by a stroke, their cards being 74s, which gave them a total of 149. Three are tied at 150, two of them being members of the quartet that led the field on the first round. Tommy Kerrigan, Siwanoy, and Harry Hampton, Brooklands, took 78s today where they required only 72 yesterday. In their class is Tommy Harmon Jr. of Hudson River. They are followed by Johnny Golden with a total of 151. Gene Sarazen of Briarcliff Lodge, Francis Gallett of Port Washington and Abe Espinosa, another Coast golfer, with totals of 152. That makes fifteen players all within six shots of the leaders on the eve of the final thirty-six-hole fest.

48 Remain in Field.

According to the system of elimination followed this year all those whose scores for the two rounds were 159 or less remain in the race for the championship and the prize awards. There were just fifty, but of these two withdrew—Jack Burke of St. Paul and Tom Stevens of Minnekahda, who were among those tied at 158—leaving a field of forty-eight in the championship proper.

Hagen and Kirkwood, who are still doing their stunts together, were scheduled to start at 2 o'clock this afternoon, but when the hour struck Joe was there, and so was the crowd. But Walter wasn't. In fact Walter wasn't for an hour. Hagen is a firm believer in the doctrine that early to start, or even starting on scheduled time, is conducive neither to health, wealth or happiness. So Joe, with his trick shots, amused the gallery while Walter prepared to make his bow. But there is one thing that makes Hagen worth waiting for. He seldom disappoints and today was no exception, for once he and Kirkwood got started some magnificent golf resulted.

Hagen only did the possible. Kirkwood did the next to impossible. By the time that the ninth hole was reached the Australian was two under par with a brilliant 33, while Hagen was even with par. Coming up to the last two holes, Kirkwood had two 4's left for a 68 and a new mark. The seventeenth hole is 517 yards, par 5, and a hard par 5. He had a fine drive but a long wooden shot left to get the green, but he played one of the finest shots ever made by a golfer, the ball fading in at the finish and stopping within twenty feet of the hole. He had a tricky putt left to make with a knoll in the green to figure, but he came within the fraction of an inch of getting his 3.

Then, going to the home hole, he was guilty of his only bad shot. He pushed his ball off to the right and into the rough on an embankment. To all appearances the best left for him was a tie with MacDonald. But his chip was perfectly gauged and went straight for the hole, missing it narrowly but stopping less than a yard away. He was given an ovation when he dropped the putt into the cup for a new mark.

Kirkwood had two birdies in order at the second and third holes. At the first of these his drive left him only a mashie shot, which he laid close enough for an easy putt for a 3 and at the next he almost drove the 268-yard green. His next shot was within a foot of the hole. After that he was even pars to the turn. He registered two more birdies at the tenth and eleventh, approaching to within four feet at the tenth and using only one putt at the eleventh. After that he was all pars until his birdie 4 at the seventeenth.

Hagen was not as fortunate in getting his birdies as was Kirkwood, but his 3 at the second hole made up for his 4 at the eighth. After that the only time he was over par was at the long thirteenth hole, where his mashie niblick shot traveled a trifle too far and went over the green, losing him a stroke playing back. He saved his par at the seventeenth with a true Hagen recovery. After hooking his second into the rough at the left of the green, several yards off the line, he pitched back to within ten feet and holed the putt. He experienced ill-luck at the ninth when a magnificent putt from some distance away hit the hole and refused to stay in.

Like Kirkwood, MacDonald was also out in 33. He had four birdies in the first nine holes, one at the first, where he got down a 20-footer, another at the third, where he drove the green and was on the lip of the cup for a 2, his third at the fourth hole, where he dropped a ten-foot putt, and his fourth at the long sixth hole, where his approach stopped within two yards of the hole. His only mistakes for the outgoing round came at the second and eighth holes, at each of which he dropped a stroke to par. At the second he was short of the green on his second and at the eighth he was trapped on a mashie shot. After the turn he had birdies at the twelfth and thirteenth, where his approaches left him almost dead to the pin. He was on the lip for a 2 at the fourteenth and needing only a pair of 4s for a 68 going to the seventeenth he lost a shot at the hole by playing his second to the rough.

It was a great day for Barnes, whose putting touch, long a truant, came back to him. He got a good start with three birdies in the first four holes. He ran down a long putt on the first green, but was close to the cup at the third and fourth for easy 3s. The missing of an eighteen-inch putt lost him a stroke at the fifth, but outside of that he was only twice over par, once at the seventh hole and again at the thirteenth, where he overplayed his chip shot and took a 6. He made up the loss by running down a four-yarder at the next hole and saved another stroke on the home green when he dropped one in at three yards.

Farrell Has Trouble.

Farrell's inability to get any putts of length to drop for him was responsible for his 76. Out in 36 after three putts at the first six holes, Johnny was in a nice position for a good score until he reached the last three holes. On these he lost four strokes to par. At the sixteenth he hooked to a trap and then took three putts from the edge of the green for a five and at the seventeenth his troubles were almost identical. Three more putts were responsible for his five at the home green. But for his downfall at the finish of the round, Johnny would tonight be sitting in the leading chariot. Kerrigan's and Golden's troubles lay in the same direction, the former having four three-putt greens and two misses of less than a yard checked off against him.

Cruickshank, fully rested after his ten days' excitement, was keen in anticipation of the morrow. His round of 74 today, while outstripped by that of Barnes, MacDonald and Kirkwood, left him high up. The little Scot was hitting the ball better than at any time since Inwood. His putting was a little shaky, but outside that he had no complaints. His worst misfortune was his miss of a one-footer at the fifth hole and three putts at the seventh. Coming in he had short putts to make for birdies at the sixteenth and seventeenth but missed them both. Sarazen was off on his irons. He started out badly with a five and a six, but thereafter was never worse than fives.

AMERICAN FENCERS VICTORIOUS ABROAD

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, July 19.—American swordsmen took a commanding lead in the international fencing meet against Great Britain by capturing the foils event at the Hotel Cecil tonight.

Seven hundred fashionably dressed fencing enthusiasts cheered the American victory, which demonstrated the invaders' all around superiority. The Americans' fencing was marked by tigerish attacks, which overthrew the perfect form of the Britishers.

The American team is composed of Henry Breckenridge, Lieut. G. O. Calnan, A. S. Lyon and Major H. F. Raynor, while R. Montgomerie, Bensen Cooke, P. G. Doyne and E. Seligman represented Great Britain. Calnan starred, winning all his four bouts for America. The Americans scored a total of 68 hits against 58.

The bout was decided by the best out of nine points, each fencer meeting every man on the opposing team. The results were as follows:

Lyon lost to Seligman and Montgomerie, but beat Doyne and Cooke. Raynor beat Doyne, Cooke and Montgomerie and lost to Seligman. Calnan made a clean sweep. Breckenridge lost to Montgomerie and Seligman and beat Doyne and Cooke.

The second clash will come tomorrow night with the epee as a weapon. The third test, that with the sabre, will be made Monday.

BIKE STARS RACE TONIGHT.

Eighteen bicycle teams will ride in the two-hour team race at the New York Velodrome tonight. The race calls for a sprint every two miles and in the course of the evening there should be about twenty-five sprints, which is approximately the number cycling fans see in the closing hour of a six-day grind. Alf Goullet, king of the six-day riders, and his young partner, Freddie Spencer, probably will be the popular favorites tonight, but it is admitted that Goullet will have to ride hard to win to offset the inexperience of his partner. Alf is a battler, however, and can be depended on to stay in the race right down to the final sprint.

Other strong teams will be the Willie Spencer-Peter Van Kempen, Willie Keller-Ray Eaton and Reggie McNamara-Alf Grenda combinations.

The remaining teams will be Bergamini and Mori, De Wolfe and Stockelynch, Young and Jaeger, Magin and Hill, Bello and Kopsky, Taylor and Walthour, Verraes and Declerck, Patrick and Nunziata, Leene and Louet, Lorenz and Beckman, Patti and Cozzolino, Smith and Martinelli, Kall and McFarland, Zipf and Ulrich.

Sunday night racing will be inaugurated this coming Sunday night with a one-hour motor-paced race, the race of nations, as the feature. The starters will be Clarence Carman, Vincent Madonna, Frank Corry, Henry Wynsdau, Jean Snoek and Karl Saldow.

This organization is to be patterned after the Y. M. C. A. and is to be supported by the members as well as by gifts from individuals and municipalities.

SUE DONOVAN GAINS NEW TURF LAURELS

6TH VICTORY IN 9 STARTS

Two-Year-Old Carries 112 Pounds Full Six Furlongs—Five Favorites Win.

Consistent Sue Donovan, William Daniel's brown daughter of Black Toney and Lady Installator, added to her reputation for always winning or being in the money, when she captured the $3,000 Sprightful Stakes for two-year-olds, the leading number on the card at the Empire City track yesterday afternoon. The filly really outclassed her field in the dash of about six furlongs, and while she was a bit slow in getting away she went around the leaders and came home a winner by three-quarters of a length from J. S. Cosden's Neptune in 1:11 over a fast track. The race was worth $2,075 to the owner of the winner, which was the outstanding favorite, closing at 9 to 5.

Sue Donovan's was not the only victory that cheered some of the despondent followers of thoroughbred form, as five favorites came home in front during the afternoon in welcome contrast to results on the days immediately preceding. The weather again was ideal, the track in splendid shape and a large crowd was on hand. Chick Lang carried off the riding honors of the afternoon, landing Lady Rose in front in the six-furlong sprint, and riding Sligo to victory in the closing dash for maiden two-year-olds.

Six Go to the Post.

The Sprightful Stakes, which has been a fixture at the hilltop course since 1916, when it was inaugurated with a victory by R. T. Wilson's Straight Forward, closed on Feb. 1 with 112 nominations, of which six went to the post in the fourth race. The public could see nothing but the filly, which opened with a big play at 8 to 5, went to 11 to 5, and closed at 9 to 5. There was somewhat of a following for Neptune at 9 to 2, and for R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Broomfield, at 7 to 2, on the possibility that Sue Donovan could not carry top weight of 112 pounds over the longest distance she has been asked to travel in her racing career.

A. H. Morris's Freedom's Call was first to show as they were sent away to a good start on the far side of the track, but the colt had only a flash of speed and quit to finish next to last. Once Sue Donovan got under way she quickly disposed of the colt and opened up daylight. Neptune followed with the filly as she went into the lead, but Sue always held the son of Sea King safely and there were no anxious moments for her backers from the time she went to the front until she passed the winning post with a margin of nearly a length. Neptune was a length and a half in front of Broomfield, which took the short end of the money by three lengths from the Greentree Stable's, Fredericktown. Marimee rode a nice race on the filly and it was Marimee who brought home the winner of the stake a year ago—A. H. Morris's Jolly.

Victory Is Applauded.

Sue Donovan's victory was most popular and horse and rider were given a warm reception when they returned to the scales. The filly has had a remarkable racing career. She has been in training constantly since the first of January and seems to thrive on racing. She has started nine times and has won six of her races. On the other three occasions she was second, having been beaten twice by Humorette and once by Jimson. She won one race at New Orleans, one at Tijuana and the others on the New York tracks. She is a credit to her sire, Black Toney, which is owned by Ed Bradley, who saw her decisively beat her field yesterday. Jockey Frank Coltiletti was set down for three days for rough-riding on Freedom's Call.

Spalding L. Jenkins's Polly Ann, the five-year-old daughter of Superman, carried off the Columbia Handicap at a mile and seventy yards and altogether it was a notable afternoon for the female of the species at the Yonkers course, as Water Girl won the Unity Purse over the same route, and one of the events of the card was restricted to members of the gentler sex.

Jones Seeks Amateur Crown; Enters National Tournament

Having gained the national open golf championship, Bobby Jones of Harvard University and Atlanta, Ga., has already set his cap for the national amateur crown. No sooner had Bobby returned to Atlanta than he wired his entry for the amateur championship which will be played at Flossmoor, Chicago, in September. Jones thus has the honor of being the No. 1 entrant for the 1923 event. There are many ardent golfers who predict that Bobby will walk through the field in the amateur, their predictions being based on his past performances in that event and on the fact that his victory in the open was just the thing necessary to bring him to the place that his game warrants—at the head of the list.

RUMSON POLOISTS DEFEAT BRYN MAWR

Will Play in Final Match for Cups as Result of 11 to 7 Victory.

Special to The New York Times.

RUMSON, N. J., July 19.—Rumson did not have as hard a tussle with Bryn Mawr in the Rumson polo tournament as was generally expected, and did not need the conceded handicap of 3 goals, for today the Rumson players trimmed the Philadelphians by the score of 11 goals to 7.

By this victory Rumson earned the right to play in the final match for the Rumson Country Club cups to be staged Sunday afternoon on Herbert Field. Rumson will meet the winner of tomorrow's game between the Miami Valley team from Dayton, Ohio, and the Flamingos.

Some fast riding and some clever mallet work and team play by General Howard S. Borden and W. Strother Jones Jr. featured the match. Rumson seemed to be better mounted and led from start to finish. In the third chukker Barclay McFadden was thrown from his pony, but escaped injury.

The summary:

Al Brown, a clubmate of the winner, with a time allowance of 9 seconds, finished second, and Joseph Nardiello, unattached, took third. Nardiello's handicap was 16 seconds. The fast time prize for this event went to Leeming Jelliffe, former captain of the Yale swimming team, who swam the 100 meters in 1:04 3-5 in one of the trial heats. Jelliffe, swimming from scratch, did not survive to compete in the final.

THREE HOMERS WIN GAME

Mueller Makes Two and Bottomley One—McGraw's Men Miss Chance in Sixth.

The ancient cunning in the right arm of old Bill Doak, probably the best spitball pitcher ever born in Pittsburgh, flared up brightly for nine innings yesterday afternoon and won another ball game for the St. Louis Cardinals, who beat the Giants, 3 to 0, and took their second straight game of the series at the Polo Grounds.

Bill twirled just the way he did when he was the leading pitcher of the National League—before he succumbed to the infirmities of baseball old age and became only a tired business man. Doak, of course, isn't a Jess Willard or even a Babe Adams, being merely a callow lad of 32. But last year he slipped back and this Spring he slipped some more, and he hasn't beaten the Giants since the happy, care-free days last season when the Cardinals were considered pennant contenders.

Still, it was only a mild surprise when the spitballer held the Giants to six scattered hits yesterday and whitewashed them inning after inning until the regulation nine had been reached. Anybody can beat the Giants these days—especially anybody with a slow ball. The champs are in a bad batting slump and they know it and are showing the usual symptoms—overanxiety to hit the ball. Probably more bad balls were hit at by McGraw's sluggers yesterday than you will see in an entire normal week.

Doak's only trouble was with his control. He gave six bases on balls and seemed to have only a vague idea where the plate was. Now and then one of Branch Rickey's lieutenants would dash out and remind Bill that the thing he ought to aim at was the little white object in front of the catcher. Whereupon Bill would tighten his belt, expectorate freely and with deftness, and waft up balls so slow that by the time they got there the Giants, straining at the leash, would break their backs in mighty and futile swings.

Homers Win the Game.

The Cardinals helped along by doing some well-placed and effective hitting, working on the home-run-or-no-count basis. Three runs, three homers—that was the story. Heinie Mueller smashed one to left centre in the second for the first St. Louis run, and after Jim Bottomley had done the same thing into the upper right field tier in the sixth Mueller came up again two or three minutes later and hit another, this time a swat so terrific that it landed against the green facing near the roof and almost got clear over.

Mueller's first trot around the bases got John Watson into something of a hole, and it was really Irish Meusel's fault. Irish didn't do as well as he might have on the fly and let it get past him to the fence, where the ball dodged under a small bench and hid coyly away. By the time Meusel had overtaken the pill and flung it home Mueller was receiving congratulations from Branch Rickey.

The Cardinals got two hits in each of the next two innings, but couldn't capitalize. Hornsby and Bottomley singled with none out in the fourth, but with Stock at bat the hit and run failed and Rogers was nipped by Gowdy and Groh at third, despite a great slide. Stock then walked, but Mueller and Ainsmith grounded out.

Singles by Toporcer and Flack were wasted in the fifth, but the shell fire in the sixth was devastating. First of all, Bottomley hoisted one into the right field sector. Stock grounded out, but Mueller duplicated the Bottomley episode. Then Eddie Ainsmith hit the longest one of all, a solid line drive down the alley in left centre. Anybody but Ainsmith, Fred Toney or Frank Snyder would have made four bases easily, but Eddie was content with three and drew up puffing.

When Toporcer splashed one at Watson, Ainsmith tried to rumble home but there was daylight between him and the plate. Here occurred an exciting incident. Ainsmith, so Hank Gowdy claimed, rode in "high" with intent to maim and cripple. Resenting this procedure, Hank took the quaint method of kicking back at his persecutor, and then the two of them stood chest to chest and debated the point. Hank couldn't be appeased and brooded over it for the remainder of the afternoon, muttering angrily to himself from time to time.

Against Doak the Giants were powerless until the sixth when the spitballer suddenly grew wild. He walked Young, the first batter, but Groh came to the rescue by hitting into a double play. Frisch singled to centre and Meusel and Stengel were passed, filling the bases. All O'Connell could produce was a high fly which Mueller snagged in centre.

Giant Rallies Checked.

Young singled as the eighth began, but Ainsmith raced back to the screen and picked Groh's foul from the wire. Frisch stooped over for a low and wide one, barely scooped it from the ground and raised a foolish pop fly to Stock, killing the rally dead.

The ninth, too, was promising for a while. Stengel walked, and O'Connell hit the ball hard but straight at Toporcer, who snapped it up and started a fast double play with the assistance of Bottomley. However, Jackson walked and Goudy singled. If Jack Bentley, batting for Watson, had only hit a homer, the game might have been saved. But Jack didn't hit a homer What he did do was to elevate a foul which Bottomley had no trouble at all surrounding for the final out.

PIRATES WIN, 8-6; MAKE TRIPLE PLAY

BOSTON, July 19.—Pittsburgh defeated the Boston Braves today by a score of 8 to 6.

In the eighth inning the Pirates killed a Boston rally by making a triple play. Powell singled and Southworth walked, at which point Meadows was replaced by Steineder. McInnis then lined out to Traynor who threw to S. Adams at second, the latter throwing to Grimm at first, retiring Powell and Southworth before they could return to their bases.

BEHAN IS INJURED AS PHILLIES LOSE

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—The Chicago Cubs evened the series with Philadelphia today by taking a one-sided game, 7 to 1. Behan, Phillies' twirler, was carried from the field in the ninth inning when a line drive from Statz's bat hit him on the forehead. He was not seriously hurt.

Two singles mixed with an infield out gave the Phils a run in the ninth that averted a shutout.

Caught at the Plate.

It developed that Kelly was out of the game, not with a bruised knee, but with a broken blood vessel in the instep. Quite a difference between the knee and ankle when you're built on the flowing lines of George.

However, it's nothing serious, and he will be back within a day or two.

Fortunately, the Reds lost and the country is still safe. By losing the Giants dropped below the .500 mark in their home stand against the West—seven won and eight lost.

A handful of grandstand patrons hooted when Frisch went after a low ball and popped up in the eighth. A new experience for the Flash, that one.

Just before that Frankie stood still and let one of Doak's floaters hit him in the small of the back. But Umpire Finneran was wise to the trick and refused to let him take his base.

O'Connell was out of luck with his batting. In the fifth Hornsby skipped back of second and made a handsome stop and throw on the Coast lad.

According to gossip in the St. Louis camp, the request for waivers on Jeff Pfeffer will be withdrawn and the pitcher retained because the Reds and Giants are angling for him.

RUTH MAKES THREE HITS

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, July 19.—Sam Jones suffered his first defeat in eight consecutive starts today when the Tigers defeated the Yankees 9 to 2 in the second game of a series of four. Thirteen hits for seventeen bases were made off Jones, who was batted out of the box in the seventh inning. Pillette, a right-hander, pitched for the Tigers and held the Yankees to six hits, three of which were made by Ruth, who doubled in the first inning and singled in the third and eighth.

Schang reported to Manager Huggins this morning and batted for Scott in the ninth inning. Schang is not yet in condition to resume regular work behind the bat but will remain with the club as a pinch hitter.

After being out of the game with injuries sustained in New York last month, Blue returned to first base for the Tigers today and was chiefly responsible for the Yankees' first run. With one out in the opening round, Dugan grounded to Pillette, who made a perfect throw to first. Blue made no attempt to catch it and Dugan sprinted to third before Heilmann returned the ball. Ruth then doubled and Dugan scored. Pipp's infield out put Ruth on third, but Smith's roller to Haney left the Babe stranded.

Tigers Tie Score in Fourth.

Neither side threatened in the second, but with one out in the third Dugan singled and went to third on Ruth's single. Pipp grounded to Blue, and Dugan was caught in a run-up. Smith tapped to Pillette for an easy third out. Bashler beat out a hit to Dugan at the start of the Tigers' half but Pillette bunted straight to Jones, and a double play ended the rally. In the fourth Blue led off with a triple and scored the tying run on Veach's infield out. Fothergill singled after a running catch by Ward had robbed Heilmann of a hit, but was forced at second on Rigney's drive to Scott. A double play saved Jones in the fifth.

Jones was not so fortunate in the sixth. Blue led off with a double and Veach's bunt became a base hit when Jones and Hofmann collied. Heilmann singled, scoring Blue, and Jones filled the bases by hitting Fothergill. Rigney scored and Heilmann and Fothergill advanced a base on Rigney's fly to Witt and Jones filled the bases again by passing Bassler purposely. Pillette singled, scoring Heilmann and Fothergill, but Ward prevented further scoring by converting Haney's grounder into a snappy double play.

Jones Driven From Mound.

The Tigers renewed their drive in the seventh and hammered Jones off the mound. Singles by Jones and Veach and a pass to Heilmann filled the bases with one out and Forthergill cleared the bases with a double to the score board in left. Roettger, a recruit right-hander, replaced Jones and the next two men were easy outs.

After Dugan had filed to Veach in the eighth, Ruth singled and sprinted to third on Veach's fumble. Pipp grounded to Haney, but Ruth scored on Smith's single. In the second half the Tigers scored another run on a base on balls, Haney's steal of second and an error by Scott.

Boy Who Got Ball in Stands Found Not Guilty of Larceny

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—A boy who gets a baseball in the bleachers to take home as a souvenir is acting on the natural impulse of all boys and is not guilty of larceny, according to a decision handed down today by Judge Brown in Municipal Court. Robert Cotter, 11, was sitting in the bleachers at the Philadelphia National League park when a foul fly came in his direction and he put the ball in his pocket. The boy was turned over to a police sergeant and taken to the house of detention, where he spent the night.

CLEVELAND, July 19.—Coveleskie vanquished Russell in a pitchers' battle today, Cleveland winning, 3 to 2. Coveleskie held the Senators safe except in the fifth inning, when a single by Leibold, Bluege's triple and Goslin's single produced two runs. Speaker's extra base drives won the game for the Indians. Because of the illness of Umpire Evans, Frank Roth, coach of the Cleveland pitchers, aided Umpire Hildebrand.

VANCE INVINCIBLE; ROBINS BEAT REDS

Vance pitched and Brooklyn won yesterday's game from Cincinnati at Ebbet's Field, 1 to 0. Simply another case of cause and effect. Rube Benton, Frank Keck and the eight other Reds were pretty good, but Vance was a shade better and that shade decided the outcome. Benton began in the box for the visiting team but gave way to a pinch hitter in the ninth and Keck finished up. The game was close, but not thrilling. A pitchers' battle in which one team gets four hits and the other five is not calculated to be unusually exciting.

Vance was the hurler to give the four hits and two of the four came with two out. That means that the visitors not only could not hit Vance; they couldn't even threaten him. He issued but two bases on balls and no Red runner got further than second base. No chance to beat that kind of pitching!

Benton, too, was in form and proved it in the fourth, when, with the bases full and none out, he stopped the Robins cold, not a run scoring. But Rube made one great mistake, or rather his support made it for him. That was the permitting of that one run. It was scored in the second inning and gave Vance just the confidence and lead he needed.

This is the way it happened: Bert Griffith singled to right field and was promptly forced at second base on De Berry's splash to Fonseca. McCarren dropped a Texas leaguer in centre, which Roush, bounding in like an antelope, might have captured had not Fonseca dashed back and slowed him up in his final strides. DeBerry, of course, got no further than second. Little Andy High grounded to Fonseca and McCarren was forced out, but Caveney, hurrying his throw for a double at first, threw wide to Bressler and the ball rolled to the grand stand, while DeBerry was rolling over the plate. That was run, advantage and ball game, as they would say in tennis.

The Robins got some more potential runs on through the agency of three more hits, and three bases on balls, but most of these Brooklyn runners faded out on force plays at second base, the Reds turning back nine in this manner. There were diamond statisticians in the press box who averred that nine was a record number of force-outs at one base for a single game. Be that as it may, the visitors' habit of waylaying Robin base runners in that manner was not only decidedly annoying, but also effectually prevented any further scoring by the Flatbush fellows.

The closest that Brooklyn came to counting again was in the fourth, and, as previously mentioned, Benton just closed up like a clam and refused to allow it. After DeBerry had singled and Bohne threw wide to second on McCarren's grounder, Andy High beat out a perfect bunt past Benton and the bases were packed. Right then Benton began to pitch. He made Vance hit to Caveney and Jimmy shot the ball right back to Wingo, forcing DeBerry at the plate. Bailey rolled to Bressler and Wingo got the Rube's toss in his big glove just in time to force McCarren. The infield fell back and Jimmy Johnson slammed one through the box, but Fonseca was squarely in front of it and his throw to Bressler retired the side scoreless and disgruntled, as well it might have been.

It is pretty hard to select a time when the Reds were nearest to evening up the count. They were always a long way from that goal, although they tried desperately in every inning. Probably their best chance was in the ninth, when, after Bohne and Roush had been retired, Pat Duncan laced a scorching double to left and the fans pulled up sharp on their way to the exits. Every man in the Reds' dugout rushed out as Duncan's smash whistled over third and Louis Fonseca got many a slap on the back as he went up to bat and do or die for dear old Cincinnati. The verdict was death, his offering being a high fly to short left field, which settled in High's glove.

REACH SEMI-FINALS FOR LONGWOOD CUP

DOUBLES PLAY PROGRESSES

Three Matches in Fourth Round Are Disposed Of and Semi-Finals Will Be Staged Today.

Special to The New York Times.

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass., July 19.—R. Norris Williams 2d and Carl Fischer of Philadelphia, Harvey Snodgrass of California and Nat Niles of Boston all qualified for the semi-finals in the Longwood Bowl tournament this afternoon, and tomorrow the two Philadelphians will meet, while Snodgrass and Niles will fight it out for the honor of playing in the final on Saturday.

In the doubles three matches in the fourth round were played, the winners being Wallace Bates and Harvey Snodgrass and Phil Neer and James Davies, both these teams entering from the Pacific Coast, and Lawrence B. Rice paired with S. Kashio. The play extended until almost dark today owing to the late start of the third round doubles match between Shimizu and Fukuda against Nat Niles and R. Norris Williams. The Americans won the first set of this match, but lost the next two, being outplayed during the progress of the match.

Arnold Jones and W. W. Ingraham, who had qualified in the third round, waited for a chance to play the winners, but when the three-set contest was over it was too late to start. Accordingly, Jones and Ingraham and the Japanese pair will be out on the court early tomorrow afternoon to play their fourth round match, and the winners, after a short rest, will be required to play in the semi-finals against Rice and Kashio.

In the doubles today the two California teams showed considerably more ability than the others. Bates and Snodgrass won their match from the Fischer brothers of Philadelphia, 6—4, 6—3, while Neer and Davies beat C. K. Shaw and Clyde Curley of Providence, 6—2, 11—13, 6—4.

Americans Handicapped.

Rice and Kashio had a three-set match with Gardner and Harry Johnson, the Longwood pair, winning the first, 6—4, then losing the second set, 7—9, but winning the third set, 7—5. So far in the doubles the smoothest working pair has been Jones and Ingraham, but even if they beat the Japanese tomorrow early in the afternoon they will be handicapped in their semi-final match, which soon afterward will be played against Rice and Kashio.

Harvey Snodgrass's play today, both in singles and doubles, was the best seen so far in the tournament. He simply waded through Lawrence Rice in the singles, which he won, 6—0, 6—2, 6—1, and he was the dominating spirit of his doubles match. His placing was remarkable and his shots at the net, which were strategic places rather than kills, at times were excellent. Snodgrass's service was bewildering and tomorrow he will be a tremendously hard man for Nat Niles to defeat in order to reach the finals.

Niles had a worrisome match with Kashio, beating him the first set, 8—6, and taking the second, 6—2. The Japanese struck a splendid pace in the third set, allowing Nies only one game, but in the fourth set Niles broke through his opponent's service early and finally won, 6—3.

For the first time in the competition R. N. Williams showed some of his best strokes while playing against Wallace Bates of California. Williams took the match in straight sets, 6—4, 6—3, 6—1, finishing at a pretty pace and having more speed than in any of his earlier matches. His service was varied and effective and he combined a back court and net game very effectively.

Fischer Is Steady.

Tomorrow Williams's semi-final match will be against Carl Fischer. The players have not met often, Fischer winning the last time. The singles shown by the left-handed Philadelphian today against Arnold Jones was very steady. Jones took five games only from Fischer in the first two sets, but won the third set, in which Fischer declined to exert himself. Fischer won the final set from Jones, 6—1. Had not Williams's play improved so much today Fischer would be the favorite in his match against the former champion tomorrow.

Snodgrass is considered more likely to reach the finals than Niles, whose play today was far from as steady or as versatile as that of the Californian.

The summaries:

Singles, Fifth Round—R. N. Williams 2d, Philadelphia, defeated Wallace Bates, California, 6—4, 6—3, 6—1; Carl Fischer, Philadelphia, defeated Arnold W. Jones, Providence, 6—3, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3; Harvey Snodgrass, California, defeated Lawrence B. Rice, Longwood, 6—0, 6—2, 6—1; Nat Niles, Longwood, defeated S. Kashio, Japan, 8—6, 2—6, 6—1, 6—3.

Doubles, Third Round—Z. Shimizu and M. Fakuda, Japan, defeated N. W. Niles, Longwood, and R. N. Williams 2d, Philadelphia, 4—6, 6—2, 6—3.

Fourth Round—Wallace Bates and Harvey Snodgrass, California, defeated C. Fischer and H. Fischer, Philadelphia, 6—4, 6—3; H. F. Neer and J. Davies, California, defeated C. K. Shaw and Clyde Curley, Providence, 6—4, 6—3; L. B. Rice, Longwood, and S. Kashio, Japan, defeated H. C. Johnson and G. P. Gardner Jr., Longwood, 6—4, 7—9, 7—5.

Jerry Lang, defending champion in the Long Island lawn tennis championship, reached the final round of the third annual title tournament yesterday at the Woodmere Club, Woodmere, L. I. In the semi-finals he defeated George C. Whitlock in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4. The Columbia University representative also became a finalist in the doubles when, with Anton F. Von Bernuth of the Montclair A. C., he defeated Paul McHugh and Harris B. Fischer Jr. in the semi-finals, 5—7, 6—3, 6—4.

Against Whitlock, Lang reached his best form early in the opening set and rushed through the frame before his opponent was able to find himself. Whitlock was unable to handle Lang's ground strokes, which were sent acros the net with plenty of length and pace, and lost point after point on errors. In the second set, Whitlock rounded into better form and carried Lang along at a fast pace. The Columbia star found it necessary to call upon his best, both from the baseline and the net, where he volleyed with good results before he was able to break through and win at 6—4.

The semi-final doubles furnished interesting tennis all the way. McHugh and Fischer were at their best from the start, and the opposing pair, instead of having it easy, were extended to keep on even terms with them.

The summaries:

Doubles, First Round—Charles M. Wood Jr. and Jack Rothstein defeated John Rau and Barter 3d, 6—0, 6—1; William De Muth and Leslie Fishel defeated Harold Swain and W. Burr, 6—1, 6—3; Paul McHugh and Harris B. Fischer Jr. won from Stephen V. Brubans and N. I. Comes by default.

Second Round—Jerry Lang and Anton F. Von Bernuth defeated Stuart Gayness and Wilson, 6—0, 6—1; Paul McHugh and Harris B. Fischer Jr. defeated Cox and Goodwin, 6—1, 6—4.

Semi-final Round—Lang and Von Bernuth defeated Fischer and McHugh, 5—7, 6—3, 6—4.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 19.—The international chess tournament at Ostrau, Czechoslovakia, ended with the former champion, Emanuel Lasker, winning first prize. Rete was second; Gruenfeld, third; Selsniew, fourth, and Euwe, Tartakowe and Tarrasch divided fifth, sixth and seventh prizes. The playing of Rubinstein and Bogoljubow was very disappointing. Lasker showed splendid form and expects to get another match with Joeé Capablanca for the world's championship.

WEST SIDE PLAYERS BEAT ENGLISH TEAM

Tennis Club Stars Capture 7 Out of 9 Matches at Forest Hills—Watt of Oxford Wins.

The West Side Tennis Club defeated the Oxford-Cambridge University team on the West Side courts at Forest Hills, L. I., yesterday, 7 matches to 2. The Americans took six matches out of seven in singles and one out of two in doubles. A. S. Watt of Oxford gained the lone victory for the English in the singles, defeating R. Davis in two closely played sets at 10—8, 7—5.

Captain Charles H. Kingsley of Oxford and A. N. Wilder won the other point for the collegians, defeating S. Howard Voshell and Walter Merrill Hall in doubles, 6—3, 6—3. The English combination looked unusually good in this match and stood out as perhaps the best of the two universities. Their work at the net was especially good. They handled everything that the opposing pair sent at them, cutting off Voshell's smashing strokes with neat block volleys that caught their opponents out of position, and at other times putting the ball away with sharply angled volleys and kills.

Captain James N. Lowry of Cambridge was compelled to default to Robert Le Roy in the third set of their match when the latter was leading at 5—0. In going after one of Le Roy's shots, which was sent wide to the opposite side of the court from Lowry, the collegian fell and strained his back, compelling him to abandon the play. Le Roy had taken the first set at 6—3 and Lowry the second at 6—4.

Kingsley's Work Impressive.

One of the most interesting matches in the singles was that between Watson M. Washburn, number ten in the national ranking and member of the United States Davis Cup team in 1921, and Kingsley. Washburn was the winner in three sets at 6—3, 4—6, 6—4. Kingsley's work was of the same high stamp that has marked his play since his arrival in this country. The fact that he was able to take a set from Washburn and run him to 6—4 in the third indicates that he is one of the most promising players to come over from England since 1921.

F. F. Hepburn gave Hugh G. M. Kelleher a severe battle before he submitted at 6—4, 7—9, 6—3, while A. N. Wilder carried Harry Brunie to 6—4, 6—4. C. Ramaswami furnished little opposition to Dr. George King, while J. J. Lezard made little headway against J. S. McCloy.

B. I. C. Norton of South Africa, who arrived in this country on Wednesday with William M. Johnston, appeared on the West Side courts in a practice match with Clarence Griffin of California. The two men were evenly matched and played fast tennis that at times was brilliant. Norton revealed an effective service, his first ball carrying much speed, and the second a lot of top. His backhand is a strong attacking weapon and is of the perfect English style, very pretty to watch. Another feature of his game is his court covering, which at times is almost as indefatigable as Alonso's or Shimizu's.

Miss Wills Plays.

Miss Helen Wills, the Berkeley, Cal., school girl, also tried out her strokes on the West Side courts. She played two sets with Cedric Major, winning the first at 6—1, and losing the second at 6—3. Miss Wills's play caused much comment, especially her work at the net. She fought her way forward to the barrier at frequent intervals and there handled Major's fast strokes in the most commendable fashion. Miss Wills, who ranks third in the national list, has improved noticeably since her last appearance here in 1922.

The summaries:

Singles—Watson M. Washburn, West Side, defeated Charles H. Kingsley, 6—3, 4—6, 6—4; Dr. George H. King, West Side, de- 6—4, 6—4; Robert Le Roy, West Side, defeated J. N. Lowry, 6—3, 4—6, 5—0 and default; J. S. McCloy, West Side, defeated J. J. Lezard, 6—2, 6—1; Hugh G. M. Kelleher, West Side, defeated F. F. Hepburn, 6—4, 7—9, 6—3; A. S. Watt, Oxford-Cambridge, defeated R. Davis, 10—8, 7—5.

Doubles—Watson M. Washburn and F. P. Ferguson, West Side, defeated F. F. Hepburn and J. J. Lezard, 8—6, 6—3; Charles H. Kingsley and A. N. Wilder, Oxford-Cambridge, defeated S. Howard Voshell and Walter Merrill Hall, 6—3, 6—3.

VISITING DAVIS CUP STARS IN WORKOUTS

Australians and Hawaiians Practice for Match Which Begins July 27.

The Australian and Hawaiian Davis Cup teams which meet in the first round of the American Zone play at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club, Orange, N. J., July 27, 28 and 29, have settled down to intensive practice for the week that intervenes before they come together. The Hawaiians are getting into form on the Orange club courts, while the Australians are working out at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills. On the former team are Captain Richard Cooke, Bowie Dietrick and William H. Eklund. The Antipodean combination consists of Captain James O. Anderson, J. B. Hawke, I. D. McInnes and W. B. Schlesinger.

The Hawaiians, who have not had an opportunity to practice on grass until the past few days, are developing slowly. It is the intention of Captain Cooke to bring along his team carefully, so that they will not reach the height of their form until a day or two before the match with the Australians.

BOWMAN AND HOWARD TO MEET FOR TITLE

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 19.—Herbert L. Bowman of New York today reached the final round in the New York State tennis championship and qualified to meet John E. Howard of Baltimore, captain-elect of the Princeton tennis team, for the title. Bowman today defeated Lewis N. White of Austin, Texas, 6—2, 6—2, 10—8. Howard advanced at the expense of Gerald Emerson of South Orange, N. J., captain of the Columbia tennis team, by 3—6, 6—3, 6—4, 3—6, 6—3.

The match between Emerson and Howard was rated the most sensational played thus far in the tournament and was featured by some sensational work on the part of both. Bowman, who is the holder of the State title, won over White, who holds the Texas title, only after a thrilling struggle in the third and final set. Bowman won rather easily in the first two sets.

PREPARE STADIUM FOR TITLE MATCH

BOXERS EASE UP IN WORK

Each Is Confident of Knockout Victory—Gen. Pershing Sends Regrets He Cannot Attend.

While Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler are preparing to break camp tomorrow, the officials of the Cromwell A. C., under whose auspices the rivals will box at the Yankee Stadium on Monday night for the lightweight championship of the world, are completing all the arrangements to insure the success of the bout. It was announced at the club's headquarters yesterday that everything will be in readiness by tonight. The ring is at the stadium, but it will not be erected until Monday afternoon, to prevent its being harmed by the weather.

Leonard intends to leave Tannersville, N. Y., where he has been training, tomorrow. He will motor to his mother's home in this city, where he will remain until weighing-in time at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon. Tendler will leave Delanco, N. J., where he has been working, tomorrow evening and go to Philadelphia to stay there until Monday morning. Both are reported to be at weight, with nothing more to be done but keep their muscles supple.

The work of placing the thousands of chairs on the field will be started this morning and it is expected that it will be completed before nightfall. Each seat is to be wired to a platform and properly stencilled. The illuminating plant has been installed and will be given its first test today. Official tests for the city's inspectors and for the fire and accident insurance companies will be made tonight and tomorrow night.

Rehearsal for Ushers.

A rehearsal for 300 ushers will take place tomorrow afternoon and a final rehearsal with the illuminating plant in action will be held on Sunday night. Arrangements have been made to take 500 special policemen to the stadium on Sunday to be drilled in the duties they will have to perform Monday night inside and outside the arena. At the same time the big force of ticket sellers and ticket takers will become acquainted with their duties in the regular offices and specially constructed booths. An emergency hospital booth has been erected as a first aid station.

The announcement was made yesterday that while the advance sale has been tremendous, there still are plenty of choice seats available, and arrangements have been made to keep the office at 25 West Forty-third Street open all day Sunday to continue the sale of tickets. The tickets will be on sale there Monday until late in the afternoon, when the sale will be opened at the Yankee Stadium.

The reports which reached this city yesterday from the training camps of the rival boxers were to the effect that both Leonard and Tendler are extremely confident of winning. Each apparently believes that he is going to win by a knockout. They are both said to be in fine physical condition. Tendler declared that he has been able to go through his training siege without injury to his precious left hand, and this has been the cause for much joy in the challenger's camp. He expects his left to carry him to the top of the lightweight division.

Boxers a Pound Overweight.

It is said that each of the boxers is about a pound overweight, but that they will easily lose the surplus before weighing-in time when the articles of agreement demand that they scale not more than 135 pounds.

Leonard continued the favorite in the betting yesterday. Odds of 9 to 5 were quoted along Broadway, but it was expected that this price would shorten considerably before the men enter the ring. There was a report current that Tendler's Philadelphia admirers are preparing to come to this city to unload on the challenger, and if this money appears there is not the slightest doubt that the odds will drop.

Word was received yesterday from General Pershing that he will be unable to attend the bout, due to his absence on an inspection trip. General Pershing had been invited to attend the bout as Leonard's guest through Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker of the Cromwell A. C. Johnston received a telegram from Major J. G. Quekemeyer, aid to General Pershing, which read:

"General Pershing regrets that due to his absence on an inspection trip he cannot accept Mr. Leonard's cordial invitation to attend the match on the 23d. Please convey the General's thanks for the invitation and best wishes to Mr. Leonard."

300 CHILDREN SEE DUNDEE IN TRAINING

Eugene Criqui and Johnny Dundee put in busy training sessions yesterday in preparation for their fifteen-round bout for the world's featherweight championship at the Polo Grounds next Thursday night. Both boxers are close to the weight limit of 126 pounds and have little to worry about on that score. Each, however, seems intent upon developing as much speed as possible. Particularly is this true of Dundee.

Dundee has pitched a ring in the rear of his home where he worked out with his sparring partners. The little Italian realizes that he is about to get the opportunity he has sought for so long and he is not overlooking anything in his training, in order that he may be at his best when he climbs into the ring. After his workout he weighed 128 pounds and announced that he would have no trouble making the weight.

Dundee's training was witnessed by 300 children from the Orange Playgrounds. They ranged in age from 6 to 15 years, but even the youngest seemed to thoroughly enjoy the challenger's work. He was cheered continuously as he boxed three rounds each with Tony Vaccarelli and Jack Rappaport. His rope skipping was envied by the many little girls in the party. Among the 200 others who saw Johnny in action were practically all of the city officials of Orange, including Commissioner Frank O'Connor, Magistrate Herbert Lighthipe and Chief of Police Patrick McDonough. Parker Silzer, son of Governor Silzer, was an interested spectator and posed in the ring with Dundee while they were "shot" by the photographers.

While Dundee was working at top speed at his home in West Orange, Criqui put in a lively afternoon at Manhasset, L. I. The world's champion is so close to the weight right now that he decided to cut out road work yesterday morning. In the afternoon, however, he boxed with his sparring partners, Mario Gall and Leon Poutet, and afterward announced that he was satisfied with his condition. He has not made up his mind whether he will discontinue road work altogether or not. He will be governed in this matter by his weight.

Tom O'Rourke, matchmaker of the Polo Grounds Athletic Club, yesterday announced that 25,000 general admission tickets at $2 and $3 will be placed on sale at the Polo Grounds next Thursday afternoon and at the same time he declared that there has been a heavy demand for the reserved seats during the last few days.

Ruth Will Throw the Gloves In for Leonard and Tendler

Boxing is not to be outdone by baseball. The ceremonies attendant upon the opening of a baseball season, when a Governor, a Mayor or some other important dignitary throws out the first ball will have their counterpart when Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler step into the ring at the Yankee Stadium on Monday night to battle for the lightweight championship of the world. Babe Ruth has promised to be in his own back yard to throw the gloves into the ring. He will not shie his hat into the ring, however.

GENARO KNOCKS OUT GERSHANE IN THIRD

Frankie Genaro, the American flyweight champion, knocked out Bobby Gershane in the third round of what was scheduled to be a fifteen-round bout at the Kingsboro Sporting Club at East New York Oval. Gershane substituted for Carl Triano, who was unable to go through with the match. Genaro weighed 112 pounds and conceded six pounds to his opponent.

Although Gershane was willing, he never had a chance. He was outboxed in the first round and was dropped for the count of eight in the second with a right to the jaw. It looked as if Genaro might have finished him in that round, but he permitted Gershane to hold on until the bell.

After forty-eight seconds of battling in the third round, however, the champion scored with a vicious left uppercut to the jaw and Gershane crumpled on the floor and was counted out. Genaro won as he pleased. About 4,000 persons saw the bout.

136 TENNIS STARS IN MET. TOURNEY

Eight Are Seeded in Draw in Grass Court Title Play Starting Tomorrow.

The metropolitan grass court lawn tennis championship will begin tomorrow afternoon at the Crescent A. C. courts, Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, with one of the most brilliant fields that have yet competed for the title. Included among the 136 players who have filed their entries are B. I. C. Norton of South Africa, who arrived in this country on Wednesday and whose playing in the Wimbledon championships has made him known throughout the lawn tennis world; Vincent Richards of Yonkers, third ranking player in the country, and Robert Kinsey and his brother Howard of California, both ranking well up in the first ten.

Other stars entered are Watson M. Washburn, member of the United States Davis Cup team in 1921; Harvey Snodgrass of California, who defeated William M. Johnston last Spring on the Coast; Peck Griffin, national doubles champion with Johnston in 1915, '16 and '20, who is returning to Eastern competition this year for the first time since 1920, and Hugh G. M. Kelleher, prominent metropolitan player.

All these eight have been seeded in the draw in the order named. Richards has not yet returned from Europe, but he is expected back this afternoon on the Aquitania.

The play in the doubles tournament is expected to be every bit as interesting as the singles. Although the entries have not yet closed, three teams of international prominence are numbered among the contenders. They are Johnston and Griffin, the Kinsey brothers and Norton and Richard Lewis of Princeton.

Play in the singles will begin at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow and will be resumed Sunday afternoon, continuing through the week until the Sunday following.

LEAGUE FORCED TO QUIT.

LAUREL, Miss., July 19.—The Cotton States League will end its playing season Saturday, according to an announcement today by B. A. Schnieder, President of the Laurel Club, upon receipt of an official report of the executive meeting of league officials in Jackson Tuesday. Four clubs, Hattiesburg, Laurel, Meridian and Clarksdale, declared at the meeting they could not continue after this week because of financial difficulties.

TO BROADCAST FIGHT.

Station WJZ, Newark, to Describe Leonard-Tendler Bout.

J. L. Bernard of the Radio Corporation of America, yesterday announced that arrangements had been completed to broadcast a description of the bout between Leonard and Tendler through station WJZ, Newark. This station broadcast the fight between the rival lightweights in Jersey City last year.

The main bout will start at 10 P. M. and the first preliminary will be staged at 8:15.

STILL CONFERRING ON DEMPSEY BOUT

Rickard and Kearns Continue Secrecy as to Obstacle to Contest With Firpo.

The proposed bout between Jack Dempsey and Luis Angel Firpo for the world's heavyweight championship is causing almost as many conferences as did the match between Dempsey and Gibbons at Shelby. There is this difference, however: Rickard declares the terms of any other financial detail has nothing to do with the series of confabs. The promoter and Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, had another conference yesterday. It was a rather lengthy affair, and when the last word had been said those waiting outside the closed door of Rickard's office in the tower of Madison Square Garden were informed, "There is nothing to announce."

The mysterious something is still holding up the bout. Just what the mysterious something is those who are in a position to know will not divulge. It is being kept much more of a secret than most things pertaining to the making of a match of such proportions. Rickard insists that the terms have been agreed upon. He also insists that there will be no difficulty in setting a date, but where he plans to hold the bout is something that he will not discuss at this time.

That the mysterious something is something of sizable proportions is evident. If it cannot be hurdled or circumvented after so many conferences it must amount to a full-grown and robust obstacle. That is the opinion that obtains in the boxing centres of this city. Yet Rickard and Kearns are optimistic. They declare in unison that the match will be made and that the bout will be held just in advance or just after Labor Day. Neither of them qualifies the statement.

Following yesterday's conference Rickard said that he might have something definite to announce tomorrow, but Kearns was of the opinion that it would be Sunday or Monday before a definite announcement could be made. This recalled the fact that Firpo is in Boston and will not return to New York until Sunday. However, the promoter declares that Firpo's absence has no bearing on the situation. Again yesterday he reiterated his previous declaration that there is no hitch over what Firpo is to receive for stepping into the same ring with Dempsey.

"That has been settled for some time," said Rickard. "I am not prepared to disclose what is holding up the match, but it will be made and the bout will be held sometime around Labor Day."

Questioned as to where the bout would be held, Kearns said: "I think it will be held right around here. South America will be a last resort. I do not want to go there unless compelled to do so, and I do not believe that will be necessary. But if we have to go to Argentine we will go. I would like to have the thing setled definitely as soon as possible. Then I could go ahead with arrangements for Dempsey's training. He is in great shape right now, but he would want to put in about a month's work for the bout."

Rickard said that he intends to communicate with Billy Gibson, manager of Benny Leonard, with regard to a bout between Leonard and Charley White should Leonard be successful in his fight with Lew Tendler at the Yankee Stadium on Monday night.

It is known that Rickard would like to put the bout on at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City about the third week in August. White is going to remain in the city to see the Leonard-Tendler rumpus and to challenge the winner from the ring. He will return to Chicago on Tuesday.

ALERA AND CYGNET CHANGE OWNERSHIP

On the eve of Larchmont Race Week, which begins tomorrow, the sale of two more racing yachts was reported yesterday. Alera, a New York Yacht Club thirty-footer, was sold by Francis W. Belknap, New York Yacht Club, to Howard Whitney, a broker with offices at 15 Broad Street. The prize was not made public, but N. Y. Y. C. thirties are said to bring almost as much now as they did in 1905, the year they were turned out by Herreshoff. Their building cost then was $4,500.

Alera will be raced by Mr. Whitney, who is an enthusiastic yachtsman. This boat was one of the original thirties and was raced for some years by J. W. and E. P. Alker. There are fifteen of this class in commission this year and many of them will be seen at Larchmont.

The other yacht sale was the six-meter boat Cygnet, built last year by Vice Commodore Paul Hammond of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club to try for the international team. Cygnet did not make the team, but made a good showing, and has raced well this year. She was purchased by Gordon Pirie, owner of the six-meter Sandpiper, and he will race her against the other boats of this class now in the Sound.

Commodore Hammond will not race on the Sound again this season, in all likelihood, as he is going abroad to sail with the American team in the international races on the Solent. He will sail for Southampton on the Olympic tomorrow. He has not very great hopes of the American team winning, but thinks they will make a good showing.

There will be only two of the New York Yacht Club fifty-footers racing at Larchmont, although entries in the other classes are so heavy that it is believed 100 yachts or more will cross the line each day. The fifties racing will be Harpoon, owned by F. D. M. Strachan, and Virginia, owned by L. M. Crofut. The forty-footer class and thirties will have large entries. Every boat in the forty-footer class is in commission this year.

It is possible that the schooner Venture, owned by Commodore Aemilius Jarvis of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, may race with the fifties on the time allowance basis. The Venture was the former fifty-footer Istalena, owned and raced for several years by George M. Pynchon, who is not racing this year because of the death of Mrs. Pynchon.

Venture was finished up at Herreshoff's the other day, coming out as a schooner, and Commodore Jarvis is anxious to try her at racing in the Sound before taking her to the Great Lakes.

THE OUTLOOK IN CONGRESS.

From certain members of the Republican Old Guard now in Washington come noble cries of defiance. They refuse to be terrified by Minnesota, and declare that they will not be intimidated when Congress meets in December and Senator La Follette rallies his miscellaneous cohorts in the attempt to take charge of legislation. Rather than surrender to such a threat, asserts one heroic Republican Senator, "we will go down with our colors flying."

This is a magnificent attitude, provided it is maintained, but the Senator does something more than make a gesture when he proceeds to explain the parliamentary situation next Winter. He concedes that La Follette and his noisy band can block all Republican plans for legislation. But the blocked may also be blockers. If the Republican majority is held up and talked to death by the La Follette minority, the latter also can be prevented from getting its will. "If you will let us "do nothing, we shall not allow you "to do anything." In ordinary circumstances such a legislative deadlock might not be an altogether unhappy thing. Laws prevented are sometimes more of a blessing than laws enacted. A part of the historical tribute paid to public men ought to cover the truth, if it was the truth, that they not only brought about the passage of good laws, but saw to it that many bad proposals did not find their way into the statute book. A session of Congress absolutely barren of anything but the necessary routine legislation might well deserve the thanks of a grateful country.

In the next Congress, however, there are a few measures that will press for attention and should be acted upon. Certain amendments of the Transportation act ought to be had at an early day. The new Immigration law should be speeded on its way. If the public finances continue in their present promising condition, a modification of the tax laws ought to be attempted. Unfortunately, the outlook now is that there will be next Winter in Washington a great deal of wrangling, an immense amount of manoeuvring for position in preparation for the Presidential election, but only a minimum of achievement. Both houses of Congress will be so closely divided politically, with a guerrilla squadron ready to attack either flank of either party, that very little of useful and positive work is to be expected from them. It would be better so than to have a state of things in which La Follette and his followers should be able to sell themselves to the highest bidder. Any party purchasing such support, and selling principles in order to get it, would in the act stand before the country as at once beggared in character and destined to defeat.

AN ECHO OF JUTLAND.

The Battle of Jutland figured in Lord Alfred Douglas's libel suit against The Morning Post in a way to revive memories of what was at least a case of nerves on the part of the Admiralty. In justification of its attack upon the plaintiff the newspaper brought into the testimony his published charge that £18,000,000 had been made on the Stock Exchange by using a "misleading report" of the battle issued by the Admiralty. The report was said to have been prepared by Winston Churchill after a secret conference with Sir Ernest Cassel. In the witness box Mr. Churchill characterized the story as an absolute lie; and a statement was introduced to prove that the first account of the battle was written by Mr. Balfour. He would never be associated, even by his enemies, with the stock market.

A few days after Jutland, Mr. Churchill was asked by the Admiralty to sum up for use abroad the outstanding features of the sea fight. This he did in his usual felicitous style. His conclusion was that "the hazy "weather, the fall of night and the "retreat of the enemy alone frus-"trated the persevering efforts of our "brilliant commanders, Sir John Jellicoe and Sir David Beatty, to force "a final decision."

In the view of technicians Mr. Churchill's comments on the battle were amateurish. As for Mr. Balfour, he had been depressed himself by the fog of doubt that hung over the comparative losses. Doubtless he was a victim of a hasty and inadequate report from the North Sea. The German High Seas Fleet had run for its base, but only after inflicting losses on the British which, standing alone, seemed to indicate that something had gone wrong. As a philosopher Mr. Balfour refused to sugar the pill. Lord Alfred Douglas confused Mr. Churchill's cheery encouragement of his countrymen with Mr. Balfour's painfully honest reaction to the unpleasant news. Now it is certain that if Mr. Churchill had been called in on June 1 to write a bulletin there would have been no slump in the stock market. No wonder he was indignant when he repudiated the fiction that he had conferred with a great financier and gone out to tell his countrymen that the British fleet had been worsted although not defeated.

Mr. Balfour's report will always stand as a model of what a man in his position should not have written. The British losses "were heavy," he said, the enemy's "serious." The details he gave of the British losses proved to be fairly correct, but he was in the dark about those of the enemy. A later statement dealt only with German casualties and was almost sprightly in its summing up. Day after day the picture brightened until the whole world knew that the Germans had minimized their losses. It was not until June 6 that the first clear description of the sea fight appeared, and then in The Glasgow Herald, almost a week after Mr. Balfour had sent out his doleful tale. It was The Morning Post, by the way, that said on June 5: "The navy won a "great victory, and the Admiralty an-"nounced it like a defeat."

VICTORY OF THE SHORTER DAY.

In the history of the labor movement in the United States the decade 1909-1919 stands out as a period of great change. An analysis of the census figures for employment covering this period shows, according to a report of the National Industrial Conference Board, that where in 1909 only 7.9 per cent. of the wage earners in manufacturing industries had a forty-eight-hour week or less, by 1919 this figure had risen to 48.6 per cent. During this same period the percentage of workers on a schedule of sixty hours a week or more declined from 39.2 per cent. to 12.1 per cent. In other words, the ten and twelve hour day has been rapidly giving place to the eight-hour day. In most industries it bids fair to become the standard. Industries in which most of the workers are still on a ten-hour shift or longer are comparatively few. The statistics for 1919 show the cottonseed oil and cake manufacture to take first place, with 91.8 per cent. on the long schedule, followed by the blast furnaces with 86.4 per cent., the sugar refineries with 65.5 per cent., and the lumber industry with 59.2 per cent. At the same time the steel works and rolling mills were reported to have 42.1 per cent. of their workers on a sixty-hour week or over.

The geographical distribution of the figures shows that the three Southern States of Missouri, Arkansas and Tennessee are the most backward in giving up the ten and twelve hour day—the statistics, be it remembered, are for the year 1919—and that the Western States have the highest proportion of workers on an eight-hour schedule or less. Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, New Jersey and Delaware, in the order named, are the only Eastern States in which more than half the workers are on the short schedule. In other words, of the great Eastern manufacturing States Pennsylvania and Connecticut alone have been slow to change. Illinois has followed the lead of New York, although Indiana and Ohio, the other two big industrial States in the North, stand behind Pennsylvania.

So recent has been the industrial boom in the South that the figures for that section are not conclusive. No doubt as the industries organize and are developed there, the tendency toward shorter hours will make itself felt. The important thing, therefore, is the change in the older industrial regions—a change which proceeded with especial rapidity after 1914. In New York, for example, in 1914 only 12.9 per cent. of the wage earners enjoyed the forty-eight-hour week. In 1919 this figure had risen to 64.4 per cent. In Massachusetts the respective figures were 8.1 per cent. and 74.3 per cent.; in New Hampshire, 5.7 per cent. and 65.6 per cent., and in New Jersey, 7.6 per cent. and 59.5 per cent.

This movement has been in response not only to the efforts of the labor leaders and organizations, but to the public opinion of the country. Although it has been generally admitted that different industries must be judged by different standards, and that a ten-hour day which in one line of work would be excessive in another imposes no especial hardships, the prevailing sentiment has been in behalf of the eight-hour day. This is one of the principal reasons why the twelve-hour day in the steel industry has been the subject of so much attack. When the announced intention of the leaders in this industry to abolish this schedule has been carried out, it will be another important landmark in the labor movement.

TREASON IN THE CAMP.

Flushed with their Minnesota victory, some of the Farmer-Laborites are blaspheming the chief of the farm bloc, the farmers' best friend, Senator Capper. His term ends in 1925. They say they are going to supplant him by a real dirt farmer. They impudently assert that he has done nothing for that unfortunate.

Done nothing? Who has tried to do more? He went to Washington, his pocket bulging with bills for the dirt farmer's rescue. Some of them passed. If Minnesota is ungrateful; if the prices of farm products have maliciously refused to respond to the Capper treatment; if the protected and otherwise favored farmers of the Northwest are in mutiny against the benign Republican policies for their benefit, at least Kansas will not be untrue to the hand that has so long held a nursing bottle to the lips of agriculture.

As a correspondent of Capper's Weekly writes, "Senator Capper is an "exemplar of the kind of man needed "in Washington, with his thirteen "publications and his awareness of "what should be." That is the right spirit of loyalty. It is sad to find in the bosom of Kansas itself an awareness of what is rather than of what should be. Secretary Mohler of the State Board of Agriculture at the Five-State Wheat Conference at Wichita "discouraged any idea that legislation can solve the farmers' troubles":

> National and State policies of administration may mitigate, but they cannot cure. * * * The most effective and direct remedy lies in the management of the farm itself. It seems reasonably clear that the farmer's greatest problem is to help himself. And this can best be done through diversification.

So, after all that Senator Capper has done for the Kansas farmer by legislation, the farmer must depend upon himself. If that is the case, does Kansas need at Washington a Senator with thirteen publications and an awareness of what should be — but isn't?

THE BATTLE OF MONTPARNASSE.

Greedy and imperialistic France has at last committed the unpardonable sin. Her gendarmes, siding as usual with the forces of reaction, have arrested and her courts have fined four of the builders of that newer and better America which is rising out of the decaying ruins of the old. The only thing that keeps it from being an international incident is the fact that most of these Americans are already demi-expatriates, determined to live abroad till their native land becomes fit for civilized habitation. Meanwhile, the historian must chronicle the failure of another effort to rebuke bourgeois mediocrity.

The fighting seems to have started through the rivalry between those two well-known cafés, the Rotonde and the Dôme, situate on either side of the Boulevard Raspail where it is crossed by the Boulevard Montparnasse. Everybody knows them, the Jachin and Boaz of the temple of the soul. It is said that a Frenchman was seen in one of them, during the earlier years of the Second Empire; but this is probably a cicerone's tale. For a decade or more they have served, in effect, as a vacation fresh-air camp for Greenwich Village. Since the Volstead act beclouded the Village the Rotonde and the Dôme have been crowded, as crowded as the Brevoort basement used to be, and with the same people. News dispatches tell us that not long ago all persons of consequence suddenly deserted the Rotonde, which had been acquiring too much of an "uptown atmosphere," and went over to the Dôme, where the Village spirit still flourished. These migrations, sometimes in one direction and sometimes in the other, have not been unknown in the past: and in the past—we are far from suggesting that it is the case at present—they have been due to the reluctance of stupid bourgeois proprietors to extend unlimited credit.

Whatever the reason this time, the Rotonde was deserted and the best people flocked over to the Dôme. But on the night of July 14, when all Paris and the stranger within her gates had celebrated the fall of the Bastille with great success, some of these lately domesticated citizens determined that another citadel of privilege must fall. They would go over to the Rotonde and tell the proprietor what they thought of him. Embattled gendarmes, the Hessians and Cossacks of capitalism, held the curbstone. The heroes set forth. John Dos Passos, chronicler of the sorehead in khaki, became a happy warrior; he sniffed the battle afar. E. E. Cummings, celebrant of the horrors of army prisons, stepped out and fought as valiantly as that Colonel of Zouaves who, unless initials lie, was his namesake. Gilbert Seldes of the Dial came down from the fourth dimension and plunged into the combat of the earthlings. Malcolm Cowley, noted bard, as the headlines call him, learned that living poems is better than writing poems.

They fought—paladins of art—they fought the cops, a battle that began, probably, in Ur of the Chaldees. "O "something pernicious and dread! "Something far away from a puny "and pious life!" And on the terrace, pacifically watching, sat Harold Stearns, compiler of a work on civilization, or the lack of it, in the United States. What did he think of as he watched the émigrés from the Village fighting as grimly as the Wild Geese of Ireland? Probably that there was not so much difference between civilization in the United States and American civilization outside the United States.

It is for poets to sing the story of that battle; newspapers may only chronicle the outcome. As usual, the cops won. The wicked old men had their wicked old way, but a Magistrate who was young once himself let the rioters off with the minimum fine. At any rate, it must have been a good fight—considerably better than might have been expected from these up-stage Olympians of the arts; just such a fight as has often been held in the Fourteenth Precinct. Expatriates who do a nose dive into European culture carry their native customs with them. "I candidly confess a queer, queer "race, of novel fashion, and yet the "same old human race."

It may be, of course, that a two-ton bomb could be dropped on either the Rotonde or the Dôme without any serious damage to civilization, in the United States or anywhere else. But this qualitative test of culture is foreign to the tendency of our times, where quantity and unintelligibility are about the only permissible criteria. It is a pleasure, at any rate, to learn that our most recondite thinkers are only human, not ashamed to follow the gleam even if it leads to the Night Court.

TRADE SECRETS IN COURT.

On the merits of the case of the Government against the Chemical Foundation, it has obviously been improper for a newspaper to comment while the issue is still undecided. But occasionally matters come out incidentally that are of great interest, while without a direct bearing on the trial. One such matter marked the proceedings on Wednesday, when Judge Morris made a most important ruling in regard to the immunity of a witness from being cross-examined in such a way as to give to the public business or trade secrets.

The question arose in connection with a chemist who was testifying to the fact that several of the German patents for dyes sold by the Chemical Foundation were of no use until after a great deal of money had been spent in developing and perfecting them. Counsel for the Government sought to get from him an account of the various technical processes which had been used. But objection was made, and the Court held that the examination could not be proceeded with along that line. Judge Morris decided, in the first place, that the evidence was not pertinent to any issue raised in the case, and announced, secondly: "I decline to make public "any answer or to place the trade "secrets of any commercial enter-"prise, under the conditions here "called for, as either public or quasi-"public property." The great importance of such a judicial decision must be apparent to all, without respect to its significance in the prosecution immediately in hand. It is something to know that the courts will not only protect the legitimate secrets of any business or trade, but will see to it that technical investigations in applied science will be duly encouraged by assuring to those engaged in them the full reward of their enterprise and skill.

SIGSBEE OF THE MAINE.

Rear Admiral Sigsbee, who died in this city yesterday, will be known to posterity as the officer who commanded the Maine when she was blown up in Havana Harbor. Yet he behaved with gallantry with Farragut and Porter in the Civil War, and at the age of 23 was promoted to Lieutenant Commander, a distinction that is said to be without a parallel in the navy. As an inventor of deep-sea apparatus for dredging and exploration, he was decorated by the German Government and was awarded the gold medal of the London International Fisheries Exhibition. It has been already forgotten that as commander of the auxiliary cruiser St. Paul in the war with Spain he captured the collier Restormel carrying coal to Cervera, and received the surrender of the cruiser Isabella II. and the destroyer Terror. Sigsbee's fitness to command could not be doubted, but the chance to win laurels in the war with Spain did not come to him.

It was characteristic of Charles D. Sigsbee that when the report of the Maine Inspection Board was announced in 1911 his comment was: "I have never had a doubt that the "Maine was blown up from the out-"side, but I have never expressed an "opinion as to who destroyed the "vessel and never will." The Admiral was writing in his cabin when one of the forward magazines blew up. To him it seemed like a blast, or, as he sometimes expressed it, "a general roar." The first order he gave was to post sentries to repel boarders, which indicated that he expected an attack. The outside explosion, a detonating sound, he did not hear. The plates of the submerged Maine told the story.

No man on board was cooler in the emergency, but nothing could be done to save the ship. Sigsbee was a witness of her foundering with most of his ship's crew penned in their narrow quarters. It was a moment the pain of which remained with him to the end. Through the trying time that followed he kept his head. In his first report he urged a suspension of judgment. It was the attitude of Sigsbee, calm when others were hysterically accusing the Spaniards, that prevented the making of the Maine disaster a casus belli. Yet to the man in the street we went to war because the Maine was blown up by the Spaniards with the complicity of their Government at Havana. Of that there has never been any conclusive proof. It is arguable that if the Maine disaster had not occurred our Minister to Madrid might have induced Spain to give Cuba autonomy, so that war would have been avoided.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

An Infliction of Ugliness on the Hudson.

Pretty well over the world, and in all ages, peoples civilized, barbarian, and even savage, have demonstrated the possibility of making bridges beautiful without detracting in any degree from their utility. Ugly bridges, indeed, have been built in both modern and ancient times, but they are so few that apparently it is easier to make them beautiful than ugly, and that to attain ugliness in the making of this particular structure no small amount of ingenuity and determination must be misapplied.

There is no excuse at all, consequently, for what is about to happen near one of the most admirable manifestations of natural beauty in the vicinity of this city, and in this part of the country, for that matter—the erection of a bridge across the Hudson that will be an offense to the eye for as long as it stands. A private corporation has secured from the Legislature and from the Palisades Park Commission the privilege of building across the river at Bear Mountain a toll bridge for automobilists and similar light traffic. That is right. A bridge there really is needed, for it will serve well a great number of people. While the plan is commendable, however, its execution is far from being so, for the design which has been selected will result in the construction of a bridge wholly out of accord with the scenery around it and indicative only of a desire on the part of the builders to make it as cheaply as they can.

The trouble lies not in the main span, which, being of the suspension type, has the inevitable charm of the catenary curve. The sustaining towers are where the ugliness comes in, for they have the harsh simplicity of the latticed derricks used in the raising of structural steel to the upper floors of new skyscrapers. Not the slightest attempt has been made to give them a monumental or decorative effect—they are just bare, mean and brutal.

Our Whole Country Is Wronged.

An excellent article by Lawrence Abbott in the current issue of The Outlook presents a justified protest against marring the beauty of our incomparable Hudson by building across it, at the point where its scenic grandeur culminates, a bridge that would be pardonable only to military engineers hurriedly putting up a structure for the advance or retreat of an army. They would not build just this sort of a bridge, of course, but they would be as indifferent to its esthetic quality as have been the engineers who planned the dreadful towers shown in the illustration accompanying Mr. Abbott's article.

As he well says, this is bad business as well as bad art, for beauty pays in the long run, while ugliness can produce only the immediate dollar, ultimately at a loss.

Mr. Abbott repeats, while carefully refraining, as he should, from acceptance of it as true, a rumor that some of the Palisades Park Commissioners are stockholders in the toll bridge enterprise, and that this had something to do with their failure to reject the company's cheap design. The personality and the record of the board make incredible that the decision of its members was influenced in such a petty and sordid way.

The contracts for the construction of the bridge have already been let, but somewhere there ought to be power to prevent any repetition of what amounts to the serious impairment of something which is not private property or even the property of New York State, but belongs to the whole country, and that is the beauty of the lower fifty miles of the Hudson's course.

A Pretty Idea at Least.

One of the Virginian papers, The Richmond Times-Dispatch, announces that hereafter in its columns the name "Virginia" always shall be spelled out in full and never shall appear as "Va." The abbreviated form, it thinks, means nothing—in which, of course, it is quite wrong—while in dignified extension the name recalls many magnificent memories of personalities and achievements—which nobody in this era of good feeling would dream of denying.

The idea is one that deserves consideration in other States, and the consideration should be not altogether amused, though it is just a little provocative of smiles. The custom of abbreviating State names, when used in certain places for certain purposes, is one old and well established. It is convenient, saves time, effort and space, and it is far from carrying an implication of disrespect. Still, anybody can see, especially anybody brought up to reverence the several States as "sovereign," that economy of this sort has a mildly displeasing side to it. Unquestionably, whoever dislikes the cutting down of a State's name to a single letter, as in the case of Ohio, or to two or three or four, which is what the others so often get, has a right to see in it a bit of the offensiveness there is in the familiar shortening of first names belonging to men notable and not close friends or relatives of the speaker.

It is natural enough that the reform, if it be a reform, should start in Virginia, which has a name so fine, with associations so properly productive of pride.

Where Blame Really Should Go.

Another lamentable hospital scandal will tend to confirm in their prejudices against these institutions just the people who need them most and for whom they can do most—the poor, that is. As in every such case, there is more than excuse for placing the blame for the abuse of helpless inmates and patients not on the attendants who display the brutality, but on the higher officials, the superintendents and doctors, who should have known about and stopped it at its very beginning.

Ignorance of what is going on in a hospital carries against those officials the clear implication of negligence. What they do not prevent they permit, and that means full responsibility.

THE FARCICAL MARTIN ACT.

Mr. Untermyer Calls for an Effective Weapon Against Fraud.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This morning you publish another chapter in the endless list of frauds that have recently come to light in the sales of stock, of which about one one-hundredth of 1 per cent. is being brought to the notice of the public or of public officials or is likely to be reached by these absurd suits under the farcical Martin act. It is not the fault of the Attorney General, who is ineffectually struggling as best he can under a bungling, impotent law that was never intended to function, and which permits him to secure the aid of the Court to lock the stable door on these promotion frauds after the stock has been distributed and the thieves have bolted with their swag.

Not one of these stock swindles, or of the thousands of others of which the Attorney General will never hear, would be possible but for the overshadowing malign influence of the stock exchanges over legislation. It was this influence that enabled them to kill, in the last Legislature, the Lockwood Bill, which had for its purpose the regulation and licensing of the business of stock brokers and of stock promotions and stock exchanges. The bill passed the Senate, which it probably would not have done if its fate in the Lower House had not been well understood. The chief responsibility for its defeat rests on Speaker Machold who, experience has shown, can always be relied upon to come to the rescue of that section of Wall Street which most needs supervision and would long since have had it but for him.

Every attempt to enforce the Martin act adds to the demonstration that it is the veriest kind of a sham. It is standing in the way of relief against the never-ending plunder of the public. As a criminal statute, it is worse than worthless to public officials; it is positively vicious by reason of the immunity it offers against prosecution, as both the Attorney General and the District Attorney have repeatedly pointed out but to no avail. The Lockwood Committee bill would have automatically taken away that immunity through its licensing requirements.

When will the press of this city—from which these frauds radiate all over the country—and when will the legitimate stock brokers whose business and reputations are being impaired, awaken to the necessity for effective regulatory legislation to curb the evils that are costing the annual loss of hundreds of millions of dollars of the hard-earned savings of the most valuable section of our people and those who are entitled to the protection that is persistently being withheld from them?

If there is to be a special session of the Legislature—which I hope there will not be—it should deal with this subject. I am satisfied that no effective relief can be secured against these powerful interests by State action, except under the pressure of publicity. If State action, which must be drastic if it is to accomplish anything, is impossible, the fight will have to be made in Congress in the coming session. It must be manifest to every thinking, justice-loving man that this intolerable situation cannot be suffered longer to continue, and I am hoping that you will realize the importance of action and will lend the prestige of your great publication to the agitation for effective legislation based upon a fearless and impartial exploitation of the entire subject.

The suspicion that now surrounds financial promotions is doing incalculable harm to legitimate business, which must appeal for capital to the general investment public. The business of the stock brokers who carry their customers' accounts and securities should also be subject to the same supervision as is now exercised over the banks that hold the moneys of their depositors or the insurance companies that are administering the funds of their policyholders. Under existing conditions the bulk of stock brokers are doing business for their own profit on capital furnished by their customers. As an inevitable result when they fail it is found that their customers' securities have been pledged for more than is owing by the customer, who accordingly loses his equity in the securities.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I noticed a slight error in your comprehensive obituary notice of my dear and valued old friend Albert Chevalier in your issue of July 12, and, as you are generally so accurate in your statements, a correction here might not be out of place.

"Chivvy" (as he was affectionately dubbed by his intimates) certainly did play the "Cockney plumber" in Sir Arthur Pinero's comedy of "Low Water" in 1884—not at the "Court," however, but at the "Globe" Theatre, London, then under the management of my old partner, the late John Hollingshead, and myself.

Even then, though a youngster, Chevalier's wonderful by-play in "cutting off the gas" at the end of the first act created quite a small sensation, and took him at least one step nearer the goal he was aiming for.

The production aroused an unusual amount of controversy and newspaper correspondence at the time (in which Sir Arthur and myself figured) and deserved a far better fate than its sensational collapse after a run of six nights and one overcrowded and ever-to-be-remembered professional matinee.

WERE I.

Were I a Leaf
I'd like to be
A scarlet one
On any tree,
And always swing,
But never fall;
Just cling and cling

Were I a Rose
I'd be so rare
They couldn't find
Me everywhere,
And from the day
That I was born
I wouldn't use

Were I a Star
Up in the sky
I'd wear a twinkle
In my eye.
I'd be so bright
You couldn't see
Another single star—
But me!

MINNESOTA ELECTION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Would it not be well at this time to point out the need of a discriminating judgment in considering the results of the election in Minnesota last Monday? It was not a Moscow victory; Moscow had nothing to do with it. Neither did the Farmer-Labor Party, or, what was left of it after the capture of its convention by the Communist Party (Federated Labor Party) at Chicago recently, have anything to do with it. And still less did the Communist Party itself have any influence in the situation, notwithstanding its bombastic pronunciamento calling upon "all Communists" to support Magnus Johnson. While this is true, many have been confused because, as a matter of fact, it was a Farmer-Labor Party that elected Magnus Johnson—but it was one all his own!

In the first place the Communists claim only 15,000 members in the United States. After subtracting the non-voting aliens there are probably not over 1,000 left, and if that whole 1,000 had voted in Minnesota last Monday, from the way the returns came in it does not seem that they would have been a very potential factor. The fact that the Communists voted for Mr. Johnson does not make him a Communist nor his program a Communistic one. It is simply a piece of cheap advertising on their part which many non-Communist writers seem to be taking very seriously.

Furthermore, Mr. Johnson had the support of that stalwart anti-Bolshevist, Samuel Gompers, and all of the American Federation of Labor forces he could command, as well as the railway brotherhoods, which, likewise, are so anti-Bolshevist that they refused to attend the Farmer-Labor Party convention at Chicago.

Again, the proposals upon which the campaign was conducted had no relation whatever to anything coming out of Moscow. There was no idea of confiscating any property—the farmers of Minnesota are not confiscators.

In one respect the situation in Minnesota last Monday was much like that in Kansas in 1890 when the Populists swamped the State, while in other respects it was just the reverse. For instance, Senator John J. Ingalls, who was so bitterly fought that year by Mary Ellen Lease and Jerry Simpson, stated very happily that if Kansas had had two good rains—one in April and one in May of that year—he would have been overwhelmingly re-elected. The farmers had lost their crops for several seasons. They had mortgaged everything they had and were facing foreclosure and ruin. The panacea of "free silver, 16 to 1," was offered them as a way out and they embraced it.

The upheaval in Minnesota last Monday was not because the crops had burned up but because they hadn't burned up. In other words, in Kansas it was underproduction and in Minnesota overproduction, both leading to the same unhappy end.

In 1890 the attacks were not made on the trusts, because they had not developed to any extent at that time; but "Wall Street," the railroads, banks and monopolists in general got all that was coming to them, as they did in the Minnesota election. Of course, in 1890 they had the demonetization of silver, "the crime of '73," to right, and that gave them a definite program to work upon. But in a few years, with a succession of good crops and the lack of any great achievements in Congress by Senator Peffer and Messrs. Simpson and Weaver, the Populist representatives, the farmers gradually resumed their former Republican affiliations.

In the Minnesota situation history is not likely to repeat itself on the first count, because the better the crops the worse conditions will be until the foreign markets are restored, while on the second count there were no new and startling legislative proposals. They have all been before Congress in some shape or other and have never secured any following of moment.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is greatly to be regretted that there are other motives in Bible study besides that of seeking the truths of God. It is never right to separate single sentences from the context. Those who know something of the depth and beauty of the Bible are not likely to shrink up because of the seeming paradox or apparent discrepancy.

In none of the texts specified can real disagreement be pointed out. The men journeying with Paul stood speechless, hearing the voice (its sound), but seeing no man (Acts ix., 7). They heard not the voice as words addressed to Paul (Acts xxii., 9). Regarding the idolatrous places, the six texts involved are easily harmonized if we but regard Asa and Jehoshaphat as having removed some high places, yet not all. The charge of contradiction is not to be advanced if a possible means of reconciling be pointed out. When John wrote: No man hath seen God at any time, the subject was God's character (John, i., 17-18). The Logos was being revealed as declaring God, which man (natural man) could not do, not having seen God at any time. Yet have neither heard His voice at any time nor seen His shape (John v., 37), was addressed to definite people who refused to hear and see spiritually. Spiritual sight is the explanation of Jacob's statement at Peniel (Gen. xxxii., 30). Actually seeing God is not possible for human beings (Exo. xxxiii., 20), but human eyes may behold the divine manifestations of God veiled in the effulgence of glory (Exo. xxxiii., 11).

For Educational Conference.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After reading in The Times the other day the suggestion by the Institute for Public Service of a national gathering of college and university trustees, I am writing to say that it would be most desirable for every reason were some kind of conference held this Autumn to take up matters relating to higher education.

Not only should trustees have gatherings, but faculties should have a weekly luncheon similar to the Rotary Clubs, and also a national organization.

While conservatism is the foundation rock on which civilization is built, it may become dangerous. The time is ripe for a distinct forward move on the part of business men and educationalists, who should get together. I happen to know that an effort along this line would be most welcome to educationalists.

Taxpayers' Association Protests.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At this time, when the newspapers contain many references to a new form of lease which has aroused unpleasant publicity, we, the Greater New York Taxpayers' Association, desire to place our attitude before the community. The Greater New York Taxpayers' Association, whose members control about 20,000 tenement properties, housing over 400,000 families, is the largest organization of its kind in the country, feels it imperative to condemn these oppressive leases as extremely evil. We have always discouraged and we are always absolutely opposed to the taking advantage of tenants, especially by the tricky methods of exacting signatures to unreasonable documents.

AIDS MUSEUM'S WORK IN EGYPT

GIFTS OF OLD PORTRAITS

Collection of 17 Early Greek Vases and Three Chinese Paintings Among Accessions.

Announcement was made yesterday at the Metropolitan Museum of Art of a practical gift from George Blumenthal, a member of the Board of Trustees of the Museum, of $2,000 which will make possible the purchase of an automobile for the use of the members of the Museum's Egyptian Expedition. This will be a practical part of the equipment of the expedition in Egypt. Mr. and Mrs. Blumenthal made an extended visit to Luxor during the past Winter and had an opportunity to study, which they did with great interest, both the expedition's progress and its needs.

Following the discovery of the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen, the Egyptian Government made considerable improvements on the carriage road from the river bank to the Valley of the Kings to accommodate the many visitors who were attracted there. Other roads through various parts of the necropolis proved sufficiently good for motors, several of which made their appearance last Winter.

Through the generosity of Mr. Blumenthal the members of the Museum's Expedition Staff, who are assisting in the work at the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen, can now be conveyed there by motor from the expedition headquarters to the Valley of the Kings, in some 17 or 18 minutes over a route which they had been obliged to cover previously on donkey back, taking from 40 to 45 minutes. A similar saving in time can be made in the journey from the headquarters to Luxor.

Very charming is a recent addition to the collection of early American portraits of the museum in that of Mrs. John Church Cruger, née Euphemia Van Rensselaer, given by bequest by her daughter, Miss Cornelia Cruger, and hung in Gallery 16. It is of a sweet-faced woman in a yellow poke bonnet with a dark frock, the figure outlined against a pale blue background with distant landscape and setting sun. It is the work of G. P. A. Healy, and is signed and dated, Paris, 1842.

Interesting is another old portrait, bequest of Dr. E. G. Rankin, a picture of his paternal grandmother, Ann Rankin, painted by Waldo and Jewett. It is oil on panel and the shipping directions painted on the back show the simplicity of methods of shipment in the early days when the painting was undoubtedly carried to its destination unwrapped. It was sent in the "Care of Captain Brinkerhoff, of the Steam Boat Norfolk, to be delivered at Fishkill Landing." There is a third bequest of three paintings, early 19th century European, from Mrs. Harriette Motte Warren, to be known as the John Hobart Warren Bequest: "The Falconer," by Fromentin; "A Market Scene," by Pettenkofen and "The Florentine Poet," by Cabanel.

Interesting among a number of gifts of textiles and laces, but which has been placed with the costume dolls in the basement of Wing H of the Museum is an English doll presented by Mrs. Luke Vincent Lockwood. This is a little grown-up doll, a little woman in prim village dress, a shawl and close-fitting bonnet, with a basket from which she is selling small wares. There are needles, pins, thread, buttons and laces and—it was in the days of these adornments—an "Empress" and a "Victoria" bustle.

Two important loans in the collection of textiles and laces are a beautiful eighteenth century flounce of French needlepoint, formerly in the collection of the Countess of Valencia, loaned by Richard C. Greenleaf, and a similar piece of lace from the collection of Mrs. Morris Hawkes who has also presented the Museum with four embroidered Rumanian linen blouses, and Mrs. Edith W. Knowles has presented two complete Rumanian costumes.

Early Greek vases, placed temporarily in case B2 in the Second Classical Room, a collection of seventeen recently acquired by the Museum, are in the nature of a find as they are difficult to obtain and the Museum has been endeavoring for some time to strengthen its collection. It is a varied collection, two belonging to what Miss Richter, Associate Curator of Classical Art, terms the "so-called dark ages," the geometric period of the eighth century before Christ.

Three Chinese paintings of great excellence have been added to the museum collection, and one, a scroll of great interest, with a stone-rubbing of beautiful chirography appended, is now on view. A fine exhibition of renaissance drawings, with many noteworthy examples by the great artists, is shown in Gallery 25.

An innovation which will be welcomed by many museum visitors begins Sept. 1, when the Museum Library will be open on Sunday from 1 to 6 P. M. In the Museum bulletin for July appears the statement made by President Robert W. de Forest of the museum, with reference to the Gothic art of the museum, whose authenticity has been challenged by The New York Times, and also an editorial concerning it which appeared in The Times.

A legacy of $5,000 has been received by the museum under the will of Albert M. P. Mitchell.

Act Exempting Charities From Levy Held Not Retroactive.

Charles A. Curtin, attorney for the State Tax Commission, told yesterday of a decision by the Court of Appeals in favor of the commission which is expected to result in saving thousands of dollars in taxes to the State. The Court held that a legislative act, passed in 1920, exempting certain charitable corporations from the tax on legacies was not retroactive.

The question was raised in the tax on the estate of William D. Burnham, who died March 27, 1919, leaving a personal estate of $473,193. The estate was taxed on bequests to charitable organizations on Feb. 13, 1920, and on May 13, 1920. Some of these corporations were declared exempt from the tax. Representatives of the Burnham estate applied to the Surrogate of Westchester County to direct the return to the estate of $44,641 in taxes on the institutions which later became exempt.

The Surrogate denied the application, and has now been upheld by both the Appellate Division and the Court of Appeals. Mr. Curtin, in behalf of the State Tax Commission, contended that if the law were construed as retroactive, it would be unconstitutional because a tax law cannot be amended so as to invalidate the acts of the agents of the State in their collection of taxes in the past.

TEXAS INVITES GOV. SMITH.

New York Executive Asked to Be Guest at Dallas Fair.

A committee of Texans residing in this city called upon Governor Smith yesterday as a delegation from the Lone Star State to invite him to become the guest of their commonwealth at the thirty-seventh annual State Fair, which will be held in Dallas Oct. 13-28. District Attorney Banton and Walter C. Sheppard, another lawyer, who is the brother of United States Senator Sheppard of Texas, were members of the delegation, which was headed by Amos L. Beatty, President of the Texas Company.

The Governor was assured by the committee that there need be no fear that political significance would be attached to the trip. Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Woodrow Wilson, William G. McAdoo and William Jennings Bryan were mentioned as public men who had been similarly entertained. The committee said the long trip should not act as a deterrent because the hardship of the journey would be more than outweighed by Texan hospitality.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 19.—Jack Dempsey's portrait, on exhibition at the Kansas City Art Institute in a collection of fifty-four works by Western artists, is causing visitors at the exhibit to be quizzical. None recalls a previous gallery that included the picture of a fistic champion. Many pass it by with a knowing nod of approval—an excellent portrayal of brute manhood, probably picked to pose from a wharfside, the recognition, spreading of the revelation and a buzz of comment.

Women connoisseurs, teacups in hand, find difficulty in establishing a connection. "Is art being degraded by establishing itself with the prize ring?" "Were there not more appropriate subjects to tempt the painter's eye?" they ask.

The portrait, 29 by 41 inches, painted in oil by Alonzo Victor Lewis of Seattle, is valued at $2,000. It is not for sale. It hangs in a gallery which includes mostly landscapes.

EDNA MILLAY OPERATED ON

Poet Bride of F. E. Boissevain Under Knife for Appendicitis.

Edna St. Vincent Millay, the poet, author of "Renascence," who married F. Eugene Boissevain at Croton-on-the-Hudson on Thursday, was operated on in the New York Hospital yesterday morning for appendicitis, and at a late hour last night was reported to be as comfortable as could be expected. She was under the anaesthetic for more than an hour and a half.

Her husband spent the afternoon and evening with her at the hospital. Except for the drive to the city from the home of Boardman Robinson at Croton, where the ceremony took place, Mrs. Boissevain has spent the entire time since her wedding at the hospital. This she had expected to do, however, for it was owing to the necessity for an immediate operation that the marriage was performed in advance of the date intended.

Finley J. Shepard Jr., 12 years old, first of the four children adopted by Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, formerly Helen Gould, was successfully operated on for appendicitis Tuesday at Roosevelt Hospital by Dr. John F. Erdman of 60 West Fifty-second Street, it became known.

Mrs. Shepard brought the boy from Roxbury, N. J., birthplace of Mrs. Finley's father. Tuesday afternoon and has occupied an adjoining room at the hospital since taking him there. It was stated at the hospital that the boy is recovering so rapidly that it is expected he will be able to leave within four days.

ADMIRAL SIGSBEE OF THE MAINE DIES

HIS DEATH SUDDEN AT 78

Naval Veteran of Civil and Spanish Wars Noted Also as a Deep Sea Explorer and Inventor.

Rear Admiral Charles Dwight Sigsbee, who was Captain of the Maine when that battleship was blown up in Havana Harbor, precipitating our war with Spain, died yesterday at his home, 529 West 112th Street, of heart disease. He had been in poor health for some time, but was not confined to the house, and only on Wednesday went for a horseback ride.

Yesterday he became suddenly ill, and, although two physicians were called, he sank rapidly and in a short time died. Members of his family were with him at his death. Services will be held on Friday night at his late residence by the Spanish War Veterans, and he will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, D. C.

The Late Rear Admiral Sigsbee.

Admiral Sigsbee was a man of great versatility, a writer, a deep-sea explorer, an inventor and a cartoonist and illustrator.

He was born at Albany, January 16, 1845, the son of Nicholas Sigsbee and Agnes Orr. He was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1859 and was graduated in 1863. After leaving the academy he was appointed ensign on the Monongahela of the West Gulf Squadron. The next year he was attached to the Brooklyn, which took part in the battle of Mobile Bay under Admiral Farragut. The year following found him with the North Atlantic blockading squadron and he took part in the attacks on Fort Fisher and the final assault on that fortification.

After the war he was transferred to the Asiatic station and on May 10, 1866, was promoted to master. The way he saved the Blake in a storm is still a legend with old navy men. He was caught in a storm, drifting despite his anchors on a reef, when he determined upon the bold expedient of scuttling his ship to save her from being pounded to pieces. He did so, and later the ship was raised from her sandy bed and placed again in commission.

His ability as a cartoonist became known in the early seventies, when he submitted some of his drawings to The Daily Graphic of New York. They were accepted and widely advertised. He signed them with his initial "S." A number of publishers, not knowing he was a naval officer, offered him positions on their staffs.

Invented Deep-Sea Sounding Machine.

He was a mechanical draftsman, and in his deep-sea sounding work he invented several instruments which are still in use, and because of them he received the Double Red Eagle of Prussia and a medal from Great Britain. His deep-sea sounding machine attracted the attention of Lord Kelvin at the Centennial Exposition of 1876, who pronounced it perfect. A parallel ruler was also one of his inventions.

When the trouble with Spain was brewing Captain Sigsbee, then a man of 52 years of age, was sent to Havana in command of the Maine to protect American lives and property. The ship was assigned to a special anchorage by representatives of the Spanish Government and rode to anchor there for two weeks. On Feb. 15, 1898, Captain Sigsbee went to his cabin soon after 8 o'clock and write a long letter to his wife. By the time he had finished it most of the 328 men and thirty-six officers were asleep.

Captain Sigsbee had just sealed his envelope when there was a roar and the ship began to list. Sigsbee groped his way through the darkness and confusion to the deck and received the report that the ship was sinking, which he knew from the moment of the explosion.

Lives of 264 Men Lost.

The lives of 264 men were lost in that disaster. The people of the country were aroused, believing that the ship had been blown up by Spaniards, and only Sigsbee's calm advice to suspend judgment prevented an immediate action for war. He had no doubt that the ship had been blown up from the outside, and a later investigation seemed to confirm his decision. The old battleship was later raised, towed out to sea and sunk with imposing ceremonies in a spot where Admiral Sigsbee had made soundings many years before with his machine.

In the war that followed he commanded the St. Paul, auxiliary cruiser, and captured a Spanish collier carrying coal to Cervera, which doomed the Spanish fleet at Santiago. The Spanish cruiser Isabella II. and the destroyer Terror also surrendered to him. He commanded at various times the Kearsage, the Dale, Constellation, Portsmouth, Texas and other ships, and when he was in command of the cruiser squadron of the North Atlantic fleet he was sent to France to bring the remains of John Paul Jones back to this country.

MITCHEL MEMORIAL SERVICE AT GRAVE

Third Annual Pilgrimage to Woodlawn Cemetery by Friends of Former Mayor.

Relatives and friends of former Mayor John Purroy Mitchel, who was killed in an airplane accident at Gerstner Field in Louisiana in 1918, gathered about his grave in Woodlawn Cemetery yesterday afternon to commemorate the forty-fourth anniversary of his birth. It was the third annual pilgrimage since the idea originated among several Commissioners who worked under his administration.

An opening prayer by Father Augustin N. Arcibal, of the French Church of Notre Dame at Morningside Avenue and 114th Street, where Mitchel worshipped; a short eulogy by William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the Public Service Commission; and the blowing of taps while members of the John Purroy Mitchel Post of the American Legion saluted a brave soldier lying at rest—that was all. As the thirty or so members of the party stood bareheaded and hushed in a semi-circle about the grave it seemed almost like a family gathering.

Three wreaths were placed beside the headstone that bears the name of Major John Purroy Mitchel. One was from the class of '99 of Columbia University, which has always remained wonderfully loyal to its distinguished member. Another, marked simply "Mitchel Commissioners and Associates," was placed on the grave by former License Commissioner George H. Bell. The third was brought by the Mitchel Post of the American Legion whose members in uniform accompanied a color guard. Before taps was blown Captain Henry D. Valentine pledged the post's assistance in carrying on the work begun by Mitchel.

Mr. Prendergast in a brief address after the prayer pictured the former Mayor as possessing a "fascinating quality of youth," as "incisive and unyielding in controversy," yet ever honorable and courteous. "He scorned the practices, the arts and the craven pleas of the demagogue," the speaker said.

Many of the party proceeded directly from Woodlawn to the Larchmont Yacht Club, there to take dinner and view a portrait of Mitchel which is to be hung in the Mayor's Gallery in City Hall.

CHILDREN MOURN 'OLD HANS'

I. R. T. Watchman of 70, Bronx Character, Was Worth $50,000.

"Old Hans" is dead. For the past five days children in the vicinity of Courtlandt Avenue and 158th Street, the Bronx, accustomed to listen to his stories, were puzzled at the non-appearance of their friend. But not until yesterday, when the old man's body was discovered in his meagre apartment in the rear house of 785 Courtlandt Avenue, did they realize that the lips from which had come so many marvelous tales were silenced forever.

Nearly nine years have passed since "Old Hans" first moved into Courtlandt Avenue. During all that time his only friends have been the neighborhood children. Among the grown-ups he was known as a recluse. For, at seventy, he did his own housekeeping, and the only visitor ever known to rap at his door was a son who lives in Connecticut.

Early last evening, Harry Bernstein, of 953 Hoe Avenue, the Bronx, went to visit friends in the Courtlandt Avenue premises. He inquired about "Old Hans" and some one remembered that Hans, who worked as a watchman for the I. R. T., had not been seen for several days.

Bernstein notified Patrolman Talty of the Morrisania Station and together they forced the door to his apartment. Lying fully dressed on the bed was the body of the old man. He had been dead since Saturday.

Among his effects were deeds, stock certificates and bank books made out in the name of John Pohlman, estimated to be worth nearly $50,000. Residents said it was the first time they had ever known his real name. The police are trying to locate his relatives.

CRAIG ASKS HYLAN TO OUST HIRSHFIELD

DENIES STRIKING DEPUTY

Declares Report of Attack on Process Server Is Utterly False.

Controller Charles L. Craig wrote a letter to the Mayor last night asking that either Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield or Process Server Theodore J. Boertlein of Hirshfield's staff be removed. Mr. Craig also declared that he was aware that the Mayor wanted to break down the Finance Department and eliminate checks on public money, but that he would not gratify either desire.

The letter to the Mayor was inspired by a Municipal Building triangle which developed yesterday with Mr. Hirshfield, his process server and the Controller in the rôles. Some time ago, in one of those sessions at the City Hall, Controller Craig said that he did not think the Commissioner of Accounts would dare to subpoena him in the inquiry into the teachers' retirement pension funds. Mr. Hirshfield, it appeared, had been threatening to issue such a subpoena.

Yesterday the Commissioner sent Boertlein to serve the subpoena. What happened then was told in letters that passed within a few hours between Mr. Hirshfield on the twelfth floor and Mr. Craig on the fifth floor.

According to Boertlein's report, Mr. Craig spurned the subpoena, dashed the 50-cent fee to the corridor and twice struck the process server. "This," Mr. Hirshfield declared in a letter to Mr. Craig, "is not an act of the great legal mind you claim to be, and certainly undignified on the part of a high-class public official you say you are."

Mr. Craig in his reply said that any statement that he had struck Boertlein was false, as were the charges that he had refused to accept the subpoena or had thrown the fifty-cent piece to the floor.

"On a question of credibility," wrote Mr. Craig, "one may very well doubt whether your statement should be accepted as to what Boertlein is alleged to have said to you. However, the narrative as given by you is false in every particular. If Boertlein in fact made the statement which you attribute to him, he should be immediately removed; for even in the office of the Commissioner of Accounts there should be a limit; and if he did not in fact make the statement, you should forthwith resign your office."

OPPOSES EMBARGO ON PULP

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 19.—Under the caption "Pulpwood and Reprisals" The Ottawa Citizen, leading journal of the Canadian capital, discusses the pulpwood embargo legislation. The Citizen finds great danger and little profit to Canada in such an embargo, if it is applied. It says:

"The predicted acts of reprisal against an embargo on the export of pulpwood from Canada are already being threatened. Alarmed at the prospect of the cutting off of supplies of raw wood from the Dominion, the United States is beginning to talk of retaliation. It was inevitable, and if it came to a contest of reprisals it is probable that, as conditions are at present, the republic could work harm upon this country.

"Trade wars and tariff reprisals are usually the consequence of acts which create artificial barriers in the path of trade. An embargo on pulpwood would erect such a barrier.

"Would the alleged saving to Canada which a prohibitory law would afford compensate for the harm done in other directions? It is doubtful, and therefore extreme caution should be exhibited before this country is committed to one more artificial trade restriction.

"What is eating up at an enormous pace the timber resources of this country is fire—and our own paper mills. Since 1912 the amount of paper manufactured in the United States has remained practically stationary, but Canada in 1922 produced 1,082,000 tons of paper compared with 256,000 in 1912. The Americans produced 1,448,000 tons in 1922 as compared with 1,432,000 in 1912, and in 1922 Canada exported 83 per cent. of its newsprint to the American market."

PERIL AT EVERY TURN AWAITS DRY AGENTS

TAKE MANY LONG CHANCES

PROHIBITION INSIDE OUT
Sixth Instalment

Some of the perils that beset the prohibition agent are revealed in today's instalment of Commissioner Haynes's story. Tomorrow's will tell another chapter of daring in the liquor war.

By ROY A. HAYNES,
U. S. Prohibition Commissioner.

THE desk before me as I write is orderly confusion. To the right, to the left and in front of me are papers. There are reports—scores of them—culled from files, telling of men who risk their lives to enforce the law. From this wealth of material it is a difficult task to select the instances I desire to present as typical of the prohibition agent's work in eliminating moonshine and the still.

Inevitably, as I read the reports, there come to mind two pictures. They have come to me often: before my mind's eye they have risen again and again, clear cut and vivid, as if on canvas suddenly illuminated in a darkened room.

One picture shows a section of a great city's night life. There are men and women on the canvas, smartly clad and gay. Sometimes the light in which they move is tinted by the softening shades of the fashionable drawing room; sometimes it is the white glare of a bohemian restaurant. The living figures make merry far into the night. The color deepens on milady's cheek, the voice of her escort grows thick.

What are they saying as the pocket flasks run low?

"It can never be enforced."

"It's dead easy to get all you want."

"They can never make this city dry."

"Popular opinion's against the law."

And so the conversation goes. The Eighteenth Amendment means nothing to them (although it is warp and woof of the legal fabric which gives them all their rights) except a hindrance to the gratification of appetite and an opportunity to show their cleverness in evading it.

On the Dark Road.

The other picture:

It is night. The moon shines down on a lonely road that winds from hills to sleeping city. From far down the roadway comes the growing roar of an unmuffled motor. An automobile whirls into view, flashes past and is gone. The bootlegger and his fellow-criminals are on their way. Another roar—the enforcement officers are in pursuit. Presently the bark of a rifle; then pistol shots. There are dead, dying or wounded.

Or, again, the picture shows the stealthy march of men through woodland to a still. We see the moonshiners at their sordid task. There is a raid, a fight. Shots fly. Men fall.

What does the Eighteenth Amendment mean to those who trail the outlaw at his whirlwind speed or beard him in his den? Do those men believe "prohibition is a joke"? Do they think "the law can never be enforced"?

The dwindling few of America who see but the first picture should look at the second. To the small minority who boast of law evasion I commend the thought that America's conscience, power, majesty and might are the forces now engaged, with growing success, in upholding the principles of her basic law; and the further thought that America has never yet set her hand to a task to leave it unfinished.

Men of the Prohibition Enforcement Service engaged in the apprehension of moonshiners are, for the most part, fearless. Many have looked, at various times, down both ends of a revolver. Bravery is counted among prime requisites in selecting men for these difficult and dangerous posts. Dignity is another one of the essentials; the man who fills the office must be neither braggart nor bully. A third requisite is that the agent personally shall be in sympathy with the aim and intent of the law he enforces.

Into the Moonshiners' Cave.

How far will these picked men go in the performance of their duty? To the place where there is no further way to go. For instance:

Three prohibition agents set out to find a hidden still. They worked at night, tramping many miles through woods and fields. Finally, in the faint impression of wagon tracks on the baked clay of an open field they obtained a clue.

They followed the tracks. Sometimes the outline was so faint as to be almost imperceptible. But they hung on. On the second night they came to a windlass disconnected beside a hole in the ground. There they stopped and waited.

Presently they heard muffled sounds of human voices coming from the ground beneath them. Apparently the moonshiners were at work in the hole. The agents looked around for the dump to which the moonshiners had carted the earth they dug up, but there was no dump. Either the earth had been carted far or the hole was the opening of a natural cavern.

It proved to be the latter. The oldest agent turned the beam of his flashlight into the opening, but the bottom was so far beneath that the light spent its force before reaching it. He shouted into the opening.

"What are you doing down there?"

There was no answer. He shouted again without effect. Using his flashlight he found what he had overlooked before—a ladder whose end reached to within a short distance of the surface.

"You fellows stay here," he told his companions. "I'm going down and get 'em."

They demurred. Finally he compromised by taking one of the men down (himself leading the way) and leaving the other on the surface to await developments and, if necessary, to summon help.

They let themselves down on the wet rungs. The ladder itself stood bolt upright so firmly set against its support of clay that hardly a toehold could be got on the moldy cross-bars. The opening was so snug that at times the men were jacketed on all sides by clay. The second agent trod more than once in the darkness on the fingers of the first.

But of all these things they thought little. The odor of the still came to their nostrils and they knew they had run down their quarry.

A Quick Surrender.

When they reached the bottom they found themselves in a large cavern. The moonshiners, alarmed by the dropping of earth brushed off by their unwelcome visitors, were awaiting them. As the agents' flashlights revealed them, they held up their hands, grinning sheepishly.

"Well, you got us," one of them said. "We don't aim to cause you no trouble."

They went up, peaceably enough, one at a time, to the waiting agent above, who tied their hands as they gained the surface. The agents then explored the cavern and found the still, a quantity of spirits and a store of supplies. The fire was going and the agents traced its smoke through twenty-six joints of stovepipe to an ingenious arrangement carrying it off through another opening in the ground near by. Incidentally, the moonshiners were burning hickory wood, which smokes but little.

After the three moonshiners had been sent to the surface, one of the agents followed and the other remained behind to destroy the still. In doing so he attempted to put out the fire and thoughtlessly knocked apart the stovepipe. Immediately the cavern began to fill with smoke and noxious gases. The agent climbed up the ladder for his life and was almost unconscious when, with a last effort, he came within grasp of his companions at the top.

Hidden Stills in Virginia.

Underground stills are comparatively rare. One of the largest of which there is a record was found not long ago on the property of a Virginia farmer, a man of ample means and many acres, whose station in life was considerably above that of most moonshiners in town or country.

Prohibition agents had traced bottles used at this still to the home of a man in a near-by town and with that clue set out to see the farmer. Down a narrow wagon road leading from his front gate they found a dugout, the entrance to which, barely large enough to admit a man, was screened by brush and the branches of trees.

Through this hole the agents entered an underground compartment approximately ninety feet long, fifteen feet wide and eight feet high. All the moonshiner's usual paraphernalia was in evidence. The agents counted thirteen stills, each of fifty-gallon capacity; upward of fifty fermenting barrels, eight five-gallon glass bottles, and numerous implements in common use at such establishments. The dugout also contained about twenty-five gallons of moonshine whisky, still warm. The stills were neatly arranged, side by side, against the earth bank, leaving ample space for passage and work. A single worm, more than 100 feet in length, sufficed for distilling the joint effort of the thirteen stills, and a steam boiler of 200 horsepower served to operate all.

The place was unoccupied at the time, and one of the agents was sent back to town to obtain a search warrant while the others continued their examination. They traced the smokestack of the boiler in the dugout several hundred feet to the hollow stump of a tree. A passer-by, noting the smoke, naturally would assume that the stump had been set on fire and was smoldering.

The farmer had covered the dugout with heavy boards, which were supported by timbers such as are used in coal mines. After boarding the place over, he had covered the boards with earth to the level of the surrounding field. Except for a mound where had been dumped the large quantity of earth removed, the surface of the field was level. One could walk across the earth scattered on top of the boards without detecting the dugout.

Two Woodland Stills.

While waiting for the return of the agent sent back to town, the other agents went a short distance down another roadway on the same premises, and in a bit of woodland found two more stills, located on the surface of the ground. These stills were of 500-gallon capacity each, and were operated by a steam boiler. No one else was on the scene.

Not far from these mammoth stills the agents found another moonshining establishment with one still of 500-gallon capacity and a steam boiler. At the three stills they found 6,800 gallons of mash. There were about 700 gallons more in the dugout, making the total find approximately 7,500 gallons.

Upon the return of their companion with a search warrant the agents arrested the farmer, searching his clothing and house, and found other damaging evidence of his illegal activities. Several alleged accomplices were arrested and all were held under bond to answer charges of conspiracy as well as violation of the enforcement law.

Stills are found in all sorts of out-of-the-way places. Recently in the City of Omaha prohibition agents found a still in a sub-cellar reached by a sixty-five-foot tunnel. The opening was concealed in a barn on the premises. The ceiling of the sub-cellar was the floor of the basement of the dwelling, and was constructed of reinforced concrete five inches thick and without opening or vent. The sub-cellar and tunnel were cemented.

In Colorado a still was found in a cave whose entrance was concealed by heavy brush. Buried under the brush in shallow graves there were the bodies of many animals. Apparently the moonshiners had counted upon the stench of decomposing flesh to counteract the heavy fumes of mash and whisky.

An old church building in Iowa was desecrated by moonshiners, who constructed a $50,000 plant beneath its roof. One man built a showy bungalow in a fashionable suburb of a large Ohio city to house his still. In several cities stills have been found in the city or county jail. At a still near Meridian, Miss., the mash was found in a horse stall buried in the ground and covered by a trapdoor over which manure was spread.

When a well-dressed girl, still in her teens, walked into the office of J. Paige Lent, Deputy County Clerk of Queens, yesterday, Mr. Lent was about to remark that the Marriage License Bureau was a few doors away, for he thought she sought the Deputy City Clerk.

"My attorney told me to come here," Mr. Lent's visitor said, "and I want to file a certificate indicating my business name. My right name is Alva Lindahl and my business name in the future will be the Queens Tire Shop."

Miss Lindahl said she had come from Wisconsin to sell tires to Queens autoists, following two years in high school, two years of a business course and two years as saleswoman in a large automobile tire shop. She said she had put all her savings into the venture and was determined to make it go. Her shop will open next Monday.

GOV. SMITH AUCTIONS OFF OLD ARSENAL

JOKES AS HE WIELDS GAVEL

Says There Ought to Be More Money in Being Auctioneer Than in Being President.

Governor Smith became an auctioneer yesterday and in his ten-minute venture into that field sold the historic Arsenal, Seventh Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, for $1,350,000. Sixty-six years ago the State paid $29,900 for the site.

The purchasers were Henry Greenberg, 47 Suffolk Street; Maurice Bienstock, 1,505 Fifty-seventh Street, Brooklyn, and Louis Berglas of 8 Fulton Street, Brooklyn. The three men are builders, and their attorney, Ralph V. Wechsler of 395 Broadway, said they would begin immediately by the erection of a $4,500,000 loft and office building to be part of the garment industry "capitol."

It was the Governor's first taste of the auction block and he said that he had found that "it wasn't a bad business." He added, with a laugh, he thought there would be more money in being an auctioneer than in being President. About 400 real estate operators faced the Governor when he mounted the platform at the Arsenal, with code signal flags spelling out "A. E. S." at his back. After posing for the photographers, the Governor got down to business—armed with a silver gavel.

"In accordance with Chapter 471 of the Laws of 1923, he said, "a commission, consisting of State Controller James W. Fleming, Colonel James Wescott and the Governor, are here to dispose of the piece of land known as the Arsenal. It was acquired by the State from George Youle in 1857 for about $30,000. At that time there was little to the city above Fourteenth Street, but the progress of time and changed conditions make it not desirable to hold the property any longer. The National Guard of the State is now federalized, and we get our supplies from the Federal Government. It is not economical for the State to continue on a plot of ground, worth anywhere from $1,000,000 to $1,200,000."

Laughter greeted the Governor's estimate of the value of the property, which he checked with the remark, "Let's get down to business—what's the first bid?" Some one started with an offer of $700,000. It leaped up to $800,000 on the second bid and went to $1,000,000 on the third.

By tens of thousands it climbed up to $1,210,000, and then the Governor began to bring in the tricks of the professional auctioneer, seemingly enjoying it as much as the crowd. By degrees of five thousands the price rose to $1,270,000 and then the bidding began to fall away.

A bid of $10,000 more interrupted him. The Governor acknowledged with a smile and urged them to keep up the good work. "The State needs the money," he said.

"A real auctioneer," continued the Governor, "might in all human probability say that in a 'few years the financial district will be right on this corner.' Think of that, gentlemen, and bid and bid and bid!"

Only the more daring bidders were left in the contest, however, and the Governor remarked that "silence comes over the camp." In an effort to stimulate the bids, he suddenly rapped his silver gavel and pretended that he was going to close the deal right there.

"Once—!" he shouted, ready to drop the gavel, "how about it? Once—"

"$1,290,000," shouted some one.

"That's the idea," said the Governor, and in quick spurts the price went up to $1,325,000.

"Got to have a drink on that," said the auctioneer, and amid laughter, he poured out a long drink of water. Urging that the price go higher, Governor Smith, with mock seriousness, asked the audience if they knew the Arsenal building went with the land. When the top price was reached, the Governor brought his gavel down with a bang and an emphatic "sold!"

"After today," he said, "Joseph P. Day and Bryan Kennelly will be white with envy. And, incidentally, when I get through at Albany—this is not a bad line of business."

When the three buyers came forward and were introduced, Governor Smith told Controller Fleming to "take them into the office and separate them." The State official received from the purchasers a check for 10 per cent. of the purchase price, together with a corporate bond or undertaking. The next highest bidders were Joseph Durst of the Knickerbocker Building at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street and W. Gordon Crawford of 2 East Fifty-sixth Street.

GOVERNOR AT CONEY; ALSO GUEST ON LINER

Several hundred persons in the dining room arose as the Governor entered. With him were Borough President Edward Riegelmann of Brooklyn, Grover Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures; John H. Delaney, Commissioner of Docks, and James J. Reardon, who succeeded Governor Smith as head of the United States Trucking Corporation.

They had assembled in the hope of celebrating Maughan's trip across the continent. In this group were Capts. Wright and Brady, Lieuts. Bertrandias and Connell, and Sergeant Major O'Connor.

The Governor was accompanied by Major Gen. Berry, Acting Adjt. Gen. Wescott, George R. Van Namee, the Governor's secretary; Robert Fitzmaurice, executive officer to the Governor, and Acting Sergeant William Ray, the Governor's personal escort.

'NO PARKING' SIGNS ILLEGAL

Persons Who Paint Warning on Sidewalks Violate Law.

Property owners who paint on the sidewlak in front of their premises the warning "No Parking Here" are violating a provision of the Code of Ordinances, according to a statement issued last night by Joseph Johnson, Commissioner of Public Works, of Manhattan. A section of the code reads: "No person shall deface any sidewalk by painting or writing thereon, or attaching thereto, in any manner, any advertisement or other printed matter."

Erie Is Liable for Suits for Recovery of Pay, Cut in Defiance of Order, Says Labor Board

CHICAGO, July 19 (Associated Press).—The Erie Railroad Company has made itself liable for a money recovery by every employe who suffered loss of compensation when it arbitrarily reduced the wages of crossing watchmen, flagmen and trackmen in violation of Decision 147 of the United States Railroad Labor Board, the board announced today in a decision rendered in the case of the American Federation of Railroad Workers against the carrier.

The railroad, the board held, also violated the Transportation act and had persisted in violation of the board's order relative to the "contracting out" of railroad labor. The classes of labor involved were "contracted out" to the Lincoln Engineering Company at an hourly wage of 5 to 10 cents lower than the present wage of similar classes of railroad workers on other railroads, as established by Decision 147.

The carriers at a hearing of the dispute admitted it had violated Decision 147 and had no intention of complying with it or restoring the wages ordered by the decision. Some employes, following the "contracting out" decision, were again placed on the payroll of the carrier but at the pay of the Lincoln Engineering Company.

"When the carrier reduced the compensation of its said employes who were engaged in work customarily incidental and practically indispensable to the operation of the road it not only violated the decision of the Labor Board, but it annulled and established a decision equivalent to an agreement and violated the Transportation act itself," the decision stated. "In the present case the Erie Railroad had put into effect the rates of pay fixed by the board's decision, 147. Having done this, the carrier could not lawfully reduce these rates, except by the collective consent of the employes or by the approval of the Railroad Labor Board.

"The carrier, under the law, might have declined to accept Decision 147, but having put it into effect could only reduce its rates by complying with the mandatory provisions of the statute, which requires, in case of disagreement, the submission of the question to the Labor Board. In other words, while the final decision of the board is advisory, the preliminary steps leading up to the decision are mandatory and enforceable. This is the very essence of the theory of the Transportation act, to make it imperative on the parties to submit their differences to the Labor Board, even though the board's decisions of these disputes are merely advisory."

GERMAN PRINCESS WEARS PRISON GARB

LEIPSIC, July 19 (Associated Press).—Princess Marguerite of Hohenlohe-Oehringen, arrested in connection with the charges against Captain Erhardt, who recently escaped from the Leipsic prison, is receiving no special privileges during her incarceration, it was revealed today. She is required to wear prison garb, the same as the other inmates, and the concessions of providing her own food and other necessities have been refused to her.

The court which has charge of her case pending the beginning of her trial next Monday declared in favor of special treatment for the Princess, but the jail administration decided otherwise, and in fact is taking special precautions to see that she shall not escape.

Four persons suspected of complicity in the Kapp putsch of 1920 were to have been put on trial Monday, but Princess Marguerite is the only defendant on hand since Erhardt's escape. Lieutenant Liebig, a Munich student, cannot be found and Professor Schloesser, the fourth, has furnished a medical certificate to the effect that he cannot attend court because of illness.

It has now been definitely established that Captain Erhardt has made his way into Bavaria. The Leipsic police have identified and seized in a Munich garage an automobile driven by Lieutenant Liebig, a Munich student, who is believed to have acted as chauffeur for Erhardt. The car belong to an engineer named Eric Tenjes, a resident of Westphalia, who is being sought by the authorities.

The placards posted in connection with Captain Erhardt's escape have in many instances been mutilated, especially that part of them bearing his likeness.

Four officials connected with the Leipsic prison have been arrested as a result of the escape of Captain Erhardt, who is wanted for his part in the Kapp putsch of 1920.

The officials under detention are Chaplain Gotthard, who is suspected of leaving a door open; Chief Secretary Mamsch, whose duties include admission, release and general care of prisoners; Chief Superintendent Schmutzler and the official in charge of the bath, Erhardt having requested the privilege of bathing as part of his plan to escape.

Investigation has revealed that Erhardt used a door leading out through a public hallway into the street, near which an automobile was in waiting. This door, which had been closed for years, was found open shortly after his escape. The prisoner only had to shoot back the bolt on the inside, the door apparently having previously been unlocked from the outside with a master key.

FORD BUYS ANTIQUES FOR THE WAYSIDE INN

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 19 (Associated Press).—An unassuming, pleasant man dropped into an antique shop here this morning.

He bought a seven-legged spinet, some chests, chairs, two pianos, other musical instruments, and some vases and crocks. In fact, he spent the morning in the little shop, displaying a wide knowledge of antiques.

When he left he gave his name as Henry Ford of Detroit, and said he wanted his purchases shipped to the Wayside Inn he recently purchased in the East and to his winter home at Fort Myers, Fla.

'THOUGHT PLANES' CLASH.

Dr. Nita Baker Asks Divorce for Mental Differences With Scientist.

Dr. Baker told the court that she and Dean Baker "lived on different thought planes."

Dean Baker, according to Dr. Baker, is a brother of Ray Stannard Baker, a writer. She said she was a cousin of former Vice President Marshall.

AMERICA CONCERNED IN MANDATE SESSION

WILL ADVISE THE COUNCIL

Washington Continues Negotiations to Preserve Rights in Allotted Territories.

GENEVA, July 19 (Associated Press).—The United States has a special interest in the action to be taken on the reports of the mandatary powers which will be presented at the meeting of the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations tomorrow, because the Washington Government, having negotiated a treaty with Japan over Yap Island, is now engaged in preserving American rights in all other mandated territories. The United States is negotiating separate conventions with the other countries which are administrating world territories under the aegis of the League.

To secure impartiality, a majority of the members of the commission are citizens of non-mandatary countries. Their task will be scrupulously to examine all reports and present their advice to the Council of the League.

The supreme object is to prevent the mandatary system from developing into something akin to annexation and to insure the establishment of a world colonial policy under international supervision. Each administrating country, it is hoped, will be stimulated through publicity and the resultant force of public opinion to exercise the best possible government for the many millions of people under its control.

Though not a member of the League, the United States has never abandoned its rights concerning mandated lands, so that indirectly it has a certain relation to this activity of the League. The chief interest of the League is to ascertain whether the territories are being governed in the highest interest of the native populations formerly under Turkish or German rule.

England has the greater part of German East Africa, Mesopotamia and Palestine under mandate. Australia has New Guinea, and New Zealand has Samoa. The Pacific islands north of the Equator were turned over to Japan. France received Syria and the major part of Togoland and Kamerun, and Belgium the district of German East Africa bordering on the German Congo.

Separate reports will be submitted on the question of slavery and labor in the affected territories, as well as education and the liquor traffic.

The inaugural session tomorrow will be public, under the Presidency of Marquis Theodoli, formerly Colonial Under-Secretary of Italy.

ALLIED EVACUATION PLANS.

Withdrawal From Turkish Territory Will Occupy Six Weeks.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 19 (Associated Press).—Owing to the better feeling existing between the British and Turkish military forces, it is hoped that the allied evacuation, which will occupy six weeks, will be carried out quietly. The evacuation of Constantinople, Haidarpasha and the Dardanelles will take place simultaneously, and on the last day the three allied Generals will depart with the few remaining battalions.

The Turkish Military Governor has visited Lieut. Gen. Sir Charles Harington and has promised to forbid demonstrations and do his utmost to avoid unpleasantness. He added that he would bring no Turkish troops into Constantinople until the British had departed.

CHELSEA, Mass., July 19.—Elizabeth McDonald, 14 years old, was arrested today charged with the murder of James J. McDonald, 4 years old. She was placed in charge of juvenile probation officers to await hearing in Juvenile Court.

The boy's body was found Monday afternoon in a shallow pool near a pier in Chelsea. Other children said that Elizabeth had pushed him from the pier. The police said today said that the girl had confessed.

Sleepwalker Falls to Death.

While walking in his sleep early yesterday morning in his room at the Hotel Bristol, 129 West Forty-eighth Street, William W. Edmonds, 21 years old, of 31 Monadnock Street, Dorchester, Mass., fell from the window four stories to the roof of a one-story extension. He was removed to Bellevue Hospital, where he died two hours later. Father Joseph M. Madden of St. Malachy's Church, 241 West Forty-ninth Street, administered last rites.

BALDWIN WINS VOTE FOR SINGAPORE BASE

FEAR NEW ARMAMENT RACE

LONDON, July 19.—Following a keen debate in the House of Commons tonight on the fortification and development of Singapore, the Government's proposal was adopted under closure.

George Lambert, a Liberal member from Devonshire, contended that the proposal was an infringement of the Washington Naval Treaty. He asked whether that treaty, entered into between the Great Powers in 1922 for a period extending to 1936, was to be treated as a "scrap of paper." If the British Government contemplated the possibility of war with Japan, why did they sign the Washington Treaty?

Mr. Darbyshire also declared that it was contrary to the spirit of the Washington Treaty and accused the Government of possessing the war mind.

Jack Jones, Laborite, said the policy the Government was pursuing would lead to war with either Japan or America.

Captain W. Wedgwood Benn said it was perfectly well known that the Singapore base was directed against Japan.

Others spoke in the same vein, but some members criticized the projected base solely because Singapore, in their opinion, was unsuitable for the purpose owing to climatic conditions and other considerations.

On the other hand, the Government supporters, in urging the importance of providing an adequate naval base at Singapore, scouted the idea that it was opposed to the spirit of the Washington treaty or was directed at any other power. For instance, Commander Burney had no doubt the Government was acting within the letter and spirit of the Washington treaty. Sir Guy Gaunt was certain America would agree with Great Britain in the matter, and Colonel M. Alexander declared the Singapore base was not meant for an offence either to America or Japan, but would show the rest of the world that Great Britain was ready to protest her interests wherever they were situated.

The strongest support came from Lady Astor. She said if she thought the policy of this Government, or any Government, was to make war or encourage war she, as an ordinary woman, would vote against Singapore. She hated war. She hated a lot of things, but she did not expect to get them out of the world all at once. People must make up their minds when they talked about a "yellow peril" whether they were going to have a progressive civilization, with the Anglo-Saxon race to police the world..

An American missionary in a far part of the world had told her that she could not realize what it meant to see the British Navy visit those distant places. Not one of these missionaries had ever said a word against the British Navy. One of the greatest ways to assure the peace of the world, she held, was to have a strong navy. She was struck with the fact that those who talked about peace were willing to fight over the most minute questions. She said she would back the Government up for a strong navy, which meant a strong peace in the Far East.

Admiralty Chief Defends It.

Lieut. Col. Amery, First Lord of the Admiralty, in reply, said the charge which Benn and Lambert had made against the Government was that they were violating, in spirit if not in the actual letter, the agreement of Washington, and were pursuing a policy of menace and aggression toward their ancient ally and good friend Japan.

"This country has reason to be proud of its part in connection with the Washington agreement; in what it did before that agreement, in what it did at Washington, and in what it has done since," he said. "By the enormous reductions which Britain made at that conference we welcomed every proposal that was made by Mr. Hughes and by our American friends and colleagues; and more than that, the moment the agreement was signed, though no action under it had to be taken until ratification, and no one else had taken action pending ratification, we took action at once. We disarmed ourselves. We reduced our strength because we hoped and believed that by doing so we should insure the success of the agreement.

"What was that agreement? In the first instance it limited the battleship's strength, not the cruiser nor the general naval strength of the powers concerned; and in the second instance, coupled with that limitation, it established a zone of non-fortification in the Pacific which should be a guarantee to each of the powers concerned and not the least to Japan, whose naval strength was fixed at a lower figure than ours; and that of America, that a policy of aggression across that zone should be impossible.

"The suggestions that Captain Benn and Mr. Lambert made practically come to this, that we agreed to the meridian of 110 degrees, knowing what nobody else knew, that we had a possession called Singapore, which was west of that meridian, and when the agreement was signed that we had got this base up our sleeve, which we would then suddenly begin to fortify.

"Why was the meridian of 110 chosen? For one reason, and one reason only—to make it clear that Singapore was not in the zone of non-action. It was perfectly clear to the delegates at Washington that Singapore was outside the zone of non-action, and that we specifically retained our liberty at Singapore."

Colonel Amery said that immediately to the north of this area of tranquillity lay the main islands of Japan, where the Japanese were at this moment engaged in carrying out a policy of dockyard and naval base extension. Why should they not? It was decided on before the Washington agreement, and it was being carried out after the agreement.

The United States to the east and south of the zone was strengthening its fortifications, he said.

No Offensive Object.

In no case, continued Colonel Amery, had these operations any offensive object. The object of a zone of neutrality in the Pacific was to separate the great powers by such a distance that they could not act offensively against each other.

"If we had had any idea of aggressive domination in the East we should never have agreed to a scheme which deprived us of effective use of Hongkong. We voluntarily denied ourselves the use of that splendid base and retired 1,500 miles further back, because we wanted to make it clear that nothing was further from our thoughts.

"Do members who talk about menace and aggression realize that the distance from Singapore to Yokohama is about the same as the distance from Gibraltar to Boston? If we set up another dock at Gibraltar, would it be said we were guilty of menacing or aggressive designs against the United States?

"The Washington agreement brought us down to the narrow limits of a one power standard. That being so, we must be able to apply that one power standard wherever our interests are threatened. Our fleet must be mobile. We cannot have complete mobility unless we have fuel stations and bases for repairs."

Curb on Negro Exodus Proposed In Georgia and Alabama Bills

ATLANTA, Ga., July 19.—An effort to check the migration of negroes and other farm laborers was given by the authors as the reason for the introduction of a bill in the Georgia Legislature today which would make it a felony for any person or concern to solicit labor in Georgia for other States. Punishment would be a prison term of not less than three years nor more than seven.

"Passage of this bill," one of the authors declared, "will result in checking the exodus of negroes and other farm laborers of Georgia to other States. It does not allow even licensed labor agents to operate in the State. The present labor situation in Georgia demands drastic legislation and this measure is one which we think best to provide relief."

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 19.—A bill to tax labor agents recruiting labor in Alabama $5,000 for every county in which they operate was introduced in the Alabama House of Representatives today.

BEACHES AND RIVER TAKE LIVES OF THREE

ONE A SUICIDE FROM FERRY

Six persons, three of them children, were drowned in and near the city yesterday. One of these was an unidentified man, who jumped from the ferryboat Pierrepont while it was en route from the Battery to Hamilton Avenue, Brooklyn. The body was not recovered.

Stella Piestein of 968 Simpson Street, with her sister Bella, was enjoying the moonlight bathing at City Island last night when her hand came in contact with the body of a man floating on the surface. The young girl called to her sister and several other bathers and they hauled the body ashore.

An ambulance surgeon was hurriedly called with a pulmotor, but after working for half an hour over the body it was evident that life was extinct. In the man's effects in the locker house were found two cards. One a draft certificate, bore the name of A. Sishman with the address, 504 East Fifth Street. The other card was from an electrical union and was made out to Peter Ilitz, 25 Nindham Place, the Bronx.

Evelyn Simms, 13 years old, of 36 Grand Avenue, Jersey City, was drowned in the Hackensack River yesterday afternoon when she fell from a rowboat. Two girls were with her, but their screams brought help too late. The body was recovered several hours later.

George Smith, 8 years old, of 456 West Twentieth Street, was drowned when he fell from the pier at the foot of West Twelfth Street, North River. The body was recovered by the police launch H. and was identified by his father.

Police of Jersey City grappled for more than an hour last night before recovering the body of Dominick de Sango, 11 years old, of 427 Baldwin Avenue, Jersey City, who fell from a raft into a small pond near the Pennsylvania Railroad round house in Waldo Avenue, Jersey City.

While swimming in the surf near the home of Mrs. Carl Forsch in Allenhurst, N. J., yesterday afternoon, Robert Erhardt, 34 years old, employed at the Forsch home, was drowned. The body has not been recovered.

The body of John Corago, 20 years old, 47 Sands Street, Brooklyn, was recovered yesterday by the Marine Police in the East River off Twenty-ninth Street, Brooklyn. On the night of July 15 Corago fell overboard from the steamer Santa Rosalia.

BATHERS IN PERIL AT ATLANTIC CITY

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 19.—Hundreds of bathers were endangered and a score were saved in thrilling rescues late this afternoon in a treacherous offset and triple breakers caused by a storm at sea. Life boats were tipped over in the peculiar whirlpools, hurling guards and rescued bathers back into the swirling surf.

Edward Lister of Philadelphia and Joseph Humphrey of Atlantic City were pulled into a life boat by Thomas Crowell, a University of Pennsylvania student, and Richard Hughes, life guard. The seas caught the life boat and spun it around on end, hurling Lister, Humphrey and the two guards back into the boiling surf.

George Pauling, Philadelphia, plunged into the surf with a can buoy and went to the aid of the struggling men. He relieved them of Humphrey, the lighter of the pair, and with the aid of the bathers on the beach at the other end of a human chain, brought him to shore.

Lister was too weak to hold on to the buoy. Cowell and Hughes kicked the life boat away and after a battle of five minutes brought the man to shore unconscious. Doctors Subsen and Bossert resuscitated him.

Twelve pairs of trousers were ruined and the owners will take their meals standing for some days.

INDICT ATTENDANTS ON CRUELTY CHARGES

WILL BE ARRAIGNED TODAY

3 GUARDS ARE DISMISSED

Leon Putnam and Edward Lutes, attendants at the Brooklyn State Hospital, were indicted by the Kings County Grand Jury yesterday, following an investigation into charges of alleged brutality to inmates. They were arrested last night at the hospital by detectives of the Flatbush Police Station on charges of assault in the second degree. They will be arraigned in Brooklyn County Court today.

Putnam's wife, who also is an attendant at the hospital, was with her husband at the time of the arrest, but did not accompany him to the station.

The two men named, and a third, Richard Galvin, who also was involved in the charges, had been dismissed earlier in the day by Dr. Ross Haviland, Acting Superintendent. A statement announcing the dismissals was made in which it was said:

"Dr. Ross Haviland of the Brooklyn State Hospital states that he just received the opinion and recommendation of the Attorney General on the hearing held concerning the charges against Edward Lutes, Leon Putnam and Richard Galvin. Acting on this opinion and recommendation, and, after a conference with Mr. Hugo Hirsch, President of the Board of Managers, he has dismissed the three men from the service and has so notified the State Civil Service Commission."

Dr. Haviland refused to make any comment, but a spokesman for the Board of Management said that the hospital administration had been greatly handicapped by lack of funds because the State had persistently turned down recommendations for larger appropriations needed to obtain a better class of attendants. He said that the pay for these employes is so small that at times it has been hard to find any one who would accept employment.

Two witnesses were called before the Grand Jury yesterday. They were Philip Addis, formerly an attendant at the hospital, who gave out the original information which led to the investigation of charges of brutality, and Dr. Thomas G. Hogan, the physician in charge of Ward 22, in which it is alleged some patients were illtreated. An effort was made to question Martin Callaghan, an attendant, who corroborated the charges made by Addis. Callaghan left the hospital on Wednesday evening, and efforts to find him have failed.

Assistant District Attorney Palmer said last night that District Attorney Dodd had requested Dr. Haviland to furnish the names and addresses of all attendants who had served in the hospital during the last three months. These men will be questioned by the District Attorney.

During the investigation it was brought out that the accommodations of the hospital are taxed beyond its limit and that there are twenty-five or more patients to each attendant. Commenting on this Mr. Palmer said that the management of the hospital was a matter for the State Attorney General's office. He believed, however, that further disclosures might lead to a general investigation of conditions under which the hospital is operated.

"I cannot discuss the merit of the charges of brutality at the present time," said District Attorney Dodd. "They are so serious that no delay can be allowed in proving or disproving them. Those indicted will be called for trial within a week."

VETERANS BEATEN; POLICEMAN HELD

Set Bail at $1,000 for Officer—Ex-Soldier, in Hospital Seriously Hurt, Is the Accuser.

Patrolman James Wynne of the West 100th Street Station was held in $1,000 bail by Magistrate Silberman in West Side Court yesterday on a charge of felonious assault. The complainant was George Ferguson, a war veteran, who charged the policeman beat and kicked him on the evening of July 12, when Ferguson was standing in a group on Riverside Park.

Ferguson, a conductor on a Fifth Avenue bus, is in the Naval Hospital, Brooklyn, as a result of the alleged beating and is said to be in a serious condition. Attention of the authorities was called to the case by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. According to Ferguson, Wynne told the group to move on. An argument followed, whereupon it was alleged, Wynne attacked Ferguson, who was assisted to his home, 293 Riverside Drive. Ferguson's condition became worse yesterday and he was taken to the hospital.

Wynne, formerly a cartoonist, has been a patrolman for about a year. He is 23 and lives at 255 East 164th Street. He is a graduate of Fordham Preparatory School.

AT 84 HE RACED TO FIRE.

A little man, 84 years old, wandered into the Fifth Street Police Station last night in his shirtsleeves and wearing bedroom slippers. He walked up to Lieutenant Duffy and announced:

"I'm lost. I don't know how to get home."

A patrolman said that if the wanderer would tell him where he lived, he'd take him home.

"And if I knew," was the answer, "I wouldn't be here telling you I was lost."

That complicated things, so Lieutenant Duffy got the rest of the story. The man was John Burke, who came here from Binghamton, N. Y., on Wednesday to live with his son Peter, a mechanic. Yesterday morning Burke was sitting at breakfast when the fire engines went screaming by. He jumped up and without waiting for coat or hat, and in slippers, he raced up the street after the red trucks. He found the fire and watched the boys put it out. Then he started home. That was at 8 A. M. and he had wandered the streets until night, unable to find it.

Lieutenant Duffy said that if no one called for Burke before midnight he would send him to a municipal lodging house.

ENGINEER DIES IN WRECK.

Special to The New York Times.

CARTERET, N. J., July 19.—Thomas J. McCarthy, engineer, was killed and John W. Haffner, brakeman, injured today when a freight locomotive on the South Shore Division of the Central Railroad of New Jersey struck a spreading rail on a sharp curve near here. The locomotive toppled over and several freight cars piled on top of it. McCarthy at the throttle was buried beneath the mass. Haffner riding on the tender saw the first lunge of the locomotive and jumped, breaking an ankle. A wrecking crew worked for an hour before McaCrthy's body was recovered. He had been killed instantly. Coroner Hillpott of Middlesex County began an investigation.

FINE 4 ON HYLAN CHARGE.

Mayor Complained That Building Materials Blocked Streets.

As a result of Mayor Hylan's vigilance five men were arraigned in the Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, yesterday on charges of violating a city ordinance in obstructing street corners in the Crown Heights section with building material. While motoring recently, the Mayor noticed that materials for new buildings obstructed the view at several street corners endangering automobilists. He told Police Captain Joseph McMahon to clean up the condition.

Magistrate Reynolds fined Samuel Feldman of 539 Hopkins Avenue, $5; Antonio Geraci of 1,535 Seventy-ninth Street, $5; Joseph Shure of 446 St. John's Place, $5, and Meyer Dubrusky of 2,050 Douglas Street, $10.

WOMAN CHARGES POISONING

Meat Thrown Into Her Boy's Soup to Be Analyzed.

A charge of throwing pieces of poisoned meat into a child's soup so as to drive the boy's mother from the house was made against Baldasari Moreale, 59 years old, of 116 Second Avenue, in the Essex Market Court yesterday. The complaint was made by Mrs. Marie Stanford, a Spaniard, widow of a Marine, who said that tenants had told her that she was not wanted because of her nationality.

A few days ago Joseph Stanford, her four year old son, was sitting on the fire escape eating a bowl of soup and he told her that Moreale was throwing things into it. The next day the boy became ill and was taken to the Baby's Hospital, Fifty-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue, where his condition was said to be serious.

Moreale, who is the father of eleven children, all of whom were in court, was held in $2,000 bail on a charge of felonious assault. A piece of the meat turned over to the court by Mrs. Stanford will be analyzed.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The barometric depression noted Wednesday night as being off the South Carolina Coast has moved northeastward, and Thursday night was central off the northeast coast of North Carolina as a disturbance of only moderate character. A second depression was central north of the mouth of the St. Lawrence River, and pressure continued relatively low over the Rocky Mountain plateau region. The barometer was high from Bermuda eastward, over the Ohio Valley and surrounding areas and off the North Pacific Coast. Within the last twenty-four hours the precipitation has been confined to the Gulf Coast and Florida, extreme Eastern North Carolina, North Dakota and a few scattered areas elsewhere. The temperature continues normal in the Gulf and South Atlantic States and is above normal over practically all other districts, the most marked excesses being shown from the upper Great Lakes region westward across the Northern Plains States and the northern Rockies. A maximum temperature of 102 degrees occurred Thursday at Miles City, Mont.

The outlook is for generally fair weather in the States of the Washington Forecast District during the next forty-eight hours, except that showery weater will prevail in Florida and the extreme southern portions of Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia.

MADRID, July 19.—The Spanish Government would give a good deal at the present moment to obtain a trace of the well-known Pied Piper of Hamelin. Six million rats have invaded the fields of the rich agricultural district near Santander in the past two weeks. The farmers have appealed in a body to the Government to take action to save the vanishing crops by exterminating the plague. The rats came from the mining country about Palencia.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The stock market appears quite eager to seize upon anything which might possibly be construed as marking a turn either in the foreign or in the domestic situation. It was not surprising, therefore, that Germany's "feeler" offering to cease passive resistance in the Ruhr, subject to certain concessions by the French, should have been literally "welcomed with open arms" in our financial districts yesterday and used as a forceful lever in getting the markets higher. Stock Exchange prices gained a little more than a point and this gain of the average was accompanied by sharp upturns in those industrial shares which have become recognized as the market leaders.

There was little of the dullness and none of the hesitation which have characterized recent trading in stocks. Of course, it was quite evident that the main buying power was furnished by those who had sold for the decline and wished to even up their commitments, either to acquire such actual profits as remained or to prevent further losses. During the latter part of the day there was evidence of broadening of the market, as outside business began to be attracted by the rise, proving once more the old Wall Street theory that the general public is not particularly interested in a market which declines or stands still and that it is only an advance which attracts the so-called outside attention.

The day's industrial news had little about it to attract interest and certainly nothing of sufficient importance to cause a great deal of difference in the attitude of those who were watching the markets and expecting them to be controlled more or less by the day-to-day news. The reports of some of the independent steel corporations on forward business showed some reduction, and figures on the oil production of the country, instead of showing the expected decrease, again indicated a moderate increase. There has developed, however, a certain disposition in our financial districts to look further ahead than the day-to-day news, and to lean to the belief that, just as stock and commodity prices went too high in March and April, now, in the midst of the dull season, they are too low, and that some reasonable recoveries would not be out of order.

As a matter of fact, there are many "straws in the wind" which would appear to indicate excellent prospects for good Autumn business. The most notable of these is the extremely good record of the car-loadings, the total of which foots up to almost 150,000 cars in excess of those loaded in the corresponding week last year, and more than 200,000 cars over the corresponding week in 1921. Sales of mail-order houses and chain stores—considered an exceptionally reliable barometer—not only are holding their volume but exhibit wide gains over the same period of last year. The suggestion made many times recently, and which bears reiteration, is that possibly the business of the country at the moment can be more fairly compared with the same period last year and in previous years than with the extraordinary pace set in the early part of this year. Such comparisons do not give much room for pessimism and certainly not such pronounced pessimism as has gripped the stock market for two or three months. After all, it is to be borne in mind that it is business which makes the stock market and not the stock market which makes business.

Wheat continued its upturn yesterday, as did most of the other grains, and there was a quietly firm tone in the cotton market. As in stocks, hysterical sentiment appears to have disappeared in the face of calmer judgment, and while in this market, too, there is no broad foreign or domestic demand, still the situation has quite evidently reached a point where forced liquidation no longer is a factor of importance.

Improvement in the position of the Federal Reserve System and of the New York Bank was reported in the statements given out at the close of business. This was built up principally through a reduction in discounts which for the System amounted approximately to $44,000,000, and for the New York Bank to almost $20,000,000, accompanied by a moderate contraction in Federal Reserve notes in circulation. The ratio of total reserves to deposits and Federal Reserve note liabilities combined, for the System as a whole, gained 1.1 per cent. to 76.5 per cent., and for the New York Bank 2.2 per cent., bringing that figure up to 83.3 per cent.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, JULY 19, 1923.

Stock Exchange call money ruled steady at 5 per cent., unchanged from charge which prevailed on Wednesday. Time money market was lifeless, so far as actual trades were concerned. Firmness of borrowers' bid of 5 per cent. and reluctance of lenders to offer at less than 5¼ per cent. have brought market to deadlock; renewals are going at both figures, depending on maturity. Commercial paper discounted lightly at 5@5¼ per cent.

Money in London ¼ lower at 2¼ per cent.; short bills ⅛ lower at 3@3⅛ per cent.; three months' bills ⅟₁₆ lower at 3⅛@3¼ per cent.

Gold bullion unchanged at 89s 8d per fine ounce. Taking the British Mint standard price of 85s per fine ounce as par, the market quotation of gold would represent a price of 105¼ at London. On the same basis the highest London price for gold for the year to date was 106½, on July 5. The highest price since open trading in gold was resumed at London in September, 1919, was 149¾, on Feb. 6, 1920; the lowest, 102¾, on Feb. 21, 1923. Highest price last year, 136, on Jan. 3.

B. M. T. PLANS TO PAY MALBONE VICTIMS

To Send Out Call for Claims of Injured in Tunnel Disaster in 1918.

Calls for a presentation of claims growing out of the Malbone tunnel disaster in 1918 will be sent out the first part of August by the newly organized Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company, it was announced yesterday. These claims aggregate $2,200,000 and have often been indicated as a cause of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit receivership proceedings.

But before these payments are met the company is planning to pay off the $11,000,000 in receiver's certificates which fall due on Aug. 1.

The funds for the payment of the receiver's certificates and the claims against the company growing out of the tunnel disaster have been raised by assessments of $35 on every share of stock in three instalments. The third instalment of $10 a share, it was announced yesterday, was due on July 31.

Under the original plan it was anticipated that the assessment on the outstanding stock would net the new company $26,000,000. Because a number of the stockholders failed to meet this assessment, it is estimated that the amount will be in the neighborhood of $21,000,000.

The call for the presentation of claims from the disaster will probably ask for their deposit with the Chase National Bank. In return the depositor will receive a certificate of deposit for the principal amount of his claim without interest.

Representatives of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company anticipate that it will take considerable time for the adjustment of all the claims growing out of the tunnel disaster. The date for the presentation of the claims will probably be August 1. It is hoped to have the larger part settled within a few weeks after the notice goes out.

Move to Aid German Bondholders.

A movement is making great headway in Germany to permit holders of fixed interest-bearing bonds to exchange them for common stock of the respective corporations, according to the foreign department of Moody's Investors' Service, which has made a study of profits accruing to certain common stocks of German industrial corporations.

Note Issue Ready for Buyers.

Definitive notes of the Central States Electric Corporation's two-year 7 per cent. secured gold notes with stock purchase warrants will be exchanged for interim receipts at the Central Union Trust Company's offices on and after July 23 next, it was announced yesterday by Dillon, Read & Co.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Buoyancy in Stocks.

Sentiment in the financial district, which has been improving during the last week because of the recent resistance of the stock market to unfavorable news, was more cheerful yesterday than for some months. The result of this change of heart on the part of the leading traders, with the more favorable news developments, accounted for a brisk rally in both the railroad and industrial stocks. Whereas the gains of the last week or more were generally confined to fractions, yesterday's advances ran from one to three points in the active speculative issues. Larger gains were scored in those issues which are not heavily dealt in. Virtually every group in the entire list experienced increased demand for stocks, as shown by the increase in volume compared with the markets of the last ten days. Much of this buying was for the account of the short interest, which was forced to cover as stocks mounted upward, but in addition, information obtained in some of the large commission houses indicated that the big speculators and the semi-speculative public were inclined to make commitments on the long side. Little business, however, was done for the so-called outside public. That latter element, however, is expected to be again attracted to the markets in the near future, when reports of a revival in trade are heard.

Factors Influencing Upward Movement.

There were numerous factors in the developments of the last week to account for the recovery in the stock market. These vary, but all have had an important influence, not only on economic conditions, but also on sentiment. Brokers for some time past have been reporting a contnuous flow of stocks into hands of investors attracted by the low prices which prevailed of late. Also much of the "distress stock" which has been overhanging the market as a result of recent failures has been taken over by private or banking syndicates. Also, there is the more favorable tenor of the political news from Europe, the possibility of early recognition of Mexico, the sharp recovery in grain prices, increased demand for certain grades of finished steel products, firmer cotton prices and an improved demand for copper with a slight hardening of prices. The copper trade reports increased inquiries, indicating that consumers are preparing to make commitments for Fall requirements. The firmness of the market in London also is a favorable sign, according to local producers.

While motor stocks led the recovery in yesterday's market, with keen competition for leadership from the steels, equipments, coppers and miscellaneous specialties, the oil stocks as a group attracted much attention because of some of the sharp gains reported in the Standard Oil issues on the outside market. The oil industry at present, as now well known, is experiencing the largest production in history, with the possibility that a further increase will be witnessed before the peak is reached. Just when the peak will be established appears to be any one's guess, but general opinion is that it will come to pass within the near future. Despite this, certain unfavorable reports are being circulated regarding the financial position of some of the independent companies. These reports are more unfavorable than those heard when stocks were selling lower. In some quarters the circulation of such rumors is looked upon as a ruse to create a larger short interest. Regarding prices for crude and refined petroleum, the belief prevails that price cuts in the former have run their course.

Prepared for Grain Movement.

The announcement by George F. Huntington, President of the Soo Line, that his road has 100 per cent. more cars available for grain loadings now than at this time last year is considered in railroad circles as an indication of the improved condition of all the railroads that will handle the grain movement this Autumn. More than a thousand empty cars a day have been going west from Chicago in the last few days, railroad men declare, for the sole purpose of taking care of the grain as fast as ordered. Through the St. Louis terminal the movement has been about the same. Such preparation coupled with the abnormal amount of new equipment that the roads in the Northwest purchased in the first half of this year will be sufficient, these railroad men believe, to handle the grain movement.

New Low for the Mark.

The familiar process through which the German mark has been going, with new lows being reached with practically every successive week, failed to attract any particular interest in the financial district yesterday. The quotation is now so low that the paper has ceased to have more than a nominal value, and the report received from Berlin in the early part of the week that the German money presses were working twenty-four hours a day turning out seventeen and one-half billion marks every hour, furnished an explanation in advance of the continued downward movement. As shown in the Bank of Germany statement as of July 15, last, outstanding paper money has now passed the twenty-trillion mark, with current weekly gains averaging as much as the total outstanding currency reported only last March 7, when circulation totaled 3,871,256,168,000, the increase in little more than four months having been close to six fold.

A Backlog for Business.

In forecasting the future too little emphasis has been placed on the prospect for continued heavy building throughout all of 1924, in the opinion of bankers who have remained steadfastly confident as to the future, despite the conflicting viewpoints revealed from time to time by a varied class of business prophets. According to one analysis of building conditions, the country's requirements would sustain for ten years a building program running 25 per cent. above normal building volume, and the fact that contractors are now going ahead, supported of course by the big insurance companies and others who are financing their operations, with their plans for steady building throughout all of 1924, is accepted as a decidedly cheerful indication.

Refunding Railroad Bonds.

Small railroad maturities for the remainder of the year and large railroad earnings have been coupled in the financial district to show that so far as the railroads are concerned there will be few refunding operations during the remaining five months of the year. When the railroads only have to meet $65,000,000 in maturities coming due in the next five months; when the largest amount for any one month is $16,500,000, and when the issues are so distributed that the largest single issue due totals about $8,000,000, bankers for the roads believe that it will be possible for the railroads, through their earnings, to take care of a large share of the maturities. But, as a word of caution, they add that such conditions should not be taken to indicate there will be no new railroad financing. Even if the financing was heavy during the first half of the year, the improvement programs under consideration by some of the roads are of such proportions that it may be necessary for them to come into the market for funds.

Beginning March 22, the Stock Exchange officially quotes Liberty bonds in units and fractions, the fractions being 32ds of a unit, and the quotations after the decimal point representing one or more 32ds. In the above table, therefore, the figures of highest and lowest prices during 1923 and since date of issue are reduced to the form now used in the Stock Exchange quotations.

Sale of more than 20,000 shares of old New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Company stock by members of the Independent Committee of Shareholders to the Van Sweringen interests of Cleveland, for approximately $2,000,000, was announced yesterday by Walter E. Godfrey, counsel for the Independent Committee. This settlement, according to Mr. Godfrey, brought the total which the Van Sweringen interests have paid to stockholders who refused to accept the terms of the Nickel Plate consolidation plan up to approximately $5,000,000.

Terms of the sale, which was concluded in May, but was not announced until yesterday, were 102 and interest at 6 per cent. from April 11 to July 5, ferred stock; 93 and interest at 5 per cent. from Jan. 1 to April 11, and at 6 per cent. from April 11 to July 5 for the second preferred, and 91½ and interest at 5 per cent. from April 11 to July 5 for the common stock. These figures, according to Mr. Godfrey, are the highest prices which the respective stocks have brought in the open market during the last two years.

The consummation of this sale in May was the cause of the dismissal of the suits in Cleveland against the Nickel Plate. It was also the reason the objection to the consolidation of the old New York, Chicago & St. Louis, the Chicago & State Line, the Lake Erie & Western Railroad, the Fort Wayne, the Cincinnati & Louisville Railroad and the Toledo, St. Louis & Western Railroad into the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Company was not pressed by the Independent Shareholders Committee before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. Godfrey yesterday told how the settlement finally had been made.

"When W. A. Colston, Vice-President and general counsel for the Nickel Plate, sent for me to come to Cleveland to make a settlement, I refused," Mr. Godfrey said. "Instead, I suggested that he visit our offices in New York. He made the trip and the outcome was the settlement through the sale of stock at the figures we had demanded from the first.

"Among the conditions of the sale was the provision that we were to withdraw any suits in Ohio, and we were not to appear before the Interstate Commerce Commission as objectors to the consolidation. I am convinced that if we had gone to Washington as objectors we might have blocked the plans for consolidation until the rights of the shareholders of the old New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad had been protected."

Mr. Godfrey admitted that some members of the committee he represented had not been interested in the stock when the merger was originally discussed, but had purchased stock later at the market price, considerably below the figure they received in the settlement, on the speculation that it would be possible to force the Van Sweringen interests to pay the highest price in the two years before consolidation, as provided for in the Ohio State law.

While his committee members received approximately $2,000,000 for their securities from the Van Sweringen interests, he pointed out that there were other investors who settled independently at terms less favorable. Some of these shareholders were originally in the independent committee, but withdrew when they found it possible to make settlement as individuals.

Mr. Godfrey refused to divulge the names of any of the members of the independent committee, because it was organized with the understanding that secrecy would be maintained regarding its membership.

KINNEY SALES $8,903,062.

Report $5.70 Balance on Each of 60,000 Common Shares.

The G. R. Kinney Company, Inc., for the six months ended June 30 reports gross sales of $8,903,062, against $7,828,556 in the first half of 1922. After payment of all expenses, including interest charges and reserves for Federal taxes, a balance of $566,103 was available for the preferred and common stocks, against $523,025 last year. After allowing for the preferred stock the balance on the 60,000 shares of common stock was equal to $5.70 a share, against $4.98 a share in the same period in 1922.

E. H. Krom, President, said that company had completed plans for increased sales, and unless conditions are unfavorable he believes the last six months will exceed all previous records of the company.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

List Starts Higher, but Later Reaction Cancels Gains—Marks at Record Low.

European exchanges were highly irregular yesterday, early dealings showing a smart spurt forward with the list at substantial advances from Wednesday's final, followed by heavy offerings all around and the consequent wiping out of all earlier gains. German marks were conspicuously weak and at a new record low for all time at 2⅞ ten-thousandths of a cent, or at the value of 348,000 marks for the dollar. Traders were at a loss to explain the reaction, which was the more difficult because the statements of the Bank of England and Bank of France were considered favorable, to which was added the undercurrent of relief furnished by the latest cable information that Germany might shortly yield on its program of passive resistance in the Ruhr.

London sight drafts started ⅛ cent higher at $4.59⅛, improved to $4.59½, with a final of $4.59⅛; French opened 1½ points up at 5.89½ cents, with a reaction to 5.86¾, while lire declined 2⅛ points to 4.30½ cents, and Belgian 1½ points, to 4.83½ cents. Scandinavians, Spanish, Holland and mid-Europeans were irregular, but Swiss francs moved up 35 points to 17.70 cents.

WALL STREET TO AID TEXAS COTTON MEN

PLAN SUCCESS LAST YEAR

The Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association will be successful in floating a big loan in New York and other cities to help that organization in marketing its cotton crop, but the amount probably will be less than the $40,000,000 figure which it originally was reported that Colonel Sloan Simpson, Trustee and Treasurer of the association, would ask. Details as to the exact amount of the loan, its terms and other specifications have not yet been decided, but unless an unforeseen hitch should develop in the next few days it is certain that the amount will be much larger than the $12,000,000 loan advanced to the same co-operative group one year ago.

Colonel Simpson, who is engineering the deal for the cotton growers, visited the downtown offices of the Seaboard National Bank yesterday and conferred with Percy J. Ebbot, Vice President of the bank. Upon conclusion of this conference, he left the Wall Street district for a golf tournament, but will return to the bank today, where he will hear what the bank's officers think of the growers' plans.

Owing to the marked success last year of the Cotton Growers' Association, it will not be difficult for Colonel Simpson to obtain a loan, but such details as to the amount of money that will be advanced on a given amount of cotton, and interest rates, will provide a number of points requiring discussion. The cotton growers are asking close to 70 per cent. in money on their collateral as against 65 per cent. received last year. The fact that cotton prices fluctuate makes bankers hesitate about raising this figure much above 65 per cent., particularly in view of the fact that the co-operative organization has no capital assets of any kind as additional security to the cotton, which will be stored.

The Seaboard National Bank will not endeavor to float the entire loan unaided. In last year's transaction a number of banks took part, including among others the Equitable Trust Company, the First National Bank of Chicago and the American Exchange National Bank of Dallas, Texas. While no information could be obtained as to whether this same group would be asked to participate, it was generally believed that it would, as well as some other banks which did not take part in the loan of 1922. Virtually half of the total amount will be placed in New York, it is expected.

In respect to interest rates, no difficulty is expected to be encountered. Last year's loan was placed at 5.331 per cent., a figure which indicates that the banking group rated the staple as excellent security as interest rates to as high as 6 per cent. were reported on loans to companies of high standing.

The entire sum to be loaned will not be advanced at one time. As an initial loan, Colonel Simpson is asking for $12,000,000—or equal to the total loan obtained last year. Thereafter, additional advances up to the amount agreed upon as the maximum amount will be made. The fund will be used in a way as a revolving fund and will be tapped from time to time to finance the cotton growers through periods when market prices are not, in their opinion, "right," so that they will be able to sell their staple at profitable levels.

The success of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association holds a deep interest to bankers and financiers. The organization, which is one of twelve in the cotton belt, has thus far succeeded in changing the handling of cotton crops from speculative hands to the hands of actual growers who grow the cotton, store it in a central warehouse and then sell it.

SUE DOLLINGS SUBSIDIARY.

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—A bill in equity for the appointment of a receiver for the R. L. Dollings Company of Pennsylvania, was filed in the Federal District Court today by three stockholders, who charge the officers and Directors with mismanagement and of paying stockholders of subsidiary concerns dividends out of a capital stock.

A similar suit was filed last week at Columbus, Ohio, against the parent Dollings Corporation, of which William G. Benham, of Columbus, is President; Mont Leakey, Vice President and Treasurer, and Dwight Harrison, of Columbus, Vice President and Secretary.

The suit here was filed by F. S. Zelley, Mount Holly, N. J., Isaac Collins, Moorestown, N. J., and Jay Ephraim, Wilmington, Del. It was stated that every share of the company's $3,000,000 of preferred stock had been sold to the public, and that 20,000 shares of common stock, without par value, were held by the company for voting.

Otis Elevator Earnings Increase.

The Otis Elevator Company for the six months ended June 30, 1923, reports earnings of $2,098,769 after all expenses, depreciation reserves and other charges. This compares with $1,375,522 in the same period last year. After reserves for taxes and other charges, there was reported net income of $1,488,769, which, after allowing for dividends on the preferred stock, was equal to $9.09 a share earned on the $14,227,800 common capital stock outstanding. In the first half of 1922 net income amounted to $1,185,522, which, after the same deductions, was equal to $6.96 a share on the common stock.

Butte Copper Co. Earns $34,021.

The Butte Copper and Zinc Company, for the six months ended June 30, 1923, reports ore receipts valued at $48,863. After making all deductions for depreciation and taxes there was reported net income of $34,021.

Wholesale Sugar Drops to 8.35.

COTTON IS STEADY ON LIGHT TRADING

Lack of Rain in South and Higher Stock Exchange Prices Are Factors.

The Cotton Exchange will close at noon today until Monday, when business will be resumed in the new building. Fears that the drought in the Southwest might be broken during the interval operated against prices during the morning, while apprehension over further inevitable deterioration should conditions not be relieved advanced the market in the afternoon. The upturn was assisted by the more encouraging aspect of foreign news, strength in securities and lack of rain throughout the great producing sections of Texas and Oklahoma. Volume of business is still light, but need of rain is becoming urgent. Prices lost 5 points on July but gained 21 points on May.

Early trading reflected the depressing influence of low prices for wheat in the West. After starting at an advance of a few points, execution of several Western selling orders, one for 5,000 bales of October, ran the price below 23.60 cents. With the Exchange to be closed from noon today until Monday morning, many holders decided to terminate interest in the fear that rains might occur in Texas during the interval. This left the market without aggressive support, and it was not until State details appeared several hours later that prices recovered over 30 points.

There were twenty-nine stations in Texas with temperatures of 100 to 109 and no indications of immediate relief. Only at two stations was any precipitation reported and that only a trace. On the other hand, general rains and showers fell over Georgia and sections along the East Gulf Coast. Frequency of rains in the East belt this week will tend to increase weevil propagation, so that it was not surprising the market resisted selling pressure. With the visible supply down below a million bales, there are about six weeks ahead before Sept. 1, when receipts of new cotton offset takings during an average season. This will draw attention to the relation between spots and contracts, as spot prices are still much above the October delivery. Operators are now trying to decide whether selling pressure from the moving crop will so depress spots that contracts will work lower or whether less favoring growing conditions will arouse apprehension and start general speculation. At present, outside interest in the course of cotton is the smallest of the entire season. Increased covering the last hour took a larger supply of contracts from the ring, demand for March and May indicating trade absorption. March rose 2 points over January, while May became the strongest month on the list in final dealings. The usual closing selling, a feature of the last few days, brought a 10 to 15 points reaction, with October ending the day at 23.80.

The New York certificated stock is down to 50,000 bales, while the stock at all ports aggregates 244,000 bales compared with 546,000 a year ago. Exports are nearly a million and a quarter behind last season to date.

OIL RECORD BROKEN.

Production in Week of July 14 Is 2,238,750 Barrels Daily.

Production of crude oil in the United States in the week of July 14, averaged 2,238,750 barrels daily, according to estimates made by the American Petroleum Institute. This total represents a new high record in the history of the country, and an increase of 39,600 barrels in the daily average over the previous week. Most of the increase was due to the prolific production in California, which State alone reported a gain of 33,000 barrels. Arkansas, the State of the Smackover field, shows a reduction of 18,800 barrels, but this is offset by gains in Oklahoma, Central Texas, Gulf Coast and Montana and Wyoming.

The daily average production of the important fields, in barrels follows: Oklahoma, 503,850; Kansas, 84,650; North Texas, 75,550; Central Texas, 175,250; North Louisiana, 62,500; Arkansas, 122,500; Gulf Coast, 102,150; Eastern, 113,000; Wyoming and Montana, 131,300; California, 868,000; total, 2,238,750.

Company Turns Out 1,000,000 Cars in Six Months.

Despite the reports of slackened operations in the automobile industry Henry Ford continues to show record production. The Ford Company on Wednesday night shipped from the assembly line at the Highland Park plant its 8,000,000th motor, establishing a new million mark in production, as the 7,000,000th motor was shipped Jan. 17. The concern turned out 1,000,000 cars in six months and one day.

Last January the company was producing 4,800 motors daily. Now the total is about 7,000. The average for the 149 working days in the six months was 6,711, or a monthly average of 166,670.

In the week ended July 17 the company turned out 40,803 finished cars and trucks, a new weekly record, and 428 above the previous high weekly mark of 40,375, reported in the week of June 19.

COPPER DEMANDS GROW.

Leading producers report increased domestic and foreign inquiries for copper. The increase in inquiries in the last forty-eight hours indicate, according to the companies, that consumers are preparing to make commitments for the last half of this year. Most of the inquiries are regarded as market "feelers."

The price quoted yesterday by small companies was 14⅝ cents a pound. Large companies quoted 14¾ cents. Many inquiries were for deliveries in the first half of August.

Recent uncertainty caused consumers to hold off on commitments, but with a change in sentiment and continued activity in most industries, increased buying of copper is expected shortly.

Continental Gas Earnings Rise.

The Continental Gas and Electric Corporation reports gross earnings of $3,368,711 for the twelve months ended May 31, 1923, an increase of 40 per cent. over the same period of the year before, while net earnings were $998,795, an increase of 50 per cent. After providing for interest charges and dividends on the preferred stock, the balance for the common stock was $404,622, an increase of 70 per cent. The company earned its interest charges two and one-half times in the period covered by the statement.

To Float Salvador Bonds Here.

An issue of $6,000,000 Republic of Salvador 8 per cent. first lien customs bonds will be floated here as soon as market conditions permit, it was reported yesterday. The statement followed an announcement that an agreement had been reached between the American group of bankers, headed by F. J. Lisman & Co., and the British bondholders, whereby the latter release their first lien on the Salvador customs revenues in favor of the American bondholders.

Morris Plan Pays Dividend.

The Morris Plan Company of New York yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent., payable Aug. 1 to stock of record July 27. E. Roland Harriman and Edwin O. Holter will serve on the Executive Committee for the ensuing three months, according to an announcement by the Board of Directors.

London Wool Sales Abandoned.

LONDON, July 19.—The July wool auction sales, suspended because of labor difficulties arising from the dock strike, have been abandoned, it was announced today. The next series of sales will begin on Sept. 4, instead of Sept. 11.

WHEAT ADVANCES ABOVE $1 AGAIN

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Black rust reports from the American and Canadian Northwest, backed with buying orders for the first time in over a week, carried all deliveries of wheat here up to over $1 today and the finish was at net gains of 1⅛@1⅜c, at the outside showing 4⅛@5⅛c over the low on Tuesday. Less was heard today regarding the "Buy 1,000 bushels wheat" movement, but considerable progress is being made in the campaign, and some commission houses reported an increased interest in small lots during the day. Others claim that they had more selling than buying orders. Rust reports came from a wide territory in the Canadian Northwest, and while crop experts made no claim of crop deterioration they called attention to the higher temperatures, showers and rank growth, the three making an ideal condition for its development.

Conservative Minneapolis interests wired that it was impossible to estimate the extent of the losses in the three States at the present time, although harvesting is under way in Minnesota and South Dakota. Durum wheat seems to have suffered but little. The Central West continues to sell cash wheat rather freely to arrive. Local handlers obtained around 500,000 bushels during the day. In the Southwest offerings are light and have a tendency to restrict export business, as the basis at the Gulf was firmer and there were better bids here from Montreal and Buffalo, although no sales were reported.

Coarse grains were influenced largely by the action of wheat. Corn closed ¼@⅜c and oats ⅝@1c higher, while rye was up 2@2½c, the latter getting support from the seaboard. There was 100,000 bushels more No. 2 mixed corn posted as getting out of condition, making 315,000 bushels so far. Part of this grain has already been loaded out of store and sold on spot, and there is now less than 200,000 bushels of corn in public elevators in Chicago that can be regarded as available for delivery. Crop reports on corn continue generally very favorable, and growth in Iowa of late has been so fast that the crop is at least a week ahead of its development at this season last year. Premiums on spot corn were ½@⅝c lower, due to larger receipts with No. 2 mixed 1½c over July. Interviews with a number of leading local grain men show that they are in favor of higher prices for agricultural products, largely from the standpoint of the best interest of the country. The local representative of one of the largest Minneapolis mills admitted today that the "Buy 1,000 bushels wheat or a barrel of flour" movement had resulted in a larger demand already and the car lot price had advanced 10c per barrel today in sympathy with the advance in wheat.

Primary arrivals of wheat today, 857,000 bushels; week ago, 597,000 bushels; last year, 1,702,000 bushels; shipments, 864,000 bushels; week ago 804,000 bushels; last year, 776,000 bushels. Corn receipts, 540,000 bushels; week ago, 326,000 bushels; last year, 927,000 bushels. Shipments, 330,000 bushels; week ago 575,000 bushels; last year, 1,287,000 bushels.

CASH RESERVES UP $6,300,000 IN WEEK

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Further liquidation of $40,500,000 in discounted bills and of $3,200,000 in acceptances purchased in open market, together with a decline of $3,300,000 in Government security holdings, is shown in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly consolidated bank statement, issued as at close of business on July 18, 1923. These reductions in earning assets were accompanied with a decline of $48,200,000 in Federal Reserve note circulation and of $7,200,000 in deposit liabilities. Total cash reserves increased by $6,300,000, while the reserve ratio rose from 75.4 to 76.5 per cent.

Substantially smaller holdings of discounted bills are reported by the Federal Reserve Banks of Boston, New York, Cleveland and San Francisco, the decline in the case of the New York bank being the greatest and amounting to $33,800,000. These banks at Chicago, Richmond, St. Louis and Dallas report increases aggregating $12,600,000, the increase in the case of Chicago being $3,900,000.

Total gold reserves show a nominal decrease for the week of $700,000. Larger gold reserves are reported by all Federal Reserve Banks except Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Chicago and St. Louis, the increase in the case of the Boston bank amounting to $10,400,000. The Federal Reserve Banks of Chicago, Richmond and St. Louis report decreases of $10,900,000, $5,300,000 and $3,600,000, respectively, in their gold reserves, these changes reflecting principally the movement of gold to other districts through the gold settlement fund. Reserves other than gold increased by $6,900,000, all Federal Reserve Banks except San Francisco reporting increases under this head.

Federal Reserve note circulation declined in all districts except Kansas City and Dallas, the aggregate increase in these two cases being only $600,000.

Holdings of paper secured by Government obligations declined further during the week from $419,900,000 to $408,500,000. Of the total held on July 18, $259,100,000, or 63.4 per cent., was secured by United States bonds; $131,500,000, or 32.2 per cent, by Treasury notes, and $17,900,000, or 4.4 per cent., by certificates of indebtedness, compared with $240,500,000, $162,400,000 and $17,100,000, respectively, reported the week before.

A summary of changes in the principal assets and liabilities of the Reserve banks, as compared with a week and a year ago, follows:

DU PONT DIRECTOR DENIES CONSPIRACY

DEFENSE RESTS ITS CASE

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 19.—The Chemical Foundation, Inc., rested today in its defense of the Government's suit to compel the return of 4,800 seized German patents sold by the Alien Property Custodian to the Foundation. The Government will offer rebuttal testimony tomorrow.

A dramatic hour followed when the defense called its final witness, Morris R. Poucher, a Director of E. I. du Pont, De Nemours & Co. Mr. Poucher is accused in the bill of complaint of being one of the principal conspirators in the alleged plot by the dye industry to create a monopoly through seizure of the patents and their transfer to the foundation, but the Government failed to present any evidence to that effect. The Government's cross-examination was limited to a few questions.

When Colonel Henry W. Anderson, special Assistant Attorney General, sought to stifle a line of direct examination in which Isidor J. Kresel, counsel for the defense, aimed at refutation of the conspiracy charges, Judge Morris insisted that, in view of the charges against Mr. Poucher, the witness be permitted to record his denial.

Several chemical and dye companies and the American Dye Institute, composed of manufacturers, are named in the bill of complaint, but Mr. Poucher is the only person named. He is charged with having misrepresented and suppressed facts to induce President Wilson, Under Secretary of State Polk and Alien Property Custodians Palmer and Garvan to effect the sale by which the Government alleges a monopoly was created. Mr. Poucher denied the charges categorically.

The witness formerly was Vice President of the Badische Company in New York, American selling agent for the Badische Anilin Soda Fabrik of Germany, dye manufacturers. For thirty years he had represented that company, he testified, but he severed his relations of a business lifetime the instant he heard of the Lusitania sinking.

When word was brought to a meeting of officers of the Badische Company in New York of the destruction of the Lusitania, he said, the elation with which some of those at the meeting greeted the news impelled him to withdraw from the meeting, to pack up and resign within half an hour.

"The Lusitania affair drew the line very sharply," he testified.

The witness said that, far from misrepresenting facts to President Wilson and Mr. Polk, he never even communicated with them.

He was a member of the Legislative Committee of the American Dyes Institute and Chairman of its Legislative Committee. He denied that it tried to effect a monopoly, and asserted its purpose was to establish a dye industry in America and eliminate the trade abuses that had persisted here under German monopolization through German control of essential patents.

Mr. Poucher testified to conferences with Mr. Palmer and Mr. Garvan, in which they discussed the transfer of German patents to American manufacturers so that the industry could be developed as an American institution and perfected toward the benefit also of the national health and national defense.

When Colonel Anderson protested against questions as to whether the witness had engaged in conspiracy as requiring an answer that was merely a conclusion, Mr. Kresel insisted on the answer in fairness to the witness. The Court agreed with this view, and the witness asserted that he never had anything to do with a monopoly program.

Mr. Poucher said the avowed purpose of the German Chemical Trust was to destroy development of an American dye industry so that the German grip on that industry in the United States might be maintained. In this purpose, he said, the German Trust had the support of the German Government.

Tells of Unworkable Patents.

Earlier in the day Dr. Moses L. Crossley, Chief Chemist at the Calco Chemical Company of Boundbrook, N. J., testified that his company spent years and scores of thousands of dollars in futile efforts to produce satisfactorily under the German patents as they were registered in Washington.

The witness said that under his supervision a group of highly trained experts experimented for four years with patents covering nococain, an anaesthetic, and cinchophin and neocinchopin, remedies for gout and rheumatism. Impure products, he said, resulted. The experiements cost the company $140,000. Similarly futile results were obtained when efforts were made to manufacture dyes under the German patents, he said. Modifications were necessary to bring about the desired results, but he declined to disclose these steps, on the ground that they would reveal trade secrets.

Judge Morris offered Colonel Anderson the opportunity of physical demonstration in court by Government witnesses of manufacture under the German patents as recorded in the patent office in Washington, but counsel did not avail himself of the suggestion.

In response to a question of the Court, Colonel Anderson said the Government still adhered to its conspiracy charges as presented in the bill of complaint.

"Even to the effect that the assignments executed by Colonel Miller were executed under a concealment and misstatement of the facts?" asked Judge Morris.

"On that question, if the evidence does not support it when I come to examine it, I shall not argue for its support," replied Colonel Anderson. "But I do not want to withdraw it in the midst of the trial."

"It seemed to me, Colonel Anderson, that we might save much time," went on Judge Morris. "I am not criticising your position, but it seemed to me possibly much time might be saved if—you might misunderstand what I was going to say, so I won't say it."

Cities Editorial and Book.

Mr. Kresel introduced extracts from an editorial and a book declaring German Chemical patents were misleading and unworkable, but Judge Morris made it clear that the court did not accept either editorial or book as evidence of the truthfulness of the statements they contained.

James Bayard Eliason, Controller of the du Pont Company, testified the corporation spent almost $4,000,000 in research on German dye and chemical patents, but he could not distinguish under this head the patents the company obtained from the foundation.

Mr. Kresel introduced a letter from President Harding to Representative Longworth, dated Aug. 10, 1921, referring to protection of the American dye and chemical industry, and saying:

"Surely we would be both unmindful and unjust if we failed in a suitable protection of this industry until the new and complete tariff revision act is made effective."

The foundation's counsel recorded also a letter of July 15, 1921, from General Pershing to Representative Longworth, in which the General emphasized the importance of the chemical industry from a military standpoint, reminding Mr. Longworth that the coal tar products compose "the basis of practically all of our high explosives and most of our war gases."

Letters in similar vein from Secretary of War Weeks and Secretary of the Navy Denby were also placed in the record.

It was stipulated that testimony of Brig. Gen. Amos. A. Fries, head of the Chemical Warfare Service, given before the Senate Committee on Finance in hearings on the proposed Tariff act of 1921, be accepted as if he had similarly testified in the present trial.

General Fries asserted that "all our high explosives, most of our war gases, many of our most important medicines, and our photographic chemicals, all essential in war, come either from coal tar crudes or in combination with other chemicals."

He testified to the ease with which in wartime dye factories can be transformed rapidly into munitions plants, and stressed the point that if the dye industry were not developed in time of peace much valuable time would be lost in wartime in erecting munitions plants and in training experts who by development of a dye industry would have been ready to engage in munitions work the instant war started.

BIG COLOMBIA BANK CLOSES ITS DOORS

The Banco Lopez, with its central office in Bogota, Colombia, yesterday closed its doors, according to cabled messages received by New York bankers. The failure came as a surprise here, one banker describing it as a "thunderclap." In foreign business the Banco Lopez had often been described as the "Gibraltar of Colombia," and, although reports of money stringency in Colombia added to the confusion growing out of a drop in coffee prices, it had been expected that outside aid would pull the Banco Lopez through its difficulties.

According to the meager information received by New York bankers, the collapse was due primarily to the sharp drop in Colombian coffee prices. The quotation at present is around 16 cents a pound; only a few months ago it was as high as 22 cents. Owing to this drop, secured loans of the bank shrunk accordingly in value, and in some cases shipments which were financed on the basis of a price of 18 or 20 cents a pound for coffee found upon arrival at foreign ports that the price had dropped to the present level.

Despite this collapse in coffee quotations, however, New York bankers who have done business with the Banco Lopez expressed confidence that the bank's assets would approach closely, if not exceed, its liabilities. The money stringency, which was so pronounced that even the Government had difficulty in meeting certain of its obligations with ready cash, affected also the Banco Lopez.

Recently the bank sounded out New York for a loan. The request came too late in the day for New York bankers to comply, it was stated yesterday, and, after a few telegraphic exchanges, the request was refused with the explanation that the New York bankers were not sufficiently well acquainted with Colombia's situation to advance the money. Thereafter it was reported that the bank sought a loan from Lazard Brothers, in London. This, according to report, was granted, but when Lazard Brothers heard that New York had turned down a similar request the loan was withdrawn.

As an eleventh-hour measure, it was learned that the Colombian Government purchased the bank's building in Bogota for 750,000 pesos, or the equivalent of $704,250, advancing 500,000 pesos, or $468,500. This sum, however, was exhausted by a run on the bank.

New York bankers who have had dealings with the Banco Lopez said the losses which would be entailed by New York organizations would be small, scarcely more than a ripple, as the business depression in Colombia had reduced the usual amount of business. The Banco Lopez had branches in five other cities.

NEW FAIR FEATURES.

A new plan has been worked out to show the offerings of skirt and waist manufacturers in the garment division of the Merchandise Fair to better advantage than was done last season. Then the waist and skirt makers exhibited separately. This year it has been realized that both skirts and waists appear to better advantage when displayed together on a dummy or a living model, and the new plan will put this into effect. Interchange of garments between the skirt and waist manufacturers will be carried out so that a garment of the former will be displayed with one of the latter, together forming a harmonious display to the advantage of both sellers and buyers.

The same idea will be worked out, as far as possible, in the Fashion Pageant to be staged in the Lexington Theatre every evening and at two Wednesday matinees. Some of the mannequins will wear the blouse of one manufacturer with the skirt of another and the millinery of a third.

Exports will receive a great deal of attention at the fair, and the special export committee has completed final arrangements for the highly efficient handling of this trade. A special export booth will be maintained at the Grand Central Palace, where general lines of merchandise will be shown. Here there will be interpreters and stenographers at the command of buyers who do not understand English. Large delegations are expected from the Spanish-speaking countries south of the United States, as well as representatives from Europe and Asia. Work for aiding exports will be facilitated by the assistance of the Department of Commerce, which will have a booth at the fair.

MORE COTTONSEED MILLED.

Gain of 243,643 Tons Reported Over Previous 11-Month Period.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Cottonseed crushed in the eleven-month period Aug. 1 to June 30 totaled 3,226,915 tons, compared with 2,983,272 in the same period a year ago, and cottonseed on hand at mills June 30 amounted to 13,768 tons, compared with 19,767 a year ago, the Census Bureau announced today.

Cottonseed products manufactured during the period and on hand June 30, including crude oil, produced 993,759,429 pounds, compared with 923,242,369 in the same period a year ago, and on hand 11,733,463 pounds, compared with 12,109,848 a year ago.

Gray Goods Show No Change.

Despite the continued quietness in the local market for gray goods, first hands are not so keen about meeting the price views of buyers as they might be under other circumstances. At the present prices of finished goods, buyers contend that they cannot make a profit on anything based on a figure higher than 8½ cents for 38½-inch 64-60s. While second hands will let out the construction in question at 8⅝ cents, first hands are firm for an additional eighth, or 8¾ cents. Ten cents will buy spot and near-by deliveries of 39-inch 68-72s, with 7¼ cents asked for 38½-inch 60-48s. Bids of 11⅛ cents failed yesterday to get out 39-inch 80 squares, for which first hands asked 11¼ cents. They also asked 11 cents for 39-inch 72-76s. Sales were few throughout the market, and features were lacking.

Not for a long time has there been more uncertainty in the cotton goods trade in regard to naming prices for a new season than now exists. While the buyers seem to show little interest in what happens, the possible action of one or two of the largest producers in the trade has makers of competing lines figuratively on their toes. Just when it had apparently been settled that nothing definite would be done until after Labor Day, when it is more than fairly certain that the wholesalers will be in a buying mood, the suggestion has popped up that maybe it would be better for the manufacturers to take the plunge now, after all, and get it over with. So far as could be learned yesterday, nobody acted on it, but it had the effect of tightening the tension among sellers and causing more watchful waiting than ever.

It is thought likely that the American Woolen Company will open its Spring, 1924, lines of women's wear fabrics on July 30. This is the date which, according to factors in the trade, will likely be chosen. It is pointed out, however, that the company, after opening a portion of its men's wear fabrics on Monday next, will yet have to show its lines of fancy worsteds and the date in question may be taken up by this showing. In any event, the trade expects the women's wear opening to come very close to a week from Monday. Producers of other lines, including the fine goods mills as well as the so-called corporation concerns, are not disposed to open early. It is believed now that these will not show their lines before some time in September.

Knitted artificial silks continue in notable demand on the part of cutters-up and retailers, according to leading local sellers. Their vogue for all types of outer garments is asserted to be rapidly growing. Their popularity is traced to the forward steps taken in improving their wearing qualities, their high lustre nad the character of the new designs brought out. Featured are those resembling chiffon velvets. The great demand for the latter and their scarcity, said a representative of Levi, Seligman & Co., Inc., yesterday, will tend to accentuate the demand for the knitted fibre fabrics of velvety appearance which cost much less. Brocaded effects secured through a moire process are also stressed in the lines being shown. Fibre cloths designed along tubular lines used for underwear purposes are described as in demand.

The 165th Regiment Armory, where the Garment Division of the Merchandise Fair will hold its display, will be ready for the installation of exhibitors' fixtures and merchandise any time after 8 o'clock tomorrow morning, it was announced yesterday by the Fair Committee. Both the booths and the window displays must be arranged, according to the rules promulgated, by 6 o'clock on Sunday evening. The fair will be opened officially at 9 A. M. next Monday, after which no alterations or changes can be made until the close of business at 6 P. M. that day. The committee strongly urges upon exhibitors the necessity of having the displays ready by the specified time on Sunday evening.

Differing Views of Sales.

Retailers continue to place strong emphasis on sales in order to keep up turnover in what is ordinarily a quiet period. The wisdom of holding so many and such prolonged sales has both its advocates and its opponents. The argument that the consumer is no longer interested in sales, owing to their large number, is set aside lightly by the former who say they are demonstrating otherwise. They also do not readily grant the force of the statement that the sales take attention away from regular priced merchandise, declaring that speed in turnover, on a small profit margin, is to be preferred. One aspect of the situation with regard to the Fall was pointed out yesterday by a well-known manufacturing executive. He said the holding of the sales and the consumer psychology it was building up were not the best kind of preparation for the higher retail prices that would have to be asked in the Fall.

Raw Silk Situation.

Little change of importance is noted in the local raw silk market. Buying is still confined to the current needs of the mills. Conditions in the fabric market are improving, however, leading to the belief that operations in raw silk will shortly be enlarged. The Yokohama market, according to advices received by H. L. Gwalter & Co., Inc., continues steady on the basis of 2,070 yen for double extra A and 1,960 yen for Kansai No. 1. Stocks there are given as 22,400 bales of white and 600 bales of yellow silk. At Canton the market is quiet, with holders' attention centred on political developments which again have assumed a threatening character. No change has occurred at Shanghai, but concessions on the part of reelers are making steam filatures more attractive, and buyers are said to be watching developments with interest. Buying at Milan is confined to European consumers, who are operating very cautiously.

Foreign Fur Markets Active.

A big demand is reported from London for minks, the great majority of which are intended for French use. There is also quite a demand for cross foxes there, according to the English representatives of Harry Eisenbach & Co. of this city, and a general improvement over the last three months is noticed. From Australia the same house has received cables telling of rather small quantities of opossum available on account of embargoes, and a rather firm rabbit market. The latter shows a slight upward tendency. General dullness prevails in Germany, the Ruhr and exchange situations being responsible for it. Quite a good deal of activity on the part of foreign buyers is reported from the Japanese market, and merchandise there is being held for high prices. The Japanese themselves have been quite active in the market, steady buyers having made a number of other purchases. This has been done carefully, however, and at strictly limited prices.

Has New Style Pocketbook.

Among the newest things to be brought out in this market in novelty leather goods is a women's pocketbook embracing the features and appearance of a vanity case. It comes in several novel shapes, in black, brown, gray, blue and other colors and a variety of leathers. The wholesale price ranges from $9.50 to $10 a dozen, depending on the style and material. It is trimmed with ornamental plaques of celluloid and has a long self-strap handle, with slide, that ends in a celluloid ring matching the trimming. The same type of pocketbook is also offered in circular celluloid shell effects in two tones, the combinations including shades of red, blue, brown, &c.

Staple Colors Will Lead.

So far as colors are concerned it seems to be pretty well agreed among the experts that the popular items for grays and beige, in addition to blacks. Retail store buyers, according to the current news letter of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers, claim to see a trend away from the nude and flesh shades, while red, blue and the other high colors worn to match the sandal type of shoe have practically disappeared altogether. This type of shoe is used by retailers as an argument against novelties in women's hose, their contention being that women will wear plain stockings with this kind of footwear. Another feature of the situation is the feeling that chiffon or very sheer hose will soon be listed among the staples.

HYLAN SWINGS PICK AT SHAFT OPENING

THRONGS OUT IN WELCOME

Mayor Declares Tube Will Be Completed Despite Efforts of Obstructionists.

Staten Island turned out for a gala day yesterday on the occasion of the breaking of ground for the Staten Island shaft of the Brooklyn-Richmond freight and passenger tunnel under the Narrows. Mayor Hylan, using a silver pick and a silver shovel, started the excavation work in the presence of a gathering of city officials and thousands of spectators.

In an address before the Borough Hall at St. George the Mayor declared that the beginning of work on the tunnel was brought about despite the efforts of obstructionists. He paid his respects to "the corporation bandits" and "the lickspittle press" and said that the same "band," with a hand in both the judicial and administrative affairs of the State, was trying to defeat his bus plans.

"It takes a man of iron to deal with these people," he said. "I am thankful that I have the health to stand against that band of bandits."

The speechmaking by city officials developed several jocular booms for Mayor, to which the names of Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen; Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, and Edward Reigelmann, President of the Borough of Brooklyn, were coupled. Mr. Hulbert, however, set the example in declinations for the others when he said: "The man who will succeed John F. Hylan is John F. Hylan himself."

Half Holiday in Richmond.

The Mayor and other officials went to Staten Island on the municipal ferryboat President Roosevelt, which was escorted down the bay by two boats of the Department of Plant and Structures and a fire boat. The party included Mr. Hulbert, Mr. Riegelmann, Julius Miller, President of the Borough of Manhattan; Benjamin Marvin, Commissioner of Public Works in Queens; Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson, and David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts.

At St. George a citizens' committee, of which Max Thaten was Chairman, welcomed the guests, and the party, headed by the Police Band, marched to the foot of South Street, between the municipal ferry terminal and the United State lighthouse depot. The march was enlivened by the screeching of whistles from every boat along shore and cheers from delegations from all over Richmond which lined the streets. Business houses had been called upon to close between 2 and 6 o'clock so as to allow their employes to attend.

The ceremonies at the site of the shaft were brief. Mr. Thaten introduced Mayor Hylan and the Mayor grasped a silver pick and started to dig. After he had taken a dozen or more healthy swings with the pick he took a silver shovel and scooped out the dirt, while the onlookers cheered again.

With the Mayor and Mr. Thaten in the van, the crowd then marched to the Borough Hall. Mr. Thaten introduced John A. Lynch, President of the Borough of Richmond, and Mr. Lynch introduced the Mayor.

Predicts Success for Bus Plan.

"The corporations to some extent are helpful in this great city," Mayor Hylan said, "but when they are competing among themselves they stand in the way of progress. If the railroad corporations had their way we would not be starting this great tunnel. Yet this tunnel means much to Staten Island. It will be the connecting link with the sister boroughs.

"It needs a man of iron in the best possible health to stand against these corporations and the lickspittle press. This Port Authority plan means nothing to us. It means much to New Jersey, and when some of our citizens in New York undertook to co-operate with them they took a stand against the development of our own great city.

"The corporations are now standing in the way of another great public improvement—the buses. When I see the Transit Commission standing with the corporations in combination against the people it makes my blood boil. Many people have money to ride in automobiles in comfort, but the majority of them do not, and that is why we have tried to give them improved service in automobile buses.

"Right over in that street called Wall Street are men who never get into their offices until 12 o'clock. Then they read the morning papers, go out for lunch and then quit at 1 o'clock. All the time they are scheming to rob you of your hard-won earnings.

"You will find their fine hand in the judicial affairs of the State. You will find them in the administrative branches. The day has come when they must take warning that the people have rights and that they are going to stand for their rights. They are not going to stop the completion of this tunnel. It is going through. They are not going to stop the buses. It is only a matter of time when all surface trolley cars will be obsolete and buses will stop at every corner in the greater city to take on and discharge passengers."

Others who spoke were Mr. Hulbert, Mr. Whalen, Mr. Miller, Mr. Riegelmann and Mr. Marvin. At the close of the addresses the party marched to Pier 7, Tompkinsville, where there was a reception and dinner for the city officials.

ESCAPED PRISONER AND GIRL ARE CAUGHT

WARREN, Pa., July 19.—Patrick Ponsoll, who escaped from the Warren County Jail here yesterday while a young woman with a black mask held jail guards at bay with a pistol, was captured this afternoon by Sheriff's officers in a barn near the centre of the city. With Ponsoll was Mary McCanna, who is being held on a charge of aiding the prisoner to escape.

At the same time the officers arrested Mrs. Marie Berardi and her twenty-year-old son John. They were charged with harboring Ponsoll and his girl companion.

Returned to the jail, Ponsoll admitted to Sheriff Muir that after his escape he fled to the Berardi barn with Mary McCanna. They hid themselves in the hay mow, where, Ponsoll declared, young Berardi brought food to them last night.

The visit of the Sheriff's officers to the barn was made on an anonymous telephone tip. The building was surrounded and Ponsoll and the girl appeared when the hay was jabbed with pitchforks.

Lawn Party for Women's Club.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., July 19.—Mrs. Ruth Litt gave a reception and luncheon today for the Women's Republican Club of Suffolk County on the lawn of her home, Jackwill Farm, on Great South Bay. Between 300 and 400 women were present. The speakers were Francis M. Hugo, Mrs. Ada Wolf, Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore, Congressman Robert L. Bacon, State Senator George L. Thompson, Assemblyman John G. Peck and Cecil W. Proctor.

GERMANS INSPECT SHIPPING BOARD CRAFT

Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, Commandant at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, admitted yesterday having been visited by several representatives of German shipping firms recently, who inspected the Agamemnon and President Grant, United States Shipping Board vessels which are lying in the Navy Yard basin.

Admiral Plunkett refused to comment upon the report that the Germans had expressed their willingness to submit bids for the purchase of the boats. He would not give their names nor would he state what firms they represented.

Since the United States Government has deemed it unwise to convert the boats into first-class passenger ships on account of the expense, doubt was expressed at the Shipping Board office concerning the report that the Germans might convert them.

The question of the disposition of those battleships which were being constructed when the arms conference took place in Washington, was discussed on Tuesday at a conference between Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Captain Warren Butler, manager of the Navy Yard, who said yesterday that no result was attained.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Members of the United States Shipping Board said tonight that they knew nothing about Germans trying to buy the steamers Agamemnon and President Grant, now lying at the New York Navy Yard basin. The President Grant is being reconditioned at the New York yard for service under the American flag, and even if an offer were made for the purchase of that vessel by Germans, it would be rejected. The law with respect to sale of vessels to foreign nations requires the sale to be approved by at least five members of the board. Sentiment in the board is opposed to selling any of its vessels for use by Germans over North Atlantic routes.

AUTO 8 DAYS CROSSING U. S.

But F. G. Gegoux Must Make It in Seven to Win Wager.

The coast to coast automobile record for a lone driver was claimed yesterday by F. G. Gegoux of 1,126 Plymouth Street, Los Angeles, who checked in at the Western Union Telegraph office at Times Square after making the cross-continent drive in eight days six hours and six minutes, elapsed time. As credentials he brought letters from the Mayor, Chamber of Commerce and Chief of Police of the Southern California city, to the Mayor, Merchants' Association and Chief Inspector Lahey here.

The trip, according to Gegoux, was for a wager of $3,500 as to whether he could make the run in seven days. It was provided he was to have two chances to win, one on the eastward trip and the other returning. Having lost thus far, he will start back in a few days.

Arriving here Gegoux piled into bed for the first time since leaving Flagstaff, Ariz., and slept the clock around. Gegoux lived on milk, nuts, raisins and dried beef.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 19.—Damages of $25,000 were awarded today to Miss Mae Edwards, a former Follies dancer and artist's model, in a suit against Charles W. Holden, proprietor of a shore beauty shop.

No defense was offered by the beauty specialist, and when the case came up for trial before Judge Ralph Donges some weeks ago an interlocutory decree was entered and the order made for a special jury to fix the amount of damages.

Miss Edwards testified that she had contracted with Holden for an operation on her face for the removal of lines under her eyes and to have her "skin peeled." She stated that she paid him $300 for the operation. As a result of his negligence she alleged that the operation had disfigured her for life.

Jeffries to Begin Preaching.

LOS ANGELES, July 19.—James J. Jeffries, former heavyweight boxing champion, who recently was reported to be preparing for a career as an evangelist, will preach in the Women's Christian Temperance Union Temple here tomorrow night on the "Restoration of Palestine to the Jews." He plans a world tour, it is said, preaching the doctrine of amalgamation of peoples of the white race to promote the highest standard of civilization.

To Executors and Trustees

The anxiety on the part of every faithful trustee to invest trust funds so that he will never lose any of the principal is so great that he should consider the one sure way of accomplishing this purpose.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company, after more than 30 years' observation of the operations of the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company and of the experience of some 100,000 of investors who have placed over $900,000,000 under that Company's guarantee, is ready to take a trust fund under a will or by gift from the living and itself guarantee that there will be no loss of principal and that the fund will be turned over unimpaired when required.

We know of no trustee who is willing to do this with any other form of investment. The Title Guarantee and Trust Company will take such trusts, and it can aid other trustees to take them and make such a guarantee, by investing the fund in First Mortgages guaranteed by the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company.
